BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

Any doubt as to the seriousness of the rupture between the governor and the State Board of Agriculture would have been dispelled by attendance at the hearing last Thursday before the joint committees on public service and agriculture, when the remonstrance upon what is known as the governor's bill was heard.

The only question remaining for the listener to determine would have been the degree of influence exercised by the board upon the agricultural element of the population of the state. The real, vital relationship between the farmers and their representatives on the state board would settle the question regarding the vote of the farming element next fall. If the board could have its way the career of John L. Bates has touched its high-water mark without the shadow of a doubt. The amount of vituperation and bitterness expressed by the different speakers toward His Excellency was only limited by the capacity of the individuals who addressed the committee. It has seldom been the case in a committee hearing at the state house that such a degree of animosity has been exhibited as was in evidence at this hearing. The lofty disdain of Secretary Sessions; the open defiance and bitter sarcasm of Mr. Stockwell, and the hearty applause of the large gathering indicated the temper of the meeting and in every way showed the deep seated feeling against the governor.

It was no passing shower or fleeting shadow. It savored of open rebellion and unending battle. The methods pursued by the remonstrance were questionable as to what might be termed policy; as much so as those made evident at the former hearing when the governor's bill was advocated. The fact that at the first hearing the chief advocate for the bill was a man who had been discredited by the farmers and was therefore at the meeting with a grudge, was a most impolitic move and showed a woeful lack of judgment somewhere. Then at this later gathering the condition was very manifest that the board was fighting for its existence more than a desire to show how much value it had been to the state as an organization. If someone else rather than Mr. Whitaker had presented the argument for the governor's bill, and someone outside had fought the measure, rather than those whose official nests had been disturbed the case would have had a clearer appearance to those who were looking on and judging without malice or prejudice. As it was, Ex-Senator Morse, a paid attorney, presented the only valuable argument bearing upon the case. He had the good sense to utter a reasonable word, the first of the day, for the governor and imparted an air of dignity to the occasion, an occasion which was rapidly degenerating into an unseemly exhibition.

If the bill relative to the number of brakemen which railroad companies shall employ on freight trains, which has been sent to the senate for concurrence does not get a check put upon its headlong career it will be a wonder. Of all the absurd attitudes for a legislative body to take, this is one of the most ridiculous of all. The next thing will be to legislate on the number of men to run a hand car and to flag a train, these things are along the same line. If it were not for the strenuous support which measures of this character get from certain members of the legislature one would think they were introduced by strikers but of course that fact robs them of all suspicion along that line. Such bills really come from superior wisdom regarding the true methods of transportation, against the wanton disregard of human life as exhibited by the railway companies. Note:—See the Rail Road Commissioners report regarding the loss of life on steam roads, and street railways.

The bill to allow the killing of gray squirrels was killed instead by the house and the little beauties can therefore go on another year without fear of legislative interference. When it comes to killing, the legislature could occupy its time, as it has been doing a good deal this session, in killing offensive legislation rather than gray squirrels, and keeping its hands off of peaceful conditions rather than in meddling with everything showing any signs of life, as the restless beings who infest every session seem to desire.

It was "Speaker Parker" one day last week and the Springfield man proved that the house might go farther and fare worse, as George M. Stearns once said when he was suggested for governor. Mr. Parker is quicker than chain lightning and decidedly more pleasant to run across. He finds the chairmanship of ways and means far pleasanter this year than last, and the voters in the First Hampden District might find ways and means to send him to the senate next year without any discredit to themselves. He is as quick witted a legislator as has answered to roll call in many days and is as clean as a hound's tooth.

Representative Harrington of Hinsdale took the seventh degree in legislation last week when he moved to substitute the bill to require street railways to give reduced rates to pupils of business colleges, for the adverse report of the committee. The seventh degree consists in vigorously applauding a maiden speech and then turning down the purpose for which the speech was made. In this case substitution was refused by a majority of only three votes, the voting being 44 to 47, and Mr. Harrington has the consolation of knowing that less than a quorum voted on the matter and that he had the applause of the house at the close of his first speech which was more than the great O'Connell received when he began his career.

At a hearing before the Election Laws Committee recently Representative Linehan took advantage of being a member of the house by charging Sheriff Seavey with being a liar. That is a prerogative that goes with an election to the legislature. A man often says things that he would not think of saying if he were not a member of the great and general court. That is, some men do. And it is more the fault of the constituents than the men themselves, for they ought never to have been elected. Men sometimes get into the general court who really ought to be in some lower court, and they are not all Hebrews.

Last week the house refused to substitute a bill allowing the owners of property in side streets to collect damages from the Boston Elevated Rail Road. It is about time to draw the line in Boston as to who is responsible for noise and at what point sound ceases to be sound and becomes noise. The bill really should read, "An act to confiscate the Boston Elevated Rail Road."

The fact that the senate had a ten-minute session near the end of the third month of its existence is not conclusive evidence that it is about ready to wind up its affairs. Not by any means. It was simply a short stop in the legislative game and may be followed by a play to an out felder before the moon has filled to any great extent.

Edgar J. Bliss.

Newton Club.

The "Congressional" dinner at the Newton Club last Saturday evening was a brilliant success whether viewed from a literary, social or gastronomic standpoint.

The assembly hall was beautified with potted plants and ferns the walls were adorned with flags and red, white and blue, and the tables were bright with cut flowers. Five long tables were completely filled with the 200 gentlemen who were present and a satisfactory menu was provided by the club steward. During the dinner Daggett's orchestra furnished popular music.

Congressman Chas. E. Townsend of Michigan, H. M. Hogg of Colorado and our own "Sam" Powers were the guests of honor.

Ex-Mayor John W. Weeks, president of the club, presided at the dinner, which was attended by over 200 members and friends. He was greeted as "our next congressman," and seemed to be the lion of the occasion, although Congressman Powers, "in view of his promise to retire," as one of the visitors took it, was a very good second in the race for honors. The other congressmen made a great hit.

Congressman Powers was chaffed unmercifully by President Weeks in regard to his position on the post-office investigation, and he began by saying that he wasn't here to explain his conduct on that matter, "but to find out whether I am running this district or whether it is being run by the president of this club." He referred facetiously to an interview given out by him to the newspapers last January, which he said was wrongly interpreted to mean that he wasn't going to be a candidate for Congress again.

"There is only one thing," he said "that deters me from being a candidate at this time, and that is the fact that a large number of candidates in this district have spent a large amount of time—I won't say whether they have spent anything else or not—and have what we lawyers call a vested interest. I don't think it would be right for me to interfere with that interest. The three most important offices in this district are the presidency of this club, to be mayor of the city of Newton and to be your congressman. Your president has filled two of these, and it looks as if he would fill the third.

"I understand you have a very live question here in Massachusetts, partly political, partly economic. It is called reciprocity. (Applause.) I haven't the slightest idea whether that applause is for or against reciprocity. I don't care, because I don't intend to discuss that question. But this much must be borne in mind that, if Massachusetts is to continue to be a great manufacturing state, such as she is and has been, she must have a proper protection upon her manufactured goods, and if she can get free raw material, so much the better. But when we come to talk about free raw material, we are in danger of getting ourselves into trouble with the gentleman from Colorado, where his farms produce wool, and we are in danger of getting into trouble with the gentleman from Michigan, where the great lumbermen are so much interested."

Congressman Townsend paid a high compliment to Congressman Powers. "He has established," he said, "a reputation as a most efficient and loyal representative, second to no man in Congress with two terms' experience. I felt it was for the best interest of this district that he should be returned, and so I didn't look with much favor upon the proposition to have him stay out of the race this time. But I have become acquainted with my friend, the president of this club. I must confess that there are others."

Congressman Hogg began by referring to his visit, with the other two congressmen, to the Old South Church, Faneuil Hall and the Old North Church, which were shown him as places of great historic interest.

"What did I find?" he said. "I went down to this cradle of Liberty, the birthplace of American liberty. And what did we find? Dagones! (laughter) selling bananas (more laughter) where liberty was born. (Laughter continued.) And you, gentlemen, permit this desecration. I went to the Old North Church. We went within its sacred walls, and, while I am willing to confess that it is not often I go within the sacred precincts of a church (laughter), I was most solemnly impressed. When we came out I looked about, and I don't suppose there were five human beings within four blocks in either direction who could speak the English language. (Laughter.) Gathered from the four corners of the earth, men and women who never could understand or appreciate the blessings of American liberty. And this we find in Boston!"

"You talk about the 'wild and woolly West.' I resent the term, and what is more, if we are woolly, I defy the best Bostonese to shear us. What is the West? It is yours. It belongs to you. It is a heritage given to you, and it has been developed and made into a magnificent empire by you and your ancestors.

"I am sorry you referred to the silver question. That was a sore spot with us some years ago. I was one of those who were sore. I thought the only patriot you had in Massachusetts was George Fred Williams. But supposing everything you had on earth was invested in mining, and under these conditions your product dropped to almost nothing, what would you have done? If your factories had stopped, of course you wouldn't seriously think of living on your agriculture. I want to say that in all honesty we believed in that issue, but I am not here to revive it, because I am frank to confess that it is a lost cause.

"We felt that in that we had got the worst of it. But that wasn't enough. Last fall we went into Congress and adopted a treaty with some island down here we had given liberty to, because they said we owed something else to that island besides liberty. What was the result? My friend, Congressman Powers, voted for reciprocity with Cuba, and to strike down an industry of Colorado and of Michigan. There were just 21 of us there who stood up for American labor.

"My friends, Colorado will stand by you if you will stand by Colorado. And I am here to say, further, that if this question goes to its ultimate extent—and it means that the interests of the country at large must be held in abeyance in order that some particular section of this country may be prosperous at the expense of the balance—this country at large will see to it that any particular section shall not benefit at the expense of the country itself.

"A special meeting of the Club is to take action on amendments to the constitution relative to life membership will be held tomorrow evening.

A military whist will be given on Wednesday evening.

Y. M. C. A.

On Easter Sunday Rev. Henry E. Oxnard will speak on an Easter topic. The song service begins at 3:30. All men invited.

John Leadbetter, a member of the Newton Y. M. C. A. has entered in the Marathon Race to be run on April 19th.

Earle Field, Ralph Mosher and Robert Giffether the representatives of the chess club easily won all the games played with the Salem Club.

Sunday May 8th will be observed as Y. M. C. A. Sunday in many of the churches.

The Glee Club added several new members to its list on Tuesday. It is said the goat worked over time on that night. There was fun for all—but the new members. All gathered at Mr. C. L. Ellison's home to end the evening in the proper way. Mr. C. Dyer was chosen business manager.

COACH AND FAMILY HORSES.

The finest lot of high class horses ever exhibited, for sale in New England. They were all selected with great care, have been carefully bred and driven regularly, so that they are fitted for use in the city and country. Beautifully matched coach and family pairs, cobs, single drivers and saddlers, all at reasonable prices. Why not buy of a thoroughly responsible firm who have been in business for more than 20 years, and who can show a better list of regular customers and references than any dealers in New England. Our policy is, where we sell a horse and it does not give perfect satisfaction, to take it back and give another equally as good, without any additional charge. We can give the very best references. Send for our announcement.

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Park Theatre—Seldom, indeed does any dramatic production carry with it so many experienced juvenile performers as does "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," the dramatization of Alice Hegan Rice's delightful stories which has now entered upon the fifth week of continuous popularity at the Park Theatre, Boston. Children constitute a conspicuous element in a number of the scenes of this diverting character comedy, for it would have been a sad injustice to motherly Mrs. Wiggs and her loving knowledge of childhood to have overlooked the juvenile element that is so happy a charm in the original story. Was not the direst punishment which Mrs. Wiggs meted out to one of her own youngsters the threat to spank the little one's doll? And it was only when her daughter Australia persisted in falling into the rain barrel in the midst of Mrs. Wiggs' enjoyment of conversation that she vexed the old lady even a little bit. Quite a cluster of little lads and lassies forms a part of the large cast of twenty-five distinctive characters put before the footlights in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." The little "jography" named Wiggins—Asia, Australia and Europa—in particular are important girlish characterizations, and the trio who impersonate them in the play—delicate pathos and quaint, humorous comedy. It is a story of New York life of today and the time of its action is supposed to be the present. One of the principal characters is Ned Nimble, a newsboy, who works his way from the gutter to a place of affluence. The matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, are sure to be attended by enthusiastic audiences during this engagement.

Tremont Theatre—It was to have been expected that George Ade's "Peggy from Paris," that witty, brilliant musical comedy that has scored one of the greatest successes ever attained by a play of this class, would draw big audiences to the Tremont Theatre where it opened a brief engagement last Monday night, and this expectation has been realized. "Peggy from Paris" with its wit, its droll characters, funny situations, delightful music, is of unfailing interest, and its popularity is proof of its charm and powers of entertainment. That all of its many possibilities are fully brought out is certain from the excellent company that Henry W. Savage is offering in it. Much of the scenery is new, also many of the costumes. Mr. Ade has made certain changes in the play, introducing fresh humor and amusing persons, and adding new interest. Therefore "Peggy from Paris" offers many attractive novelties and those who wish to see this delightful musical comedy will need to go to the Tremont Theatre soon, as "Peggy from Paris" will be in Boston only this week and next.

Music Hall—One of the biggest successes of last season presented at her success in "Dolly Varden" was so pronounced that a return engagement was immediately arranged. It proved to be a genuine comic opera, possessing a plausible story, and music of a much higher order than is to be found in the prevailing type of

ARTHUR DEACON
in "Peggy from Paris" at the Tremont

musical comedies. The predominating feature of the performance is its daintiness and absolute freedom from farce comedy methods, in fact, there is no part in "Dolly Varden" for a low comedian, the fun making being all intrusted to Miss Glaser herself in the role of the unsophisticated country girl.

It is Said.

That the bulk of the No license vote is cast by hypocrites.
That Newton will vote YES if the druggists are refused licenses.
That the druggists are feeling rather nervous as May 1st approaches.
That all druggists will not be granted licenses.
That the police force are so busy that they have no time for internal quarrels.
That "Bill" Flanders will have an easy walkover in the district convention as a delegate to Chicago.
That Mr. Flanders deserves any recognition he wishes from the Republican party.
That Captain Weeks has a long lead in the race for the congressional nomination.
That he is an ideal candidate both for the nomination and election.
That Hick's almanac is a wizard on weather predictions.
That it came within 36 hours of the recent earthquake.
That the railroad commission will grant a certificate on the South Side crossing matter.
That it will split the difference on the street railway transfer problem.
That the Eliot Church clock will still be illuminated.

The outlook for the horse business this spring in New England is exceedingly bright and prosperous. The dealers look forward to a very brisk trade and intend doing a large amount of advertising.
The Boston Horse Market Association has adopted The Boston Herald as their official advertising medium, and all horse sales will appear exclusively in The Herald.

TO NURSING MOTHERS.

Are you worn out?
Tired and completely run down?
You have no vitality, no energy.
You are nervous, weak, fretful and cry easily.
For just such cases as yours Vin-Tone has been prepared.
It overcomes that tired, weak feeling and puts a new energy into body and mind.

Do not be skeptical and refuse to believe what eminent physicians pronounce to be a fact.
Doctors who have made a deep study of this subject, have, after much patience, experimenting and expense, succeeded in compounding Vin-Tone. And having been convinced of its wonderful strengthening power, they now send it out into the world to do its work among poor weary human beings.
We are glad to be able to print the good news that a remedy has at last been discovered which takes right hold of any worn-out system and builds a foundation to health and happiness.
To the nursing mother this will come like a God-send.
One bottle will convince you.

Low Priced PIANOS
For Practicing Purposes.

Square pianos are out of style and more of them come to us in exchange for uprights and grands than we can conveniently handle. We have fifty such now that must be sold. Most of these have 74 octaves and are especially serviceable and useful for practicing purposes and can be obtained for about one-third the price asked for a good upright. At a later date if desired we will exchange these squares for new Ivers & Pond pianos allowing practically all that may have been paid for the second-hand instruments. If inconvenient to call we can mail you a list of these pianos with our lowest prices. Payments as low as $4.37 per month. Send for our list of bargains in second-hand pianos.

Mrs. Wiggs protects Lovey Mary from the Sheriff. Scene from 2nd Act of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," at Park Theatre, Boston.

May McManus, Edith Story and Helen Cantlon, are little actresses who can each of them boast a very considerable stage career already in spite of their youth. But the baby of the company is a little blonde-curler pictureque youngster named William Burton Jones. It is said that these four children together receive an aggregate of salary far surpassing that paid any other four juvenile performers before the footlights.

Colonial Theatre—The golden eggs of "Mother Goose" at the Colonial Theatre, Boston, have anticipated the Easter display and represent a wealth of bright, rattling fun, charming, catchy music, legions of feminine beauty and such a lavish display in indescribably gorgeous scenery and costumes as have never heretofore been seen in one stage production. There is, in fact, so much to see and hear and laugh at that one becomes almost bewildered. The cast is an enormous one, the scenes are ever varying and changing, and there is a plethora of exquisite scenic investiture that is annihilating in its bursts of splendor. The ballets, processions and marches go with a precision which can only be compared to the co-ordinate works of a perfect watch. The famous aerialists, the Grigolatis, are seen in their beautiful and graceful posings, and when their premiere, without warning comes to the footlights and makes her remarkable flight over the heads of the audience clear to the gallery rail and return, all the while scattering beautiful carnations over those below, it is a fitting climax to the most brilliant spectacle ever shown to local theatregoers.

Grand Opera House—An attraction that is justly considered one of the best melodramatic offerings of the season entitled, "From Rags to Riches," from the pen of Charles A. Taylor, is next week's attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House. The play is one of intense heart interest, and abounds in thrilling situations, Boston Music Hall was the sensational melodrama, entitled "Why Women Sin," written by Will C. Murphy, a writer well known to the theatre goers of this country. This is the second season of the play and it is repeating the record it made for itself last year, and three companies are now presenting the drama on the road this season. The principal company comes back to Music Hall on Monday afternoon of next week, and no stronger Easter week attraction could have been selected for the popular playhouse than this. The play is splendidly mounted, the management having equipped the production with one of the most lavish outlays of scenery and mechanical effects ever seen with a popular priced production. Daily matinees will be given as usual.

Majestic Theatre—That popular comedian, George W. Monroe, who has always had a great following among amusement loving seekers, comes to the Majestic theatre on Monday night of next week for an engagement of one week in his greatest success, "My Aunt Bridget." Mr. Monroe has been entertaining the public for a great many years, and he has won his way to his present position by careful, artistic methods. He was one of the first to present the type of character of a rollicking Irish servant girl and from this one character Mr. Monroe had a play written, entitled, "My Aunt Bridget," which he first produced ten or a dozen years ago. The piece proved a success from the very opening night, and he played it for several seasons with considerable profit. All the songs and musical numbers used in the production this season are brand new, and a week of jollity is promised.

Globe Theatre—At the Globe Theatre, beginning Monday, April 4th, Lulu Glaser is to return to Boston for a two weeks engagement to be again seen in "Dolly Varden," the comic opera, which was given at another theatre only two weeks ago, and Keith's Theatre—Digby Bell, who is too well known to the average theatre-goer to need any advance "booming," is to be one of the headliners of the vaudeville program at Keith's for the week of April 4. Mr. Bell will tell stories, sing and give a dialect recitation, and his engagement will be for one week only. Other entertainers on the same bill are; Charles Bradshaw, a well known comedian, and company, in the roaring farce, "Fix in a Fix;" Fields and Ward, the inimitable "patterers," George Felix and Lydia Barry, in an eccentric comedy, dancing and singing sketch; the Holloway trio, the most skillful wire performers in the world; Dora Pelletier, in songs and stories; Arthur Buckner, an expert bicycle rider, and Parker's trained dogs, one of the best troupes of canines in the business. Robert Hilliard is underlined for the week of April 11, when he will play "Number 973."

Columbia Theatre—One of the great successes in recent years in the popular priced theatres of this country has been the sensational melodrama, "A Hidden Crime," which comes to the Columbia Theatre on Monday evening of next week under the direction of J. M. Ward, a manager who has already presented several successful popular priced attractions in this city. The play was written by John Lockney, an actor who has had years of experience on the stage and who has devised a play that is original in theme and which has created considerable of a sensation wherever it has been presented. The piece will be finely presented by a cast which is headed by the author, Mr. Lockney, and by Miss Pauline Fletcher, a beautiful and accomplished actress. The usual matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoon.

Messrs. S. N. Ufford and Son have removed from West street to 29 Temple place, "Take Elevator." The Famous Form Manufacturers.

Street Railway Notes.

The Boston Elevated propose to discontinue the Brookline village line of cars from Nonantum square and substitute therefor a transfer system at the Oak Square station. This will also allow transfers to all the other lines which now start from Oak Square, and will relieve to a slight degree, the congestion which now exists at Nonantum square.

Newton is again treated to a scare head in the Boston papers over a trifling fire at City Hall on Wednesday. The fire was one which could have occurred in the most fire proof building, and its prompt discovery and extinguishment speaks volumes for the activity of the city officials.

The arrest and conviction of one tracted the janitor's attention. The damage was trivial.

MRS BISHOP DEAD

The sudden death of Mrs. Emilie Fanning Hunter Bishop, wife of Alderman Elias B. Bishop, at her home on Beacon street, Newton Centre last Friday afternoon was a great shock to her wide circle of friends and acquaintances in this city. Death was caused by peritonitis and followed a brief illness of three days.

Mrs. Bishop was a daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. S. V. A. Hunter, former residents of Lake avenue, and was a native of New York. She is survived by a husband and three small children.

Funeral services were held from the house on Monday afternoon and were largely attended. Rev. E. M. Noyes of the First Church officiated and favorite selections were rendered by a male quartette. The interment was at Newton Cemetery.

Caleb Stark Chapter.

The Caleb Stark Chapter Sons and Daughters of the Revolution had a very successful entertainment at the Newton Highlands Clubhouse last Saturday afternoon March 20, at which a goodly sum was made for the patriotic work of this junior chapter,
which is auxiliary to the Sarah Hull Chapter D. R. A. play "Her busy day" was admirably given by members of the chapter. Those taking part were Mabel Clark, Harry Tower, Warren Agry, Fred King, Marion and Kenneth Tucker, Miriam Ware, Willard Eaton, Zilpho Benner, Helen Luitweiler, Wallis and John Webber.
The latter sang some funny verses which were thrown to the audience
as souvenirs. A cake and candy sale followed also a dance, which was heartily participated in by the young people. Any information regarding the Caleb Stark Chapter will be furnished by the director, Miss Anna
M. Whiting of Newton.

Hunnewell Club.

Mitchell whist winners last Saturday evening were G. E. Alden and
B. F. Holmes, N. and S. and A.
Marshall and E. V. Grabbill, E. and W.

Candle pins are in great favor at present. Tournaments are in progress in two divisions by the men and one by the ladies. Miss Peterson's team has a long lead in the ladies tournament with 11 wins. This week's games resulted in straight wins by team 4 over 6 and by 5 over 1. Team 3 beat 2 by two to one. Miss Edmonds rolled 103 on Monday.

The team of eight standing for March has these names: A. W. Blakemore, 321, C. F. Loring, 299, C. R.
Loring, 298, C. O. Tucker, 295, L. H.
Bailey, 293, E. T. Ryder, 289, R. W.
Angier, 287, H. H. Learned, 287.

Police Paragraphs.

In the Newton police court Thursday morning a lad of 11 years was fined $5.00 for mutilating papers in the Newton Free Library. This is the lowest fine which can be imposed for an act of vandalism in public buildings.

Patrolman Shaughnessy had a lively time last Saturday at Thompsonville.
While taking John W. Beecher to the patrol box as a drunk, Shaughnessy arrested Alfonso Octaviani for the same offence. Bernardino Arduino who was with Octaviani, saw the predicament the officer was in with two drunks on his hands and attempted to rescue his friend. After a lively scrimmage all three were brought to the box, and in court Monday morning were fined.

At the Churches.

The Red Bank Society will hold a meeting Saturday at the Second Congregational church, West Newton.
An Easter program will be presented.

A large audience was present at Eliot church last Sunday at the vesper service when J. H. Maunders's sacred cantata, "Olivet to Calvary" was rendered by the quartette and chorus under the direction of Mr.
Everett E. Truette the organist and choir master.

The annual parish party of Channing church will be given Friday evening April 8th at the Hunnewell clubhouse. A large committee mostly made up of the younger matrons of the church have the party in hand and an unusually pleasant evening is anticipated by the members of the Channing parish.

West Newton Unitarian church parlors next Wednesday at 2 p. m.

Newton Club.

Plus scores at duplicate whist were made Monday night by J. F.
Humphrey and L. A. Hall, 643,
W. Brown and H. S. Langdon, 413,
E. E. Marston and F. H. Potter, 2
and J. C. Ostrup and H. G. Drinker-hoff 2.

Too much praise cannot be given the good work of the Newton Centrical Club and Mrs. S. W. Wilder, soprano, for the excellent concert on Wednesday night. The hall was filled with an appreciative audience,
and the entire program was received with great applause. Mrs. Wilder's powerful soprano was used with fine effect and her numbers were heartily encored. The quartet of young ladies rendered "A Day in Venice" in a beautiful manner, and were enthusiastically received. The closing march of Wagner's was excellently done and the Club should be proud of its splendid work.

Letter to L. L. Marshall, Newton.

Dear Sir: The way to reckon the cost of paint is to put both costs together: the cost of the paint and the cost of putting it on.

It would save this country hundreds of millions of dollars a year; it would save you alone (if you happen to be a victim) several dollars a year.

See how it works. It costs as much to put on one paint as another, don't it?

Yes, if you use the same number of gallons.

Well, don't? No, you'll use twice as many gallons of adulterated paint as of Devco; and you've got to pay twice as much for putting it on.

Mr. N. Avery, Delhi, N. Y., has two houses alike and in same condition. Painted one house with Devco: 6 gallons. Painted the other house with a paint that was half adulteration: 12 gallons. Same painter, Geo. Gilbert, did both jobs. One cost $27; the other $54.

Better go by the name. Yours truly, F. W. Devco & Co.

Invites You to Visit Waltham

As an inducement for you to accept this invitation, I am going to sell

10,000 Yards Desirable Goods

at lower prices than same goods can be bought from any mill factory or jobber in the United States. The goods are now on our counters and will be sold to the first customers who take advantage of this offer.

Lot No. 1

2000 yards extra good quality Apron Gingham. The price is 7c at the mill to-day.

Inducement price, 4 1-2c

Lot No. 2

2400 yards very fine quality fancy figured colored Dimity. The wholesale price for these goods is 10c, a yard.

Lot No. 3

1600 yards All Linen Bleached or Brown Crash. Notice, this is "All Linen" and actually worth 7 1-2c a yard.

Inducement price, 5c

Lot No. 4

2500 yards Extra fine quality Percales. We do not say good as "Windsor" because many customers like this make better than "Windsor." They would be cheap at 12 1-2c a yard.

Inducement price, 10c

Lot No. 5

1500 yards Everett Classic Gingham. Everybody knows that these Gingham are now worth 8c per yard.

Inducement price, 6 1-4c

This is a Money Saving inducement that will make it very profitable for you to visit this store.

Blue Trading Stamps or Profit Sharing Checks given with Each Purchase.

The Newton Natural History Society.

It looked last week Monday, March 21st, at one o'clock in the morning, as if this once long honored, enjoyed, highly prosperous and valuably influential society, promotive, for example, of nature study in schools, Y. M. C. A., etc., begun in October 1878, had a most significantly appropriate three-fold awakening call to renew and enlarge its good work which still locally lives in its "Maynard Chapter."

For what more appropriate, first, than that a society partly devoted to geology and principally founded and led by a competent geologist, should be roused by the geologic disturbance of last week Monday morning, which, though mild, was extended, even from New Brunswick to Taunton? And, again, since many members were warmly interested in botany and ornithology, and two at least, having won distinction in the latter branch what more appropriate awakening reminder than the coincidence of the earthquake stroke with the first day, March 21st, of the summer half of the year, the season of birds and blossoms when field days attended by from fifty to three hundred persons have been held. Yet, once more, since some of the society's most prominent and active members were and are, enthusiasts in anthropology one, at least, an efficient agent of the Smithsonian Institution, engaged in researches among the far western ancient cliff dwellers, what happier awakening coincidence than that, at the moment of the vernal equinox, 8 p. m. March 20, only five hours before the earthquake shock, the writer, a member of the society from the beginning, should have been intently listening to a fascinating account, by the English Bishop Reeve of the extreme northwestern diocese of Rupert's Land on the Mackenzie river, of his skilled and very effective Christianizing to and thence graciously civilizing Missions to native red Indians, Eskimos and others, sacred anthropology shall we call it?

But what to do when awake? That is the question now. Is there not a nucleus of a dozen to twenty people, still in this present Newton of thirty thousand or more people, who are enthusiastic lovers of some branch of Natural history, who, by a little effort on their part, could first get together for conference in a parlor, then open communication with others found to be of like tastes, including those accessible and once or still active in the good old society, and who would rejoice after twenty-six years to give all possible aid and benefit of experience if wanted, and then organize and proceed vigorously? Happily the field is still here; abundant, extensive, and invitingly varied, enough to serve for years.

From the Fanueil thickets and marshes, the heights of Bigelow and Nonantum hills, the meadows and woods around Eliot Monument, over to the wild age, great trees, and depressions of Hammond's Pond, thence to the wilds about Ballough's Pond and the Newton Cemetery, and across to Echo Bridge gorge, thence to Lower Falls, Longfellow's Pond Needham, Wellesley Farms and Charles River to Riverside and over to Prospect Hill and the region of Waverley Oaks Rocks, sand dunes and Glacial scratchings, as well as birds, and plants abound. Such, and more, being the field, it only waits for explorers. Is it too much to hope that this earnest appeal will somehow bear fruit, in what may virtually, at least, if not actually be the celebration of the first year of a second quarter century of the Newton Natural History Society.

High School Notes.

The girls basket ball team defeated that of Brookline high, 30 to 11, in a well contested game played last Saturday morning in the drill hall.

About 40 candidates for the base ball team reported to Captain F. R. Telman for Monday afternoon, on Cabot Park. Light practice consisting of batting and catching flies was gone through. Newton has Thomas '04, Leonard '04, Stephenson '04 and Woodward '04 of last years team together with many of last years substitutes still in the school.

The school track team had their picture taken Saturday morning at Partridge, Newtonville.

The class of 1904 held a meeting after school Friday and elected N. T. Welman for its orator, and Miss M. Davis for its historian, also E. M. Verry for statistician and J. Loring, prophet.

Remarkable Prognostication.

Many times in private conversation, we have referred to the accuracy of the predictions in Hicks' Almanac for 1904, and the recent earthquake leads us to give a wider publicity to this remarkable weather prophet. In its March predictions, Hicks' Almanac says "Whatever speculation and varying views may be entertained on the subject, we contend that when the moon passes an eclipse node, as it does on March 16th, phenomena out of the ordinary, in the way of storm, tidal wave and earthquake follow as a rule within 40 to 60 hours of the moment of the moon's conjunction with earth and sun. Let us watch the world's record from about the 15th to the 18th of March."

Go to Mine Denise, 830 Washington St., Boston, and let her make you a stylish gown to order, prices are very reasonable. She studies to suit your individuality. Taking pains is the secret of her success. She makes a study of the figure, complexion, color of hair and eyes, giving graceful lines and artistic designing so much sought after by well dressed women. Ladies doing their own sewing should try one of Mine Denise's patterns of Paris for which she is agent. She also cuts and fits for home completion.

At the Churches.

At Trinity church, Newton Centre, last Sunday evening Bishop Lawrence administered the rite of Confirmation to several candidates.

The annual meeting of the West Newton Unitarian Society will be held on Monday evening April 11th.

The annual supper will be held for the parish of the New Church, Newtonville, in the parlors next Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock.

At Central church, Newtonville, last Sunday the day was devoted to the life and work of Gen. Samuel C. Armstrong. At the morning service Rev. O. S. Davis preached on "General Armstrong the Christian Patriot," and in the evening gave an address on "Hampton Institute" illustrated with stereopticon views.

A union meeting of the Newton Highlands and Home Young People's League was held last Sunday evening at Central Congregational church Newtonville. Mr. Thompson was the leader.

The Bible Class of the Woman's League connected with the New Church, Newtonville, met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. H. Carter on Highland avenue. The subjects considered were Nahum, Zephaniah and Habakkuk.

Rev. George R. Grose gave an address on "The Last Week of Jesus' Life" at the meeting of the Junior League of the Newton Methodist church held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Lawrence on Newtonville avenue.

A literary meeting of the Woman's Association was held Tuesday afternoon at Eliot church. Mrs. Joseph Cook gave an interesting address on "Places and People in Japan."

The Woman's Guild will continue to hold its meetings in the choir rooms of St. John's church, Newtonville.

—The Review Club will meet with Mrs. Geo. M. Harvey, Central street next Tuesday at 10 a. m. Miss Nichols will speak on "Civil Service."

APPROVED.

South Side Grade Crossings to be Abolished.

The following order was issued by the Railroad Commissioners on Wednesday.

Petition of the Mayor and Aldermen of Newton for certificate relative to abolition of grade crossings in that city.

A Special Commission appointed by the Superior Court has adopted a plan for separating grades where Glen avenue, Langley road, Institution avenue and Cypress, Centre, Rogers, Hyde, Walnut, Boylston and Cook street cross the Boston and Albany railroad in Newton.

The New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company lessee of the Boston and Albany railroad, contends that the work of separating these grades should be postponed.

The Legislature of 1902, after reviewing what had been accomplished in abolishing grade crossings of highways and railroads, appropriated an additional five million dollars in furtherance of the work.

The railroad company contends that it ought not to be required to carry on at the same time the work of separating grades in both East Boston and Newton. In favoring the East Boston and opposing the Newton project the company urges that the improvement contemplated in East Boston is of great public importance and should be given precedence over that proposed in Newton which, it argues, affects a smaller public and is of much less general interest.

The further claim is made that Boston is entitled at this time to receive the benefit of the public fund, while Newton is not, having already enjoyed great advantages from the large expenditures made in abolishing grade crossings upon the main line of the Boston and Albany railroad.

The main purpose of the legislation of 1902 was to provide for carrying on the work of eliminating perils and annoyances which still threatened the public safety and convenience from the existence of grade crossings. Just what or exactly where expenditures had already been made in eliminating similar perils was of lesser moment.

The statute does not contemplate that a corporation shall necessarily be relieved from future outlay on account of the work done in preceding years. For economic reasons, in other words to obtain greater security and convenience in the running of trains and larger freedom from expense in maintaining safeguards, a company with ample resources might well have expended large sums of money in doing away with these crossings.

We assume it to be our duty under the law now in force to secure an order of procedure which will be for the general welfare, with a view at the same time to a fair distribution of the public money among the different cities, towns and corporations, and with due regard to the amount of financial burden imposed upon any one of them. In the application of this rule there must always be indirectly felt to a greater or less extent the effect of expenditures already made in different communities.

As said in the Chelmsford case, it is impossible to accurately measure and apportion the amount of peril that exists at different crossings. In selecting one rather than another for abolition the first factor to be considered is the relative importance of the traffic and travel which is affected, in determining which the uses made of both railroad and highway are to be considered.

The significance of the comparison between conditions in East Boston and in Newton would be greater if these two cases arose in an ordinary way under the general law. In each of these instances the Legislature has itself taken action looking to an early separation of grades. Chapter 408, Acts of 1900, in approving the lease of the Boston and Albany railroad to the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company, provides for grade crossing changes upon the Grand Junction railroad. Chapter 103, Acts of 1903 authorized the construction of a trestle in Newton clearly in the contemplation that it would be a temporary affair warranted by the prospect of early action in abolishing the crossings which rendered the structure necessary.

But aside from these considerations a large public interest and importance attaches to the changes proposed in Newton. Not far from seventy trains are run daily excepting Sunday over this circuit, serving a large traveling public. Many of the streets which cross the railroad at grade are important thoroughfares. The number of passengers carried over this line and the large travel upon the ten highways which cross it fairly warrant the prompt prosecution of the work. Nor do we find any reason for the belief that it is impracticable to carry forward both enterprises at the same time.

For these reasons
THE BOARD HEREBY CERTIFIES that in its opinion the adoption of the plan and the incurring of the expenditure proposed in the report of the Special Commission appointed by the Superior Court to consider the abolition of certain grade crossings of highways and railroad in Newton are consistent with the public interests and are reasonably required to secure a fair distribution between the different cities, towns and railroads of the Commonwealth of the public money appropriated for the abolition of grade crossings and that such expenditure will not in its judgment exceed the amount to be paid by the Commonwealth under the provisions of law relating thereto.

(Signed) James F. Jackson,
George W. Bishop,
Clinton White,
Commissioners.

The matter now goes before the Superior Court for final approval.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Received: From Committee on Public Franchises etc. Recommending granting N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. conduit locations on Valentine street and attachments to poles of N. & W. Gas Light Co on Langley road.

From committee on Public Works: Recommending $750 for alterations in Hamilton school.

RECESS.

From 8:10 to 8:17 for meeting of Finance Committee. When board reassembled an order appropriating $750 for alterations in Hamilton school was read twice and adopted, 15 yeas, 6 absent.

ORDERS ADOPTED.

Granting N. E. Tel. & Tel. Co. conduit locations in Valentine street and attachments to poles of N. & W. Gas Light Co. on Langley road, and authorizing street watering during season of 1904.

Board adjourned at 8:23 p. m.

The Newton Upper Falls Improvement Association met Saturday evening and talked over the proposed route of the new branch railroad of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, which will be built this spring to connect the Woonsocket and Dedham branches. The railroad company proposes to build the road from a point above Needham to West Roxbury, but the Newton Upper Falls residents are unanimous in the request to build the branch from a point near Cook street, Newton Highlands, across to West Roxbury. Such a route would greatly benefit Newton Upper Falls and Newton Highlands people, and would save the expense of building several bridges, one a large one over Charles river.

Heath & Milligan Screen Door Paint.

Your attention is called to the advertisement of the Heath & Milligan Mfg. Co's Screen Door Paint. This is just the season to get together your window and door screens and give them a coat of this special screen paint.

It is all ready for use, and, aside from its beautifying effect, more than saves its cost by indefinitely prolonging the life of the wire screen or other painted surface. The screens will not rust and the woodwork will neither warp nor split. For sale by C. H. Campbell, Nonantum Square.

Lyceum.

About a year since, an article appeared in the Graphic reviving some memories of the Lyceum which had a notable life several years ago at West Newton. So much of interest was elicited by it that the suggestion was made that more of detail would be of value. As another winter has just passed we are reminded of that unique institution and of the benefit derived from it. For the surviving actors, a few of whom still remain, and for the larger number who attended the meetings, some account of the exercises with the names of those who took part therein will be of added interest.

It was organized under the name of the "Athenaeum Literary Association" at the Village Hall—now Knights of Honor Hall—at West Newton, October 1st, 1866 "for private culture and public entertainment."

The officers elected were: William E. Sheldon, president; James Allen, treasurer and N. W. W. Tufts, secretary; with standing committees: Nathaniel Allen on music; I. N. Tarbox on reading; H. J. Patrick on lectures; I. D. VanDuzee on debates and James Allen on hall.

The first meetings were held in Village Hall, the place of organization, which became soon so much crowded that adjournment was made to the old basement Town Hall which was immediately filled so that often some were compelled to stand.

The evenings were divided for exercises as follows: Eight minutes for music; twenty minutes for reading; twenty minutes for lecture; ten minutes each for the chief disputants with open discussion, five minutes to each speaker.

The music was miscellaneous, sometimes instrumental, sometimes vocal, solo, quartet, or by the audience.

The paper was always bright and filled with local hits which cannot now, of course, be recalled after so long an interval of time.

It will be enough to illustrate the variety, to give the subjects of the lectures, with the names of the lecturers, and the questions debated: Rev. James Thurston on his labors in Wilmington, N. C. among the colored people.

Thomas Drew on the Sunny South. E. P. Bond on the Sandwich Islands. T. Prentice Allen on Progress.

W. E. Sheldon on Meteoric showers. Charles Barnard on Joan of Arc. I. N. Tarbox on treatment of a conquered people.

Dr. Whitney on his experiences in Libby Prison.

J. W. Robinson on the South. Hon. Oliver Warner on Jean Ingelow and Christina Rossetti.

F. W. Pelton on the Future of England. N. T. Allen on Natural History.

G. W. Briggs on Astronomy. Seth Davis on Astronomy, illustrated by home-made apparatus.

O. C. Gibbs, Treatment of Northern prisoners. Julius Clarke, Geology and his experiences in the Rocky Mountains.

James T. Allen, Thermal Laws and their operation. Rev. Francis Tiffany and I. D. Van Duzee were also among the lecturers.

The debates were on such subjects as the Right of Suffrage to every native born man; Woman's Suffrage; the Labor question; Public education in Massachusetts not conducive to political wisdom; Secret societies dangerous to republics; the Adoption of constitutional amendment by Southern states; the Nation more indebted for its progress in civilization to its mechanics and inventors than to its orators and literary men; the Annexation of Mexico and Canada; Corporal punishment in schools; the relative merits of scientific and classical courses in colleges; Public amusements should receive more general attention; the Admission of Utah to the Union; Exclusive study of natural science tends to skepticism; the liquor question; Gymnastics should form a part of our educational instruction; Impeachment of the President; Phenology as laid down by Gall and Spurgeheim not a success; Multiplication of books does not tend to advancement of political culture of man; Honesty is the best policy.

During the season an entertainment was given to raise money for the expenses of the Lyceum. This first winter it took the form of an Old Folks Concert and consisted of literary exercises, dialogues, declamations, etc. by the "old boys" "it being the purpose of the committee to demonstrate to the young folks how such things were done in the good old times when their parents and grandparents were little boys and girls."

Seth Davis, Dr. Whitney, James T. Allen, Thomas Drew and the three clergymen of the village were some of the participants.

No entertaining and profitable did this first season of meetings prove that it gave prestige to the unwonted success of the following years and the Lyceum became an institution.

COACH AND FAMILY HORSES.

The finest lot of high class horses ever exhibited for sale in New England. They were all selected with great care, have been carefully bred, handled and driven regularly, so that they are fitted for use in the city and country. Beautifully matched coach and family pairs, cobs, single drivers and saddlers, all at reasonable prices. Why not buy of a thoroughly responsible firm who have been in business for more than 20 years, and who can show a better list of regular customers and references than any dealers in New England. Our policy is, where we sell a horse and it does not give perfect satisfaction, to take it back and give another equally as good, without any additional charge. We can give the very best references. THE SALVATION ARMY

Appeals for Funds to Erect People's Palace in Boston.

THE OBJECT, NEED AND PLAN OF A WORTHY AND UNIQUE CONCEPTION.

This is the era of club life. In large cities clubs for both men and women have become a real part of the social economics of the people. They are social, political, literary, musical, histrionic, dancing, whist, golf, tennis, croquet, and others too numerous to mention, all serving the specific purpose in the social life of those who belong to them. In a great club like the Algonquin, of Boston, the wealthy citizen may procure his refreshments, smoke his cigar, write his private letters, meet his friends and in fact it is here that he transacts much of his business.

It is this spirit which is abroad in the land that makes the Y. M. C. A. the grand success it is. The great feature of this organization is that it affords all the advantages of club life at a nominal cost, and it also has a number of attractive features which the ordinary club does not possess, such as religious services on Sunday, lectures, evening entertainments, and even educational courses of much merit. But in a sense its usefulness is self-limited in that its members must be young men of established character.

The next stratum of club life, or anything that approximates it, is to be found only in the saloon, as society is now constituted. It is true that "Social Settlements" are becoming more general of late years but they, too, are limited in that their chief aim is purely educational along socio-economic lines.

The situation then is this: Between the Y. M. C. A. and the saloon there is a very broad territory altogether unoccupied in any adequate sense of the word. That it should be effectively covered with a proper social institution of some sort does not require any argument.

Recognizing this fact and feeling the crying need of such a social institution for the middle classes with no limitations upon its privileges except those suggested by decency, law and order, the Salvation Army proposes to establish in the heart of the city of Boston an institution which shall meet all these requirements, to be known as The People's Palace.

The great need for an institution of this kind is seen in the large number of men who nightly fill the saloons, many of whom do not go there because of their desire for drink or the associations of the place but for the sake of companionship and the opportunities it affords for talking business, politics, etc. In other words, they are seeking to have that element in their social lives which their wealthier neighbor secures in his club. But once in the habit of frequenting the public drinkhouse it is only a matter of time when the man will become a confirmed drunkard, and thus lost to his family, to society, and worst of all, for eternity. But if the People's Palace were in operation these men would not be subjected to this awful temptation and would thus be saved to home, sobriety and the world.

It is proposed first of all to seek out a suitable location for the building. It should be central, and above all in the line of march of the evening's pulsing throng. Elegant sites on both Washington and Tremont streets have been offered the Salvation Army the relative merits of which are being seriously considered by Colonel William Evans, the officer in charge of the New England work.

THE BUILDING.

It is proposed to erect a building of five stories and basement, constructed of brick and stone, with an ornate facade which would do credit to any section of the city and to any line of business. In the basement there will be located a large reading room where current newspapers and magazines will be accessible. There will also be a library here where there will be books of a practical character along those lines in which the frequenters are interested. On the same floor, and running parallel, will be a games room. In the basement also will be the coffee saloon with first-class appointments throughout, where coffee and a light lunch will be served at the lowest possible price. And here also will be a conversational room, writing room, with free stationery, tub and shower baths, toilets, etc. The floor covering the reading room, library, and games room will be so arranged that it may be readily removed in the summer time and afford a swimming tank 22 x 75 feet. In the sub-basement will be the boilers and other mechanical appliances.

On the first floor it is planned to have a public hall capable of seating 1,000 people. On one side of the entrance will be a store where cheap goods of all description will be kept on sale. On the opposite side there will be a labor bureau where those needing employment may be able to meet those desiring help. This service will be free.

On the second floor will be the executive offices of the Salvation Army in New England. There will also be located on this floor a free dispensary, and a department for the relief of the poor. The three upper floors will be devoted to hotel purposes the rooms to be arranged largely on the famous "Mills Hotel" plan, which means that the space will be divided into rooms, and each patron will be afforded a clean bed and a warm room for the trifling sum of 25 cents a night or $1.50 per week.

Thus under one roof will be afforded to the man who is not wealthy but is self-respecting, a club life that is equal in every respect to that of the wealthy or the Y. M. C. A. Here in one building a man can have a clean, healthful, moral and religious home.

THE FINANCIAL SIDE OF IT.

To put a great enterprise like the People's Palace into operation means the expenditure of a vast sum of money, and with the Salvation Army as its promoter, it means that this sum, great as it is, must be secured through voluntary offerings of generous and charitably inclined citizens. Nor does this fact make the plan any the less feasible. In England in 1841 a legacy was left amounting to $65,000 for the purpose of providing "Intellectual Improvement and Rational Recreation and Amusement for the people living in the East End of London." To this was added contributions from time to time, and in 1884 sums ranging from $17,500 down to $500 were subscribed until the available total was $750,000, to which was subsequently added $100,000 by one firm for the purpose of establishing a technical school in connection with the institution. Nor is this prodigious generosity in these days of large fortunes confined to England. Information is just at hand to the effect that during the erection of a Salvation Army building at Cincinnati Mr. J. D. Rockefeller has donated the magnificent sum of $12,500 toward the enterprise. Also, that since Senator Hanna's death Mrs. Hanna has given a check for $1,000 toward the Salvation Army building in Cleveland.

If London can devote the magnificent sum of $475,000 for one charitable institution much on the same lines as the People's Palace will be, and if such people as Mr. Rockefeller and Mrs. Hanna of our own country can and do give such sums to the work of the Salvation Army, surely the wealthy and generous citizens of Boston and her beautiful suburbs will come nobly to the front in the matter and contribute quickly the $200,000 needed to complete the People's Palace.

At the present time the Army is paying $4,000 per year rental on the building at the corner of Pine and Washington streets which is used as a Men's hotel, meeting hall, store and restaurant. In addition to this the rental of the building occupied by the executive officers, and some other buildings used in the Army work, amounts to $1,000 more, making a total of $5,000 a year paid out by the Army for rents alone. This is 4 per cent on $125,000. This rent has been paid for a number of years, and if it had all been invested in a building it would meet at least half of the amount now required for the People's Palace.

At the present time there is about $50,000 available through bequests, donations, special efforts, collections, etc. If another $50,000 were placed in the hands of Colonel Evans he could proceed at once with his plans for the building. This sum ought to be easily secured if the matter were properly presented to the generous and charitably disposed citizens of Boston and community.

The financial assistance of all who feel able to help in this grand undertaking for the betterment of the self-respecting poor men of this great city is earnestly solicited. While the enterprise is one of vast proportions, it is also one absolutely unlimited in its results and the benefits which it will bring to those whom it is intended to help.

NEWTON BOAT CLUB.

The annual meeting of the Newton Boat Club will be held in the club house at Riverside, next Monday evening. These officers have been nominated: President Henry Whitmore, vice president, Albert P. Carter, treasurer, Charles E. Hatfield, secretary, Ernest Booth, captain, Eugene E. Petter.

At the Theatres

Coming Attractions

Tremont Theatre—"King Dodo," will hold court at the Tremont Theatre for two weeks commencing on Monday next, with Richard Golden in the title role. Henry W. Savage has surrounded Mr. Golden with a brilliant company, and the production made upon the same elaborate scale which delighted New York during the long run at Daly's Theatre, and Chicago during the eight months' run at the Studebaker. "King Dodo" is the creation of Pixley and Lunders and is classed as a comedy opera. It is full of tuneful, catchy music—melodies which are invariably whistled after a performance. Nearly all of the lyrics possess the swinging characteristics which please. The dialogue is bright and not tedious, while the company has proven itself competent to handle the sprightly themes. Richard Golden is a versatile comedian and as "Dodo" has established a new reputation for himself. A well trained chorus of pretty girls and an augmented orchestra of solo musicians enhance the production immeasurably.

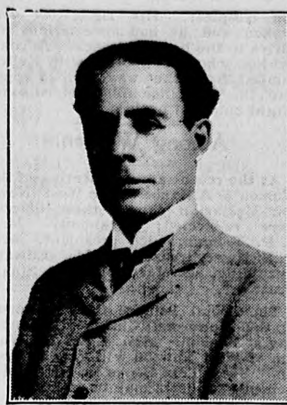

Keiths' Theatre—Robert Hilliard will be the star attraction at Keiths' the week of April 11, appearing in his latest sketch, "Number 973," which is said to be quite melodramatic in character. Mr. Hilliard plays the part of a burglar, and a talented juvenile actress figures conspicuously in it also. Edwin Holland, a capital and popular actor, will be prominent in the supporting company. Other entertainers scheduled for the same week are: Walloo and Marietta, the Viennese caricature dancers, who scored such a decided hit about a year ago; Sallie Stember, a favorite singing comedienne; Rastus and Banks, "real coon" eccentric dancers and acrobats; Hal Stevens, who makes a specialty of imitating other well known stage favorites, including Joseph Jefferson; Mrs. Wynne-Winslow, a noted soprano soloist, and Petching brothers, novelty instrumentalists. A complete change of pictures will be made in the biography.

Park Theatre—So pronounced has been the popular success of that laughing play-novelty, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" at the Park Theatre, Boston, that, although it has already enjoyed an engagement of four weeks at that house, its run has been specially extended for three more weeks. New England play-goers will therefore have the better part of this month of April, in which to avail themselves of this delightful treat—in case they have not already sat under the mirthsome spell of cheerful Mrs. Wiggs and her queer neighbors of the Patch. The piece, with its quaint humor and universal heart interest, has easily proved to be the most successful attraction that has been offered before the Boston footlights this season. A special matinee will be given in honor of Patriot's Day, and two gala performances will be held. It may also be noted that Monday evening of next week, April 11, will be observed as World's Fair night, when everyone who attends the play will receive a beautifully colored and thoroughly complete map of the World's Fair Grounds.

Grand Opera House—"Brandon Tyman's stirring romance of Irish life, "Robert Emmet, the Days of 1803," will be the attraction at the Boston Grand Opera House next week. "Robert Emmet" is an extremely difficult theme to handle owing to the tragic character of the story, but in this case here is abundant humor furnished by the introduction of several characters whose witticisms and humorous sayings are unctuous and thoroughly racy. The play is based on a most interesting historical subject and the author is said to have gone to the extreme pains to reproduce several of the scenes historically correct in detail. The County Board of Directors of the A. O. H. has voted to witness the opening performance of this romantic, historical Irish drama and about 300 members, with their families will attend on Monday night, April 11.

Colonial Theatre—"Mother Goose," indisputably the peerless spectacular production of the century, has proven a powerful magnet at the Colonial Theatre, and last week played to the largest receipts ever taken in a Boston theatre during the final week of Lent. Monday evening witnessed the beginning of the third week of this dazzling entertainment, and as it is impossible to conceive a performance more fitted to the Easter tide festivity the remarkable prosperity that has attained to this production from the night of its opening performance will be maintained. There is a great temptation to a lunch into superlatives concerning this stupendous production of Klaw and Erlanger. Certainly no extravaganza worthy of comparison with it has ever been seen in this city, and that is saying a good deal, for, in the ordinary course of stage development, it would stand to reason that the greater mechanical facilities at the disposal of stage mechanism would come into more direct play in this later day. The music is harmonious and catchy; the fun rollicking and in good taste; the specialties novel and entirely different from those seen in any other entertainment of this kind. From a more than casual study of "Mother Goose," it deserves the great success and the lavish praise that has been bestowed upon it by playgoers from all parts of New England. A special holiday will be given on Patriots' Day, April 19.

RICHARD GOLDEN in KING DODO, Tremont Theatre, Boston.

Columbia Theatre—Next week's attraction at the Columbia Theatre will be the thrilling melodramatic success, "To Die at Dawn," by E. Laurence Lee, which begins an engagement of one week next Monday night. The leading role is played by Miss Elsie Crescy, a beautiful and talented emotional actress who has already won her way into the favor of Boston theatre-goers by her artistic work at the head of her own company which appeared at Music Hall last season in another play. The opening night of Miss Crescy's engagement at the Columbia will be a notable event as that night has been set apart as a testimonial to the popular advertising agent of the theatre, Mr. George F. Collier.

Boston Music Hall—For the first time a "jack knife" bridge effect is used on the stage, in Wm. L. Robert's new comedy drama, "On the Bridge at Midnight," which comes to Boston Music Hall next week. It can well be imagined how difficult the building of this sort of thing is and how expensive to transport along with the other massive scenery which is also carried. George Klant, who owns the piece, has solved it and has found a way to move his production—which cost him before the curtain went up on the first performance, about $10,000. The production is said to be fully up to the high standard invariably found in all plays presented under Mr. Klant's direction. Scrupulous attention has been paid to the smallest details.

Majestic Theatre—One of the most successful musical comedy stars that has gone before the public for approval in recent years is that "funny little Jew," George Sidney, who comes to the Majestic theatre next Monday, under the management of E. D. Stair in the second edition of "Busy Izzy." Mr. Sidney was a success from the very opening night of his starring tour, and his visits through the country last season were crowned with glory. He will be cordially welcomed by the patrons of the Majestic when he comes here next Monday as he has always been a favorite with Boston amusement seekers. He scored a terrific hit at that theatre last season when he appeared with Ward and Vokes, with whom he was formerly associated. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons during Mr. Sidney's engagement.

Globe Theatre—Lulu Glaser and "Dolly Varden" at the Globe Theatre have again succeeded in attracting a series of large audiences who have simply gone into ecstasies over the dainty comedienne and her merry company. All rules and precedents have been broken by this attraction in making a return trip to Boston so soon, and again doing business after the run had once been interrupted. There is little reason to wonder at this however, when it is considered that "Dolly Varden" is one of the very best musical attractions of the day. It is absolutely free from anything bordering on vulgarity, and the music proves that Julian Edwards, the composer, is able to find new melodies that are tuneful, and yet at all times "musically" while his orchestrations are the best that have been heard here for a long time.

TO NURSING MOTHERS.

Are you worn out? Tired and completely run down? You have no vitality, no energy. You are nervous, weak, fretful and cry easily.

For just such cases as yours Vin-Tone has been prepared. It overcomes that tired, weak feeling and puts new energy into body and mind.

Do not be skeptical and refuse to believe what eminent physicians pronounce to be a fact.

Doctors who have made a deep study of this subject, have, after much patience, experimenting and expense, succeeded in compounding Vin-Tone. And having been convinced of its wonderful strengthening power, they now send it out into the world to do its work among poor weary human beings. We are glad to be able to print the good news that a remedy has at last been discovered which takes right hold of any worn-out system and builds a foundation to health and happiness. To the nursing mother this will come like a God-send.

and a steam fire engine as well as a number of hose wagons. Such an alarm also requires the call men to leave their usual vocations and assist the permanent men.Grass and brush fires can be easily handled by the permanent men alone and a hose wagon is the only piece of apparatus needed. Where telephones are within easy reach of all sections of this city, there is no possible excuse for the ringing of bell alarms
for this class of fires.

CRAM-ULHER.

Eliot church, last Wednesday evening, was the scene of a pretty Easter wedding, when Miss Maude Uhler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Frank Uhler of Nonantum street became the bride of Mr. William Samson Bartlett Cram. The church was decorated with palms and lilies in recognition of the season and filled with the many friends of these popular young people.
The bride was gowned in white chiffon cloth trimmed with embroidered chiton and pearls, and wore the customary tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas and lilies of the valley. She was attended by Miss Madeline Uhler of New York, the maid of honor, who wore a gown of white silk net, with a girde of light green, and carried a bouquet of mignonette and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaids, dressed alike in white point d'esprit with girdles and sashes of light green, and carrying bouquets of pink sweet peas,
were Miss Elizabeth Hyde of Hartford, Conn., Miss Helen Sumner of Canton, Mass., Miss Helen L. Douglas of Brooklyn, N. Y. and Miss Hope
R. Mudge of Newton. Little Miss Marjorie Uhler, sister of the bride, dressed in white point d'esprit, with a basket of pink sweet peas, preceded the bride to the altar.The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Chas. H. Daniels of South
Framingham, assisted by Rev. Dr.
W. H. Davis, pastor of the church.
The groom was attended by Mr. R.
Jackson Cram of Newton as best man.
The ushers were Messrs Arthur H.
Sawyer of Boston, William Smith of Winchester, Robert Frost of Allston, Schuyler Clark of Allston, Clarence Manard of Roxbury and John G.
Mudge of Newton.A reception followed at the residence of the bride, 52 Nonantum street.Mr. and Mrs. Cram will reside on Shorncliffe road, Newton, where they will be at home on May 4 and 25.

SMITH-HARRIS

Miss Florence Lillian Harris, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Price Harris of Newtonville and Mr. Wilfred Dwight
Smith, a prominent club and society man of Auburndale were united in marriage at the home of the bride, 119 Austin street, last Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, by Rev. Richard T. Loring, rector of St. John's church.The bride was gowned in white peau de soie with chiffon and duchess lace trimmings, and her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms.
Her bouquet was of brides roses.
Miss Edith Mowry, a cousin of the bride was the maid of honor, and she was dressed in blue silk muslin with torchon net and peau de soie trimmings and carried pink roses.Mr. Arthur C. Smith of Waltham, brother of the groom was the best man, and Messrs Sydney Bartlett of Webster and Frank Whitney and Arthur Paul of Waltham were the ushers.A largely attended reception followed until 10 o'clock when the happy couple left for a wedding journey to Palm Beach, Fla.The house was beautifully decorated with potted plants and Easter lilies,
green and white being the predomi-nating colors.The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Harris and Mr.
Dwight Smith, and guests were presented from the Newtons, Waltham Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Brookline.

HILL-PAINE.

Miss Nellie Gertrude Paine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilman B. Paine of this city, became the bride of Mr.
Edward Marcy Hill of Boston last Monday evening. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock in the South Congregational church of Boston by the Rev. Edward Cummings, and was witnessed by a crush of friends and relatives of the young people.The bride was beautifully gowned in white crepe de chine with trimmings of Point Venice lace and chiffon, and was attended by the Misses Alice M. Webber, Grace L.
Scotfield, Elizabeth Leavitt of Newton and Miss Florence M. Welch of Allston as bridesmaids. These young ladies were charming in white mousseline de soie and carried bouquets of pink roses. The ushers were Messrs Oscar J. Ives of Salem, Charles E. Clapp of Boston, Edward W. Taylor of Lexington, George A. Sawin of Cambridge, Robert M. Beakie of a largely attended reception at the Tuilleries, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Paine

and Mr. and Mrs. Levi C. Hill assisting the bride and groom in receiving.Mr. and Mrs. Hill will be at home after May 1st at 333 Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

HATCH-LOOMIS.

The wedding of Mr. Herbert Fay
Hatch of this city to Miss Grace
Elizabeth Loomis, daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. Charles H. Loomis of Medford took place at the residence of the bride, 49 Oakland street, Medford, last Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock.The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James L. Hill, D. D. of Salem.The bride was gowned in white liberty supreme over white taffeta and trimmed with duchess lace, and was unattended by bridesmaids.Following the ceremony a reception was held until 9 o'clock which was largely attended by friends and relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Hatch were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Loomis and Mr. and Mrs.
George E. Hatch. The ushers were Mr. W. H. Holbrook of Newton and Messrs. Harold G. Loomis, Arthur
T. Loomis and Dr. Charles W. Mc-Pherson of Medford.Mr. and Mrs. Hatch will reside at the Chestnut Hill, Commonwealth avenue, Newton Centre, where they will be at home after May 1st.Chandler and Barber, the well known hardware firm at 122 Summer
st., Boston, whose advertisement appears on the first page, have built up a splendid business in seeds, and now carry the largest line of these goods in the city. They also carry a full stock of hardware and garden tools and their location is most convenient to Newton patrons.

A Serious Accident

A serious and shocking accident took place Saturday morning at Newton. William J. Kelley, a coachman employed by Mr. F. S. Rollins of Newton was driving a light express wagon on Washington street, when the horse became frightened and ran away. Crossing Richardson street bridge, the animal ran down Richardson street and in making a wide turn into Centre street came in contact with an express wagon which was coming out of Vernon street. This caused the frightened beast to swerve suddenly to the left and Kelley was thrown out and down between the shafts of the wagon. In falling his foot and elbow became entangled with the whiffletree and hanging in this frightful position he was dragged to the railroad bridge on Centre street before the horse could be stopped. When taken out Kelley was unconscious and was removed to the police station and later to the Newton Hospital. His right leg was broken and he had some serious injuries to the head and back. A companion who was riding with Kelley jumped from the wagon when opposite the post office and received some slight cuts and bruises.

The Master Painters.

Representatives of the Master Painters' Association of Boston, Cambridge, Somerville, Hyde Park, Lawrence and Newton met in the Newton Association rooms in Nonantum Building last Tuesday evening and unanimously decided that "existing conditions do not warrant any increase in wages at the present time." The meeting was largely attended by master painters of this vicinity and an orchestra and refreshments ended the evening one of great enjoyment as well as of business.

Catherine Simpson Dresser.

A peculiarly sad death is that of little Catherine Simpson Dresser, the 6-year-old daughter and only child of Mrs. Prudence Simpson Dresser, which occurred at the home of Capt. Samuel Simpson in this city at 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Services were conducted at the residence Monday afternoon by Rev. R. S. Burwell, assisted by Rev. T. B. Fisher.

This little tot was the pet of all who knew her and was one of the brightest, happiest, gentlest children of the town. Her intellect was far in advance of her years and physical development, and notwithstanding her extreme youth she had developed wonderful musical talent and was already a most wondrous little woman. Her death is not only a severe blow to those of the home in which she was such a delight and joy but to all who knew her—Gallatin, Tenn., Semi Weekly News, March 30.

NEWTON SCHOOLS.

Supt. of Schools, F. W. Atkinson, Outlines Present Conditions.

IMPORTANT RECOMMENDATIONS IN AN ADDRESS TO THE FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Ladies of the Women's Clubs of Newton.

The schools of Newton have behind them a long and honorable record. Realizing that the present condition is the direct outcome of the past, I have supplemented my own brief observation of practices now obtaining by a study of the school reports for the last thirty years or more. I have done this with considerable care from a conviction that it is essential to conserve all past excellence. Such study of Newton's educational situation as I have made thus far leads me to think that the task now before us consists first, broadening in various ways the work of the schools, taking care that we do not at the same time weaken it; second, bringing the eight or nine village school systems into closer unity and third, into individualizing all school instruction.

Were this paper to be my only public discussion of educational matters I should at once take up the most important question of all, and that is, how can the public school reach the individual? Or in other words, how can there be the school system—which is absolutely necessary when there are several thousand children to be educated—and at the same time, a proper conservation of the child's individuality?

To prepare the way for future discussions let us consider as in some detail the main features of Newton's school system.

SCHOOL ACCOMMODATIONS

In general, the number of school houses to be found in a municipality, is largely determined by the form of school organization which circumstances compel, or the judgment of the governing authorities approves. Concentration of pupils which tends to insure the minimum of cost and the maximum in efficiency has not been possible in Newton. The present school accommodations comprise twenty-five school-houses, the aggregate value of which, including the furniture and land, is in round numbers one million and a quarter dollars. The value of the high school buildings, furniture and land is only a little less than $300,000. That of the new Mason School is not far from $200,000.

The beautiful Bigelow school plant represents an investment of $125,000. School work is going on in one hundred and fifty-nine rooms. Newton may well be proud of this showing. These buildings furnish convincing evidence of the intelligence and public spirit of the citizens of the city. Our school buildings are, most of them, well adapted to the uses for which they were intended. They represent an economical outlay of money. The high school building, for instance, although costing $100,000 less than the Springfield high school building will accommodate more pupils and in almost as satisfactory a manner. High school attendance in Newton increases about four per cent annually and within three or four years the question of an additional building will come up. Without any means of doubt this new building should be in close proximity to the present one. A modern school building will soon be erected at the Upper Falls. It is to be hoped that sufficient land will be purchased to provide a generous playground which every school should have and use. The Jackson school building at Nonantum does not furnish the object lesson that a building in that quarter should to the deserving but poorer people of that neighborhood. If any portion of the city needs to have a substantial, commodious, and attractive school accommodations it is Nonantum. There should be in this district, if in no other, a good-sized, well-graded, and neatly kept playground. I am not sure but what there should be opportunity for school gardens.

The diffusion of our school population over wide areas, the influence it exerts on our school system must be appreciated if we are to understand fully this system's relatively high expansiveness and the difficulties of its administration. The number of school sites has been decreased by one; the Oak Hill school having been closed and its pupils transported at the city's expense to Newton Centre. This consolidation means a saving of about $1,000 and redounds to the advantage of the Oak Hill boys and girls. While no further decrease in number of schools may be looked for, it seems evident that in the future only the clearest necessity should induce us to add to the number.

HEATING AND VENTILATION.

Among the appointments of a school building, the heating and ventilating apparatus is of prime importance. No building of any size should now be constructed without its system of fans for furnishing fresh air to every room. With forty pupils in a room the air becomes foul unless it is constantly changed. The breathing in of vitiated air is the cause of much sickness. From time to time the air should be tested by careful analysis made by an expert.

As we value the health of children, we should constantly look to the quality of air they are breathing while in school. Such an analysis would be worth more than the testimony of our senses. The presence of more than one per cent of carbonic acid gas is generally considered detrimental to health. I do not believe many of our school rooms are defective, but I am however convinced that a few of them are. There are in all eight schools assembly halls; they are used for general exercises

SCHOOL HALLS.

They are not, however, used as much as they should be. A liberal policy should prevail in their rental and use by outside parties for educational and general culture purposes. It is a distinct gain for the school when it becomes in the broadest sense the educational centre of the community. Lectures, concerts, public meetings, etc., may properly be held in these school halls. Personally, I go so far to say that clubs, classes in art, French, German, literature, history, politics should be allowed the use of school class rooms. These were permitted when I was headmaster of the Springfield high school, with no disastrous effects so far as I know. Newton is near Boston and needs not, perhaps, to provide its concerts and lecture courses. There is in this gain but also a loss. I am not sure that the younger generation, especially of the poorer families, is as well provided with musical and intellectual opportunities as children of a self-centred place like Springfield which must provide its own entertainment. This entertainment is near at hand and the theatre, the symphony concert and the lecture is attended by a larger proportion of young people.

SCHOOL FURNITURE.

There are over 6,300 children in our schools and one-half of these are able to have a seat or desk adjusted to them. The equipment of a new school building like the Bigelow, the Peirce, the Charles C. Burr, or the Mason and that of the Davis, the Jackson or the Franklin school are strikingly different. It is far easier to secure a generous appropriation for the proper furnishing of a new building than it is to obtain a small appropriation to better the equipment of an old building. There are 5,000 sittings more than there are pupils; this the outsider can not understand. If all children were of the same school grade and lived in the same district this discrepancy would not exist. Children can not be measured out like so many potatoes. The eighth grade of a certain building may be thirty this year and forty-five the next year. The districts are so remote from each other that the surplus room in one village is not available to grown the accommodations that have been provided. The necessity here in Newton of considering the wants—school accommodations and school furniture of each district separately adds greatly to the expense of the system.

supply the wants of another, in which the number of school children has out-

report of 1872, the year before Newton became a city and those contained in the report just published will show the growth that has taken place in our school system.

1872—School houses 15; aggregated value $350,000; number of school-rooms 55; sittings 2919; average number belonging 2174; average attendance 2,000.
1903—School houses 26; aggregated value $1,250,000; number of school-rooms 159; sittings 6861; average number belonging 5629; average attendance 5000 plus.

It will be seen from this table that the number of school houses has nearly doubled; the aggregate value of school accommodations has more than tripled as has also the number of school-rooms occupied and the average number belonging.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The average whole number of pupils in the high school in 1872 was 148; in 1903, 770 plus. This is an increase of over 500 per cent. The number of teachers in the high school has increased from 7 to 28—a less proportionate increase in the teaching force than in attendance. That is, although more courses are now offered and the elective system prevails, the teaching force is less, proportionately, than it was in 1872 when nearly all of the pupils pursued one of two courses and there were no electives. Then those who attended the high school thirty years ago were able to receive more individual attention from the teachers than the pupils now receive.

Although the average number of children in attendance upon the primary and grammar schools has increased 300 per cent, the teaching force in these schools has not increased 200 per cent. There were 73 primary and grammar teachers in 1872; and 144 in 1903.

The amount paid to teachers in 1873 was $55,000 as compared with $160,000 in 1903. This is 300 per cent increase in expenditure for teachers and is coincident, apparently, with the increase in attendance. There are now no slightly compensated apprentice teachers gaining at the expense of the pupils as there were then. As far as I am able to learn the incidental fund including the cost of books, stationery, printing, etc., has only increased a few hundred dollars during the time that the attendance and teaching force have tripled. In the past, the cost of supplying the maps and globes, and other special school supplies the Newton schools have been poorly equipped. An initial appropriation of $2000 was made this year for the purpose of supplying the maps and globes, etc., much needed. It is the purpose of the School Board to request a similar appropriation for the next four years. It must be remembered that a skilled teacher's efforts are greatly aided if he is in possession of the necessary aids and appliances.

MASTERS.

Because there are seven or eight school districts more masters are needed in a city of equal population which is more concentrated. The village master was evidently an inheritance from the district school system, which existed in the early days of the town. The salary for masters has risen from $700 to $2000. This amount Newton now pays is necessary to procure and retain masters of high standing. With the high cost of living in Newton it is to be questioned whether we should not raise teachers' and masters' salaries. The people of the various Newtons have demanded and still demand that there be at least one master in each district. This is perfectly proper, but it should also be understood that such a demand means a large number of masters here in proportion to the school population than almost anywhere else in the United States.

TEACHERS' AND MASTERS' SALARIES.

Because upon the street, in the clubs and in the public print, it is alleged that the schools of Newton are very expensive schools, I want to show that there are very good reasons why they are—even at the risk of being charged with undue repetition. Unduly expensive they are not. Of three hundred and fifty-three towns and cities in Massachusetts Newton paid on an average in 1901 and 1902 more per child for education than any but ten. In the years 1870 and 1871 Newton was second in the list, being surpassed in her liberality to her children then only by Brookline. In 1883 and 1886 she was first in the list as regards expense per pupil. She is now surpassed by Weston, Nantant, Brookline, Burlington, Lincoln, Hopedale, Hull, Milton, Wellesley and Belmont.

The cost per pupil for Newton which is first on the list is $56.11, for Newton, $36.44. It is interesting to note, that one parent in the town of Weston sends his children to Newton, paying the tuition which is charged for out of town pupils. Perhaps if we kept in mind the fact that tuition charges in private schools vary often range from one hundred to one hundred and fifty dollars, as well as the general demand that the instruction afforded by the public schools shall be fully as good as that afforded by the private schools, we should oftener wonder that the cost in the former is kept as low as it is. There are cities and towns that ought to spend money for education with a liberality which cannot be generally practiced. I do not urge extravagance, but only that a peculiar responsibility rests upon these communities which possess large valuations. The burden laid upon Newton property for education, when compared with the burden borne by most cities and towns of the state, is very light, even when the former city is expending thirty-six to thirty-seven dollars per head. According to the last report of the State Board of Education, (1901 and 1902), 303 cities and towns of the state called upon each dollar of their valuation for a larger contribution for the support of schools than did Newton, while only 45 called for a smaller contribution. In the last year referred to, the sum of $3.27 for each $1000 of valuation was set aside in Newton for "support of schools." The town appropriating the greatest amount, West Haverhill, spent $9.20 on each thousand dollars of valuation. Educationally, Newton is certainly living beyond its means. In the last report of the School Board is this significant paragraph:

"Without a greatly increased expense for roads, fire department, police, water and street lighting, our city could handle a doubled population, but the expense of maintaining the schools steadily increases with the growth of the school population and in about the same proportion. The principal school expense is for teachers' salaries, and this expense varies directly with the number of pupils. It does not seem possible to avoid a gradual increase of expense, if the efficiency of the schools is to be maintained."

"Report, 1903.
In closing this inquiry into the relatively larger cost of our schools, let me call attention also to the fact that the proportion of pupils attending High School instruction is the highest in the state and that no High School furnishes a higher grade of instruction. One source of the efficiency as well as the expense is the unusually large number of masters employed in the local High School.

THE TEACHERS

The character of our schools must depend largely upon the quality of the instruction that is given in them; that is, upon the qualifications of the teachers. That same enlightened policy to which we are indebted for good buildings, has enabled the school board of this city to secure many excellent teachers, who are interested in their work, and who are alive to the demands of the time. For the proper training of the child the highest qualities of mind and heart are needed. Magnetic power that attracts and wins the heart and inspires the mind and soul with a love of the pure and true; the gentleness that disarms, and the firmness that convinces; the kindness and courtesy which proceed only from the heart that is in sympathy with the child; a consecration to one's work, which creates a similar devotion in others; a generous sympathy that begets love; a faith and patience that are not wearied in waiting for the harvest; these are moral qualities; but they are the first essentials of the successful teacher. These are natural qualities; they exist in the person, and can not be supplied from without. No normal school can furnish them to its graduates. To these qualities of mind and heart should be added the knowledge that comes from a special training in the art of teaching, and a careful study of its theory. The best methods by which to instruct, to inculcate, and to quicken the mental powers, should be made familiar by practice and observation. The ability to direct, rather than repress, the natural activities of the child, so that they may contribute to his education, should be acquired. Methods of discipline should be subjected to the most searching analysis. Natural penalties for forbidden actions, whose object is to educate the child to a larger power of self-control, should be distinguished from those artificial punishments that only serve as a safety-valve for anger or some worse passion. The School Board through its former superintendents has exercised careful consideration in securing the services of only those teachers who have passed through a special course of training. It has understood and recognized the value of this training. Now that High School subjects have pushed their way into the upper grades, the need of college graduates as teachers of these grades is beginning to be recognized.

Professional training and thorough mastery of the subjects taught do not necessarily imply successful public school teaching. It is unreasonable to expect that all who enter the difficult work of teaching will be successful. Experience alone can determine a teacher's fitness or unfitness. My sympathies go out toward any one who fails as a teacher. I know well the difficulties that such an one has to meet; but my sympathies go out even more strongly toward the children, whose time and energies are wasted by the retention of an incompetent teacher. A superintendent is grossly negligent in the performance of his duty and a shame to his high calling if out of charity to one he keeps him. The schools are for the pupils; their highest interests should be the sole consideration. As regards the employment of teachers, our schools should be conducted on strict business principles. It is not enough that teachers are deserving and faithful. The question is, are they able to discharge the duties of a teacher? It should be borne in mind that the highest standard that can be fixed will be low indeed compared with the magnitude of the interests at stake. There are excellent teachers leaving us every year because of higher salaries offered elsewhere. Every thing, financially possible should be done to reward our successful teachers, who are in the large majority, and to prevent the serious interruptions in our school systems from so many excellent teachers leaving us every year.

A judicious course of study is needful for every system of public instruction. This must constantly be modified from time to time just as the school system itself must grow with the progress of the age and be modified to meet the larger demands that are constantly being made upon it. The work of each grade for each term must not be too minutely mapped out. The once accepted idea that there must be strict uniformity in text-books used in a single school system has been exploded. There is always danger that a teacher will keep too closely to the course of study and thus lose individuality. A certain uniformity of work of similar grades is necessary that transfers of pupils from one school to another may be made without loss of time to the pupil, or the class which he enters. A course of study is a guide to the teachers; it furnishes the parents, and the public generally, with such information, as will enable them to judge of the general scope of our system of instruction. During the last fifty years, the studies pursued in the common schools have greatly increased in number. In the early days the girls and boys were trained to read and spell, to write and cipher, the chief energies of teachers and pupils being given to arithmetic. There was no history, no geography, no grammar. As years went by, and in face of more or less opposition, these latter branches gained a foothold in the schools. At a much later time came instruction in drawing and singing—branches long regarded by the public as "extras," well enough for the exceptional pupil who could be taught to draw or to sing, but not properly to be provided at public expense. In recent years there have been introduced into public schools, physiology, physical training, sewing, systematic study, Latin, physics and algebra. The course of study has been thus enriched. It may be asked—is it not true that this enrichment has impoverished the instruction in arithmetic, spelling, you ask, the instruction less practical? My answer is "no." This enrichment which is real has been made possible, in part by better methods of teaching (the text-book is followed less slavishly and the instruction is more oral); 2d, by omitting abstract technicalities and useless details in arithmetic, grammar and other branches of study; 3d, by correlating more closely the subjects of instruction. Although the present course of study covers a larger variety of work, the pressure is no greater upon the average pupil than formerly. In fact, I think the larger variety of school work has tended to lessen the high pressure about which there was so much complaint a few years ago. We do observe now and then in the high school something of this high pressure. This is in part because the college entrance requirements tend to restrict high school instruction and will not permit us, at present, to give the variety that is essential to health.

The present grammar school course of study undoubtedly needs revision; too much, for instance, is outlined for the eighth grade. It may be necessary to postpone the beginning of Latin to the ninth grade. After all, the school exists for the pupils. And it is to the pupils I wish now to direct your thought. There are numerous questions that merit our attention; there is the question of smaller classes; but smaller classes mean more teachers and more school rooms; and these in turn require a larger appropriation. Any great increase in the teaching force without a proportionate increase in school attendance is not at present to be expected but the city might well furnish to each large building an extra teacher for the general purpose of giving special attention to backward pupils. Such an arrangement would reduce greatly the number of non-promoted pupils. Daily medical inspection of school children should be inaugurated as a "city health protective measure." The effectiveness of such a system as safeguarding children's health is being daily demonstrated all about us, Boston, Waltham, etc.

Should not too there be a physical examination of our school children of all grades?

Ought we not to get specialists to examine the eyes, ears, throats and noses of the children?

If time permitted I should like to take up the whole question of recesses, playgrounds, athletics, calisthenics, military drill, etc. We have paid so much attention to the intellectual well-being of the child that we have either forgotten or given meagre attention to his physical well-being. Right here our school system needs broadening. A swimming tank centrally located and good playgrounds distributed over the city are needed to supplement the elementary forms of gymnastics now afforded by the schools.

In closing there is one question I wish to dwell upon particularly and that is, is it possible here in Newton to inaugurate a plan of child study for the purpose of obtaining a better knowledge of the capacities and the environment of the individual pupil with a view of adopting instruction to his individual needs?

The whole spirit of such a plan would be in the interests of the pupils. The co-operants would be the kindergarten, the primary and grammar school teachers, the high school instructors, and last, and perhaps most important, the parents.

Suppose, for instance, next fall a letter like this should go to the parent (Continued on 7th page)

a necessity for the society man or woman. The scarcer and more expensive they are, the more fashionable they become. What is a good judge of quality and value? Very few of the buyers. They must trust some one. We offer our services in this line. Over forty years experience in the business, with facilities for buying equaled by few, we are able to offer you a better trade than you are likely to get elsewhere, with written guarantee to return eighty per cent. in cash for any diamond within two years of purchase. Every indication points to a rise in prices. We recommend you to buy diamonds now as an investment.

Improvement in Newton Centre.

As a livery, boarding and sale stable contributes its share toward the establishment of a community, so, the people of Newton Centre and its surroundings, naturally, feel pleased over the accession to proprietorship by Mr. C. B. Holden, of the livery stable, formerly owned and operated by F. L. Richardson and Co., now to be known as Holden's Stable.

Mr. Holden is only a mild sort of a stranger to Newton Centre, having been connected with the stable department of the Metropolitan Laundry for 11 or more years, whose duties brought him to Newton Centre, in connection with the other territory, which they cover by their route system. Mr. Holden also conducted there a very successful sale department in high grade horses for gentlemen's use, in fact, so successful, that it was thought best to make it a distinctive and separate business, and for such purpose, Richardson's stable of Newton Centre was purchased, where a much needed renovation is rapidly going on, which, when completed will put it on a favorable comparison with any stable in this city.

Mr. Holden comes so well recommended from so many good people that we bespeak for him a prosperous and successful career. It is his intention not only to conduct a first class livery and boarding stable but to import to this section from his former home in northern New York, such high grade horses as may be thought suitable for these parts. It is a well known fact that Northern New York is distinctively known as a horse farming country. The rigors of its season and fertile soil have at all times produced a superior grade of animals, which seem to thrive and do best in this changeable New England climate. The most prominent shipper there, Mr. E. A. Whitney, of Brighton, N. Y., has been induced, through his friendship for Mr. Holden to bring shipments here. Mr. Whitney, a life-long resident of that country and the largest shipper of high grade horses for many years, has demonstrated that it is possible to do such a thing as an honest horse transaction, and he, in common with others believes that most parties would prefer the quiet atmosphere of Newton Centre, with its good streets, for the selection of what is many times to become a part of the family, to the "hurry burly" of the ordinary sale stable, with all its environments.

A lot of strictly high grade horses, that it is a pleasure to look at, has arrived at this stable. To all lovers of good horse flesh, we highly recommend a visit, where parties will be shown with equal pleasure, whether intending purchase or not. Good judges have pronounced this lot of horses one of the best that they have ever seen. Parties can depend upon reliable and truthful statements in the description of these horses.

Electric Power.

We wish to interest you in electric power. We wish to place you in possession of some facts and figures on the efficiency, convenience and economy of this power.

NOTE THE ADVANTAGES:

Convenience.—Which includes ease of handling—small floor space—no fires to feed, no gauges to watch—no engineer required.

Cleanliness.—Freedom from odors—no ashes, oil, water, or mess of any sort.

Reliability.—Always available for 24 hours a day. If you want to run overtime you have no trouble. There are practically no breakdowns and stops for repairs are short and infrequent.

Economy.—Chiefly where the use of power is intermittent, as in elevators, printing machinery and every shop where machines have frequent stoppages. You pay for no waste power.

Make an appointment at your office for an hour that suits your convenience, that we may discuss the above matter with you for your benefit and ours.

PRIZES FOR POSTERS.

The Waltham Business Men's Association offer five prizes—$5, $5, $3, $3, $1,—to the pupils of the surrounding towns for posters to be exhibited in the store windows during Merchant's Week, to be held in Waltham, May 9th to 14th inclusive.

Five prizes will be awarded for the five best pictures or design drawing, either in colors or monochrome; the size of the card to be twenty-two inches high, and any width to suit the design, leaving four inches at bottom of card for printing.

Judges will award the prizes at the end of Merchants' week, May 14th, and will be guided by the original and artistic value of the designs drawn. Send your poster with your name and address on back of card, not later than May 5th, 1904 to William A. Webster, 111 Moody street, Waltham, Mass. For the Business Men's Association.

THE WAGES QUESTION.

Address of Hon. Carroll D. Wright Before the Civic Club of Newton.

THEORIES AND DIFFICULTIES CONFRONTING THE ECONOMIST IN TREATING THIS QUESTION.

The wages question in all its breadth is perhaps the most important branch of political economy, certainly it is the most difficult. It is the most important because labor is at the basis of all values and the workers for wages constitute the great mass of every community. It is the most difficult because of the varied and complicated conditions surrounding labor. It is also difficult because one can not trace the wages system, as we understand it, to any birthday. It grew out of older systems, and although wages have been paid since the time when one man was able to utilize the labor of another, and contemporaneously with the slave and feudal systems of labor, the wages system is, nevertheless, considered the modern system so far as remuneration of industrial services is concerned. Philosophically, the feudal system succeeded the slave system of labor, and the wages system the feudal, but chronologically this statement is not correct.

In discussing and analyzing the wages question we must consider the other systems, for a correct conclusion of the growth of industrial methods. The slave system of labor, so abhorrent to the minds of all people at the present time, was in reality an enormous step in the progress of civilization. Crude tribes, when engaged in warfare, were in the habit of slaughtering their captives. The captive was in the way of the captor, and the easiest and most economical method of disposing of him was to take his life. But after a while the captors realized that while they were engaged in active warfare they could utilize the labor of their captives, and thus secure food and other supplies for a larger number of men in active service. Out of this grew the economic value of the captive, who in turn had a further economic value by the power of his captor to sell him, thus further inducing the captor to save the captive's life. The captive became a medium of exchange, and this custom continued through ages and ages.

However, as the northern nations were settled in their conquests, the slavery and commerce of the human species began to decline and were finally abolished. And here comes in the feudal system, which many writers insist was the result of the abolition of slavery. "There was not a state or seignory that did not want all the men it could muster, either to defend their own right or to dispute that of their neighbors. Thus every man was taken into service; whom they armed, they must trust; and there could be no trust but in free men. Thus the barrier between the two classes was thrown down, and slavery was no more heard of in the west."

The slavery of the industrial classes has characterized the early history of all civilized races, and as forcing men to labor, despite the natural reluctance inherent in barbarous tribes, seems to have been a necessary element of progress. This must be considered always in any analysis of the wages question.

The feudal system, which arose in Europe during the tenth, eleventh, twelfth, and thirteenth centuries, was a political system, and it was brought into existence out of the barbarism following the fall of the Roman Empire. This system consisted of a sort of hierarchy, at the head of which was the king. Then came the barons; then the vassals or retainers; then the lesser nobilities; then the freedmen or lords of the manor, and finally the serfs. Each in turn owed service to the next above him, and each above protected the class below. The essence of the system, therefore, was service and protection. The remuneration of the serfs consisted of the use of the land and other property of the lord and protection. Under this system labor was degraded, but not so degraded as under slavery. There was, in some sense, freedom, but it was confined to very narrow limits. The serf went with the land; he was a part of the proprietary possessions of the lord of the manor.

When the feudal system passed away, or while it was passing away, the wages system arose, although, as I have said, wages have been paid through all time of which history gives any record; but until after the feudal system passed away and the new system became recognized, there was really no freedom in any contract. The theoretical essence of the wages system is the freedom of contract for services, the same as in the older time there were contracts for commodities. The freedom to contract for services is a modern recognition of the rights of labor.

In these preliminary statements are to be found the difficulties which political economy has encountered in discussing the wages question. There have been many assumptions, many theories, of the laws underlying wages, and many definitions of them. These theories are chiefly three in number: First, in modern times we find the old and exploded wage-fund theory, which in various forms long prevailed in England. Adam Smith, Ricardo, Malthus, and Mill were among the most conspicuous defenders of this theory, which, in brief, was that a definite sum was annually destined to pay wages of productive laborers, and hence if one set of such laborers got their wages raised by combination or by philanthropy, no advantage was to be obtained by the laboring classes as a whole, because there must of necessity be a corresponding reduction in the wages of the rest. This theory has been abandoned by all economists, as originally developed, although there are some teachers of economics who assert that it contains valuable truth, and that when properly stated is wholly true.

Out of this discussion grew another theory, which is that production furnishes the true measure of wages. The late President Walker was the first clearly to advocate this theory, and he argued that the wage-fund theory and its socialistic corollary were wholly false, and that wages themselves depend upon the productivity of labor. He held that wages are not dependent upon capital, because men without capital can and often do employ labor, provided they can know that the laborers employed will produce enough value to enable them to pay the laborers out of the product and leave a balance for the employer.

I need not at this time dwell upon other theories of wages which belong to co-operation, profit sharing, and various other methods of remuneration, except to state that under the wages system, as outlined by Doctor Walker, the wage-worker receives in advance from capital the measure of his labor, this measure being recouped by the returns from the product, the wage-worker thus being paid for his services before the employer receives any return from his co-operation with labor; while under co-operation pure and simple the wage-earner, who is the co-operator, must wait until the product is secured, marketed, and paid for. This, perhaps, is the real, underlying reason why co-operation, in its simple form and when applied to production, has not succeeded.

All these theories and the difficulties which economists encounter when treating the wages question are complicated by considering labor purely and solely as a commodity. In one sense of the word labor is a commodity, because it is all that the working man, as we understand him, has to sell; and if it is all he has to sell, he must dispose of it at the ruling market price; and if labor is simply and solely a commodity this view is correct. But under what we may call the new political economy, or, to use a term which suits me better, under social economics, labor represents something more than a commodity. A commodity, like a ton of pig iron, if not sold today, may be sold tomorrow, it loses nothing, or but little, by being held in stock. A man's services can not be held in stock. Labor must be sold today for a fair price, or it is lost to its owner forever. If a man does not work today, he can not do two day's work tomorrow. On this basis, therefore, if on no other, labor can not be classified purely and simply as a commodity. You can store commodities; you can accumulate them, but you cannot store or accumulate labor.

Another reason why there is a difference between labor and commodities is found in the social distinction. A commodity is dead matter, useful for physical purposes only; it is material in its essence. Labor is not. Labor is service, no matter how expended, or in what direction. It represents the social activity of man. It represents his power to vitalize things, like machinery and capital. It represents the human brain, no matter how the labor which is directed by the brain may be expended. It is part of the man. It is his social force in the community, whether he be a bootblack or a publicist, and in so far as a man honestly and skillfully expends his labor, in so far as he is a social factor. This distinction also takes labor out of the list of commodities, and yet it is and must remain the subject of contract, because whatever the labor, its character, its skill, or its social force, there is a price fixed which must be paid for it.

We see in every progressive community that the demand of the working man is no longer for a wage sufficient to enable him to keep body and soul together. It is no longer the iron law of wages; it is no longer the desire of labor to secure a wage under that law. Labor has been taught to feel that it is a social as well as an economic power in the community, and this educating process has gone on until the demand of labor is for a reasonable margin beyond that fixed by the iron law of wages. How far this demand shall be granted, how far the working man shall be enabled to benefit by the results of his education, are the great questions. Is he entitled to what we may call the aesthetic potentialities of his services? Is he entitled to secure some of the higher things of life? Shall he participate as an enlightened and well disposed citizen in those adornments which come through an appreciation and realization of the beauties and the aesthetic qualities of music, of art, of literature? These are the questions which the working man is asking whenever the wages question is under discussion. These are the things which constitute the essence of his present-day demands.

The two parties to production are being placed on a more thorough basis than of old. Each is beginning to understand the other, and as this understanding crystallizes into positive knowledge, and each is ready to meet the other on a fair and equal basis, the wages question will be relieved of some of its irritating complications. The employer must consider his employee as an investor as well as the stockholder, for the working man invests all he has, and that is his labor of today. He has, therefore, a perfect right to know why he can not market that labor at the best possible advantage. This method, however, will not determine what is a just and equitable adjustment of the profits of production; but it will enable men to get on without difficulty until the expansion of the wage system brings a more just and a more equitable distribution.

The emancipation of labor—and by that, I take it, is meant the right of the working man to make a contract for himself—carries with it burdens and responsibilities which can be met only through intelligent comprehension of conditions. Labor, as Ruskin has defined it, means the contest with an opposite. The great labor question means the struggle of humanity for a higher standard of life. We may chase this question round and round; we may confuse cause with effect; we may insist that a higher standard of living gauges the rate of wage; or we may insist that a high rate of wage means a higher standard of living. It does not matter which is the true logical position—a higher standard of living is the evidence of increased civilization. All men strive for it; all men are entitled to secure a higher standard of living. The poor, and the ignorant, and the dependent, and even the defective, have a right to desire this; and the burden is on society to see to it that economic adjustments are good, with the moral end in view of securing the best results not only from the point of view of production but from the point of view of high citizenship. The complications of the wages question are only a part of this greater question.

We have seen labor go from status to contract, and this change, which has had many modifications and later on will have many more, is in the nature of efforts to offset or do away with some of the irritating complications of the wage question. Many of the attempts have led to various startling and radical propositions, drastic in their nature. We have had communism and socialism suggested as the true solutions of the problem, but in them the patriotic citizen does not find that he can place the laboring man on a just and equitable basis where he shall receive an increased share of the benefits arising from the introduction of machinery or the many novel processes for speeding on production. The great majority of men still feel that the ethical and economical objections to the wages question can be met in other ethical and economical adjustments which shall relieve the question of its irritating elements.

WHY POWERS LEAVES CONGRESS

"I retire from Congress to make a determined attack on the consolidated wealth of Massachusetts, and I hope to win a goodly portion of it for myself before I end my days," said the Hon. Samuel L. Powers, president of the famous Tantalus Club.

Congressman Powers enjoys a joke and his popularity in the line of furnishing good stories, and, frequently, material for stories about himself, makes his Washington colleagues regret his retirement. Sundry visions of persuading Powers to return to Congress put in an appearance when a Boston Sunday paper quoted him as saying that he was not out of politics. That sounded like a many-pointed joke and a Sunday Post reporter sought out Mr. Powers, who with smiles and quiet laughs gave the following interview, which contains many facts worth reading and remembering:

"The reporter who quoted me as saying I was not out of politics failed to appreciate a good story. It happened this way: I told the members of the club before which I was speaking that there were three honors that a Newton man could obtain. The first and highest was to win the presidency of the Newton Club; second, to be elected Mayor of Newton; third, to represent Newton and the twelfth district in Congress. I told the members that I had held two of the positions and all that was left for me was to seek the third, the mayoralty of Newton. That, of course, was a bit of pleasantry, for I was once defeated for the mayoralty and I am not going to try it again. As Congressman Hogg put it, it appeared from the applause that the people of Newton were more pleased at my leaving Congress than my remaining there, Hogg certainly hit me very hard.

"Why am I leaving Congress? Well, I frankly say that I could not afford realize that without ambition or hard work they are apt to be retired quickly, therefore they work the harder.

"Congress is a great body. The members are able men, broad-minded, fair, and, above everything else, splendid companions and good fellows. The work is congenial and the associations a member enjoys are of the most pleasant.

"I am out of politics for many years to come, if I can judge the future rightly. I am not seeking any office in the State, and all my time will be devoted to rebuilding up a legal practice.

"Will the Tantalus Club live? Most certainly it will. Say, that is a great organization. The first privilege it gives to a new member is to call other members of the club by their first names, and that in itself is a great privilege.

"It won't be long before the Tantalus Club will rival the Gridiron Club. At our last dinner we had all the Cabinet members and already we have reached that point of success where no invitation is declined.

"Once a member of the Tantalus Club always a member. Those who retire from Congress or are defeated continue as members. When the club started only new members of the 57th Congress were admitted to membership. This Congress gave us many new members and with the next Congress we will have a majority of the Republican members of the House.

Creeds.

Should children become church members. Not if they are required to subscribe to the creeds of our churches as many of them read now. Not many years ago a company of children some under twelve years of age went through with the ceremony and became members of a certain church. The creed was read through to them. One clause read this way "And the wicked shall go into the lake of brimstone and fire." Afterward I asked the minister if that statement was to be taken literally in reference to the lake of fire into which the wicked after death were to be plunged. He said "no, it was supposed to be figurative language. I asked him if the children understood it, if it had been explained to them. He replied "that he thought not." So the children had been obliged to endorse what was not supposed to be true. Since then that clause has been eliminated from the creed of that church and this substituted, "and the wicked shall go into eternal punishment." Dogmatic assertions like these should not be required of children to believe nor of older persons. Good Christian men who would be valuable to the church are shut out because of it. Creeds should win men, not repel them. They should show God to be a God of love, not a God of wrath, and Christ as our leader and example through whom we have salvation if we follow him and walk in his footsteps. Is this not enough? If any one feels convinced that the fire and brimstone theory is true, then let them have the privilege of believing it, but do not let them say that other people must, or they cannot join the church, or that they must believe in eternal punishment for the wicked. Who are the wicked? One Bible utterance is "Oh Lord if thou shouldst work iniquities who would stand?" And, again, "There is no one good—no not one." Dogmas written by weak foolish men do no good. They create fear of God instead of the love of God. Let us know the beauty of virtue and righteousness through Christ's love and teaching. Let us fear to sin, for the penalty is sure to follow inasmuch as God's laws are inexorable. Let us therefore endeavor to enter upon a future existence with as clear a conscience and as pure a heart as possible and striving to do all the good we can while on our probation here in this world.

Looking up the creed of the Congregational church from year to year one reads "and the wicked shall go into the Lake burning with brimstone and fire," another, "Into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels," still another "Go be condemned forever," and that contained in the creed at the present time "shall go into everlasting punishment."

Which one would God approve, if either, who shall decide, M. H. C.

The Place of Play in Education.

Prof. John Tyler of Amherst College, gave an address before the Newton Education Association in the New Church parlors, Newtonville, on Monday evening, April 4, upon the above subject. A good audience of members and others listened with interest to the lecturer's somewhat radical conception of the province of education for the child of today. He did not attempt a definition of education, but claimed that the ends to be secured by it to the child are the ability successfully to overcome the dangers, to meet the emergencies and to avail of the opportunities of life.

The enactments of the New England fathers in 1642 provided for the teaching by parents or others of their children and apprentices, so much learning, as may enable them perfectly to read the English tongue, and obtain a knowledge of the capital laws. This was to avoid what they characterized as "barbarism." Education, it will be seen had a strictly literary basis, and that conception of it has largely prevailed for the more than two hundred and fifty years that have intervened. But when we consider the difference in the peoples and in the times, the present demand is for an education quite different from that of the fathers. The lecturer contrasted the pilgrim and puritan and their times, with the peoples and times in which we live. The former were making a struggle for existence in a time and land which was anything but hospitable. Necessity put a heavy strain upon men and women alike to keep body and soul together. Each had to serve in many occupations; improvidence was a sin, frugality not only a virtue, but a necessity. Into this strenuous life the children were born, in it they had the "nourishing" of the fathers as well as the mothers. What is done of it at the present day is left to the mothers. Other changes no less radical have taken place. To go from Boston to New York today requires no more time than it then did to reach the nearest neighbor; now the trip can be made in safety, then a lurking savage might extend the time or increase the danger indefinitely. The occupations and the times were promotive of brawn and muscle, and induced to keenness of perception, sagacity, fortitude and courage. Schools were of short duration, books scarce and restricted in their scope, abridgements and compends, but homes were seminaries of virtue and virility. The life was rural, necessity and nature nurtured the child. Today there is no life, however rural, that is not more urban, schools are kept throughout the year and books for multitude are beyond counting.

Nature study and the study of nature in the child are now demanded in deciding what the child's education shall be. Three things must be secured to him, he must have muscle, nerve, and iron in the blood. To secure these nature can be depended upon to do her part; rather than interfere with her, the child better be left to nature alone. The frog is first a tadpole, but in time, by a natural process, he drops his tail and gets on all fours; it is inexplicable that out of an egg is developed a chick, and out of a chick the stalking fowl, but food and exercise furnished, nature does the rest. But it is possible to assist nature by educating in accordance with the child's natural development. This brings us to the study of the child. There is a natural order in his muscular development. The baby's head is large in proportion to the rest of his body, the muscles of his back are brought into exercise in the act of sitting up, they increase in strength as they are exercised in supporting the head and trunk; the arms and legs are soon in motion, and somewhat later the fingers of the hand are exercised in pawing and clinching. Thus the larger muscles at first come into activity, and then the smaller, and this order of activity prevails throughout the muscular system. Every one of these muscular activities has its impulse in a nerve center in the brain and spinal cord, which is in exercise with each muscular activity. Hence the demand for various manual and physical exercises. A demand partially, but quite inadequately met in the schools by the introduction of manual and physical training. Two hours per week of light gymnastics should be replaced by as many hours per day of hard work, gymnastics or other, as walking, running, jumping and the like.

This, at least, is required in order that the digestive, respiratory and secretory systems may do their perfect work, for without this the blood cannot have the requisite amount of iron in it. Games, athletic and others, have their appropriate place in the child's education, not interscholastic or competitive. It is a natural impulse in the young to play in company, but not necessarily with one another. With periods of work or play alternating with periods of rest, no matter how severe the exercise, weariness is to be invited, not discouraged. There are intellectual and moral, as well as physical, values in play. Left to regulate their plays for themselves children learn to discriminate between fair and foul play, and by forcing, if need be, compel their associates to play fair.

Applying the principles presented, the Professor doubted the value to the child of much of the present schooling obtained between the ages of six and nine years. He was quite sure it would be better to have one half of the present school day spent in physical exercises, in manual work, in dancing and in play.

The address was followed by questions put to the lecturer by several persons in the audience, Mr. Blodgett, Mr. Ames and Prof. Taylor. Replying to one of these Professor Tyler thought the German boys when compared with ours had the advantage of three years in the knowledge of Latin, Greek and mathematics, but that the American boys had a still greater advantage over the German boys in what he deemed the essentials of an education. THE LAND OF PAIN.

You ask where I spent the summer, Why, I went to the Land of Pain, Through its dark and gloomy valleys And its many a burning plain.

Where the days grew long and dreary, And I longed to be away, For my heart was heavy laden As I suffered day by day.

But I came to lovely places, Where I rested in the shade, While I gathered wondrous flowers, And flowers that did not fade.

Their tints were beyond description, Of gold and heavenly blue; For they were flowers of love and friendship, Of love, so tender and true.

So "my season" has had its pleasure, In this wonderful land of Pain; There were days of the sweetest sunshine, As well as clouds and rain.

But I must stay within its border, Till my longing heart grows still, And I'm willing for my Father To lead me where'er He will.

Are you worn out? Tired and completely run down? You have no vitality, no energy. You are nervous, weak, fretful and cry easily.

For just such cases as yours Vin-Tone has been prepared. It overcomes that tired, weak feeling and puts new energy into body and mind.

Do not be skeptical and refuse to believe what eminent physicians pronounce to be a fact. Doctors who have made a deep study of this subject, have, after much patience, experimenting and expense, succeeded in compounding Vin-Tone. And having been convinced of its wonderful strengthening power, they now send it out into the world to do its work among poor weary human beings. We are glad to be able to print the good news that a remedy has at last been discovered which takes right hold of any worn-out system and builds a foundation to health and happiness.

To the nursing mother this Vin-Tone is a God-send. One bottle will convince you. Sold on a positive guarantee.

Bargains in Used Pianos

Many buyers are surprised to find how thoroughly satisfactory in looks and sound are the used pianos that we offer for sale. Every piano that comes to us in exchange goes to our factory in Cambridge and is thoroughly overhauled. When needed, new hammers, new strings and even new actions are put in. As makers, we can do this intelligently and economically. Perhaps a piano made by one of the celebrated makers, renewed by us, will please you. If so you may save $100 or $200. It's worth considering. We will mail you a list of the used pianos we offer if inconvenient to call.

CONGRESSMAN SAMUEL L. POWERS.

to remain there. No man likes Congress better than I do. Had I sufficient wealth I would like to continue as a member.

"There are three classes of men in Congress. One is composed of men who have great wealth, the second is composed of those who have no wealth and are rated as poor, and the third is composed of men who have been accustomed to living well at home from a fair income won by hard, consistent work. I belong to the latter class.

"The men of the third class become dissatisfied when they reach Washington. If they live there as well as they do when in the home districts they go broke quickly, for the pace is too expensive. They are cut off from the income from legal practice or business pursuits, and there is nothing to keep the mill going.

"The wealthy man does not need to worry, and the poor man who goes to Washington to live on his congressional salary cuts his cloth as he must wear it. He seeks out a modest apartment in Washington, lives as cheaply as possible, keeps his family at home, and from his congressional salary sends enough home to pay expenses there. Occasionally he meets with an expensive contest that eats up an entire year's salary. That staggers him and makes him think.

"As I said, I belong to the middle class, that likes to spend money and live in Washington as well as in Boston. I found that I could not represent the 12th district in Washington and practice law in Boston, and not being able to do the latter my funds began to run low.

"The tendency is to elect young men of wealth to Congress, like Congressman Gardner of this State and Longworth of Ohio, young men who although wealthy are ambitious, and dig into work and legislation with energy and determination that cannot help but bring good results to the country and their respective districts.

"There are quite a few wealthy young men in Congress, and about all are very good legislators. They has for its sponsors well known ladies in the literary, club and social life of Boston.

The officers of the Newton Polymnia are Mrs. Philip W. Carter, president; Mrs. Edward M. Hallett, Mrs. Charles H. Breck and Mrs. Hermon E. Hibbard, vice presidents, Mrs. James F. Bothfeld, secretary; Mrs. Howard K. Mason, librarian.

In addition to the Boston and Newton clubs, a third one has been organized at Winchester, with Mrs. Edwin Ginn, wife of the head of the great publishing house of Ginn and Co as president. There will be two additional Polymnias, one at Newton Centre and the other at Milton. While each of the clubs will have their own local concerts and functions, there will be an annual ensemble of The Polymnias at Boston in grand concert.

All of the clubs will be under the musical direction of Madame Isidore Martinez, the eminent musician and singer.

The basis upon which The Polymnias are founded, is a new departure in choral training. One half hour of the two hours weekly meetings of the club, will be devoted to educational purposes, that is, special instruction in tone formation; tone production; enunciation; knowledge of the different scales, or keys and sight reading; and historical and biographical explanation of the music being studied. This feature of the work will enable those who have had no previous vocal training, and young ladies of sixteen and upwards who would like to benefit by such instruction, as become members, without the necessity of first qualifying for admission into the chorus itself.

The first meeting of the Newton Polymnia, was held on Thursday morning of this week, April 7th, at 10.30 in the Y. M. C. A. Hall, where Madame Martinez received prior to the commencement of active work.

gressional contest which is now being waged in this district, is the influence which the nominee will be able to exert in Washington after election.The district has been fortunate during the past four years in having as representative a man who has taken such a high position in the House by ability and influence that it has been given a standing equal to that held by other districts whose representatives have served many years to attain.This high standing can be maintained if Captain Weeks is chosen as Mr. Powers successor. Mr. Weeks has a strong influence in official Washington, particularly in Navy circles. His naval record is highly creditable and includes an education at Annapolis, a term as a visitor of that Naval Academy, ten years in the Mass. naval militia, six of which he was the Commander, and during the Spanish war he was honored by President McKinley with the command of the New England coast from Block Island to Maine. It goes without saying that his election to Congress would be welcomed by many high Washington officials, and the district would naturally receive the full benefit of his influential relations with the powers that be.The election of Mr. William M.
Flanders of this city as a delegate to Chicago by acclamation is a deserved
tribute to the faithful work of Mr.
Flanders for the party and testifies to the regard in which he is held. With a candidate for Congress from this city, it was thought that the asking for a delegateship as well might be considered grasping. Fortunately that view of the matter was not taken by the convention, and the selection of the best man for the position was the paramount thought of all. This argues well for the Congressional convention to be held next fall when Captain Weeks will be a strong candidate for the nomination. It is hoped that the same idea of fitness will dominate the convention, and that his acknowledged ability will be recognized in a similar manner.It will be a matter of deep regret if Mr. F. W. Atkinson, our superintendent of schools, decides to accept the highly flattering offer he has recently received from Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr.
Atkinson in the short time he has been in this city has made a most favorable impression on the public by his evident ability, and the frank and straight forward manner in which he conducts his office. We sincerely hope
Mr. Atkinson will remain with us.

Ladies' Night.

The beautiful hall of Dalhousie lodge in the Masonic Building, Newtonville, on Wednesday night was bright with the costumes of the ladies and enlivened by the strains of music from the magnificent organ, played by Mr. Henry T. Wade, and by the Entente orchestra of ladies. The occasion was the annual ladies' night
of this flourishing lodge, and over 200 were present.From 7:30 to 8:30 a reception was held, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Benedict, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Brewer and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver M. Fisher being in the receiving line, and Messrs. Jarvis Lamson, W. D. Harvey, J. N. Lovell, L. M. Dorr, J. F.
Ryder, N. C. Whitaker, E. P. Jones,
J. E. Heymer, A. G. Hosmer, H. W.
Crowell, W. H. Rand, Jr., A. S.
Bryant, C. E. Hatfield, G. M. Angier,
A. H. Decatur, E. H. Cram, A. P.
Maynard and C. R. Hayes were the ushers. The hall was simply but effectively decorated with a few flowers and potted plants, which emphasized the beauty of the room. The dining room was adorned with festoons of crepe paper of various colors, combined with masses of flowers, in effective display and the tables which were loaded with a substantial spread, were handsomely trimmed. Following the reception, an exhibition of the fine lighting facilities of the hall was given by Mr. Richard W. Vose.The evening's entertainment show under the direction of Mr. T.
E. Stutson, which is sufficient evidence that it was first class in every particular.Besides Mr. Stutson's new and (speak it low) stale jokes, and songs,
there was Mr. Clarence E. Billings
in a "rube" sketch which convulsed
the audience, and parodies on "Eva"
and "Hiawatha" and a capital original song, "Down in Maine." Mr.
W. H. S. Hill was heard to advantage in a couple of tenor songs, "Come to Me" and "Mona." Miss Katherine
R. Hooper gave her monologue "A Common Nuisance" and as an encore
"A Television Conversation."B. H. Foley did a banjo sketch and Mr. Harry Gardner brought down the house with a female impersonation which was remarkably clever.The success of the affair must be credited to the Entertainment Committee, Mr. Stutson chairman, with Mr. A. S. Bryant in charge of the decorations, Mr. E. P. Hatch of the music and Mr. H. W. Crowell of the tickets.

Newton Hospital.

The regular quarterly meeting of the trustees was held at the Hospital
on Tuesday, March 29th.The members present were President Leeson, Hon. A. R. Weed, Mrs.
C. H. Ames, Mrs. M. L. Bacon, Mrs.
W. H. Coolidge, Miss C. A. Lovett,
Mrs. E. P. Saltonstall, Drs. W. O.
Hunt, F. S. Keith, Geo. E. May, F.
E. Porter, Messrs. Geo. S. Bullens,
F. A. Day, Bernard Earley, W. T.
Farley, G. E. Pulsifer, W. P. Tyler and Wm. C. Bray.Reports of the work in its various phases were presented and items of interest to the Hospital were discussed.The receipts for the quarter applicable to general expenses were $6155.33, and the disbursements for the same period $8826.37.The Endowment Fund has been increased $5000.00 by a legacy received from the estate of the late F. A.
Brooks.Dr. Arthur T. Cabot of Boston has been appointed consulting surgeon, succeeding Dr. C. B. Porter. With this exception, the organization of the staff for the current year remains unchanged.The average daily number of patients for the quarter was 48.1.
Miss Mary M. Riddle has assumed her duties at the Hospital as Superintendent of Nurses, and the work is being carried on under her skilful and careful guidance.By a recent action of the Board of Managers, the pupil nurses in the Training School are to be allowed a vacation of three weeks instead of two as heretofore.By the gift of a new range of largely increased capacity, the Hospital has been again reminded of the invaluable service rendered by the Hospital Aid Association.The report of a conference between the Medical Directors of the Hospital and the Board of Health, regarding the temporary use of one of the renovated contagious wards, for measles cases, was presented and carefully considered. While the Board of Health did not feel justified in making use of the ward for cases coming under its charge, on account of the expense involved, it was willing that the ward
be used for private cases or for cases received at the Hospital's expense.A special committee appointed by the Executive Committee to consider carefully all of the expenses of the Hospital reported that the work was under way and that progress had already been made.

ANNUAL BANQUET.

The annual banquet and reunion of the Suburban Press Association was held at the Copley Square Hotel on Monday afternoon. The banquet was served at 2:30 p. m. and was enlivened with music by the Ariel Quartet composed of ladies. Their selections were enthusiastically received, the fine contralto of Miss Mackenzie adding greatly to the effect.President Fairbanks was toastmaster, and the after dinner speakers were Rear Admiral Casper F. Goodrich, who told the story of the treatment given Admiral Cervera while a prisoner in his charge. Hon. John W.
Weeks of Newton spoke on the Eastern situation, showing a broad knowledge of the Japanese and the possibilities of their war and Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, editor of the Woman's Journal gave the Association some sound talk on woman's suffrage.In the evening the Association visited Keith's theatre as the guests of Mr. A. Paul Keith.This is a good time to sow Lawn Seed, also Sweet Peas. Chandler and Harber, 122 Summer St., have a superior grade of these, as well as other seeds, and are very convenient to the

JOSE-MANNING.

The wedding of Miss Grace Dexter
Manning, daughter of Mrs. E. E.
Stiles of Newtonville to Mr. Wallace Hight Jose of Chicago, which took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Stiles, 168 Walnut street, Newtonville, last week Wednesday afternoon, was a very quiet affair on account of a recent bereavement in the family of the groom. Rev. Dr. O. S.
Davis of the Central church officiated
and the bride was given away by her step father Mr. E. E. Stiles. She wore a gown of white satin duchesse with chiffon and duchesse lace trimings and was attended by her little niece and nephew, Margaret and Randolph Louson of Montreal, dressed in white and carrying baskets of pink roses.The drawing room was decorated with ferns and festoons of laurel formed a bower where the marriage was performed. The house was decorated with white tulips, and the dining room was in pink.A reception to intimate friends and relatives was held immediately after the ceremony, and the happy couple then left for an extended wedding trip through the west.

BLAKE-LOGAN.

Miss Margaretta Logan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor Logan of Chester street, Newton Highlands, was married to Mr. Harold Hamilton Blake of Concord, N. H. and formerly of Newton, last evening.The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by the Rev. Dr. G.
T. Smart of the Newton Highlands Congregational church at 8 o'clock in the presence of the intimate friends of the family.The bride was dressed in white crepe de chine over white taffeta,
with trimmings of lace and chiffon,
and carried white roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Mabel Cobb of Newton Centre, as maid of honor, gowning in white organdie
over taffeta and carrying pale pink carnations. Mr. Kenneth Blake of Newton, brother of the groom was the best man.The house was decorated with palms and pink and white carnations. Following the ceremony a reception was held, Messrs. Charles and Arthur Logan, brothers of the bride, being the ushers.Mr. and Mrs. Blake will reside at Concord, N. H.Mr. J. M. Quimby of 322 Franklin street, Newton, formerly of the firm of Doe, Hunnewell and Co., Boston,

MR. CHAFFIN DEAD.

Mr. John C. Chaffin, an old resident of Newton and formerly a well known Boston business man died at his home on Vernon street last Tuesday, after a somewhat protracted illness. Mr. Chaffin was a native of Princeton, Mass., where he was born 80 years ago. In 1837 he entered the employ of his brother, Darwin Chaffin, who was the first man to open a gentlemen's furnishing store, his place being at 80 Washington street, Boston.

In 1846 on the death of his brother Mr. Chaffin started in business for himself at the Northeast corner of State and Washington streets. Later he purchased and moved to the building corner of Washington and Franklin streets. The building and stock was destroyed at the time of the great fire, but a new building was erected at once. Mr. Chaffin had among his patrons such well known men as Daniel Webster, Edward Everett, Charles Sumner, Harrison Gray Oia, Josiah Quincy, Oliver Wendell Holmes, James Russell Lowell, Henry W. Longfellow, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Robert C. Winthrop, Rufus Choate, Joseph Jefferson, President Franklin Pierce, Richard Olney and others. He retired from business in 1896. The deceased was a member of Eliot church and was always greatly interested in its welfare. His widow, who was Mary Elizabeth, daughter of the late Andrew Cole, and one daughter, Miss Hattie W. Chaffin survive him. The funeral will be held this afternoon from the house at 2 o'clock.

Coming Attractions

Hollis Street Theatre—In all great centers of civilization where the hum and drone of traffic are persuasive and familiar, "The Pit," in which Wilton Lackaye opens an engagement at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston, shortly should go with a bound because of the truth of its pictures of trade which will make a strong appeal to this materialistic age, so full of strenuous and arrogant commercialism. William A. Brady has mounted the play superbly, and has surrounded his star with a company of great strength. Three hundred people will appear in the great panic scene in the Chicago wheat pit. The play has made the hit of the season in Chicago and New York. It comes here direct from a run of three months at the Lyric Theatre in the latter city, where it has established an unbroken record of crowded houses at every performance.

Park Theatre—The final fortnight of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" at the Park Theatre, Boston, began on Monday evening last. Despite her uninterrupted popularity at that house, where this cheerful old lady and her queer neighbors have broken all records, the highly prosperous engagement has been thus limited to April 23rd in order that she may make her contemplated tour of the larger and more prominent New England towns. There is no need to expatiate further in these columns concerning the laughable, delightful and quaintly novel features of this pronounced book-drama hit; since its

"MOTHER GOOSE" AT THE COLONIAL THEATRE.

"The Land of Heartsease," in which the blend of color is artistic in the extreme. There are others—fifteen others—all specimens of the perfection of the scenic art, but notably, "The Palace of Fantasy" and the procession and ballet, entitled "L'Art Nouveau"—the latter presenting a perfect orgie of gorgeous dressing. The hun-

in recent years of the habit of certain comedians in attempting characterizations of certain classes of people, and much resentment has been felt at some of the broad caricatures that have been placed upon the stage in many of the so-called musical comedies. The usual matinee will be given next week on Wednes-

the other by reason of their grace and beauty. In this engagement the prices will range from 50c to $2.00 with many excellent seats to be had on the orchestra floor for $1.50.

Tremont Theatre—"King Dodo," which has been played over 1000 times and which is now presented at the Tremont Theatre with a cast of exceptional ability, headed by Richard Golden, contains more pretty and catchy musical numbers than any entertainment of its kind which has been produced in recent years. All told, there are twenty-one of them, and from the time the first one is sung until the last one is finished there is not a moment when the ear is not delighted. The complete production is to be seen here with the big cast and an augmented orchestra of solo musicians. Richard Golden, long a favorite comedian with the American public, has made the hit of his life as King Dodo. The chorus of pretty girls—a chorus famed for its beauty—is one of the strongest features of the production. It is not in beauty alone but voice as well that the chorus excels. The production from a scenic and costume standpoint is particularly rich and beautiful. Next week is the last of the engagement, as on April 25, Mr. Henry W. Savage makes his annual spring production at the Tremont, a forest fantasy entitled "Woodland," the joint work of Pixley and Lunders.

Boston Theatre—A captivating fairy tale, set to exquisite music, illustrated by the most beautiful stage pictures that modern scenic art can devise, and interpreted by a company of expert farceurs and comely comedienne, is what may be anticipated of "Babes in Toyland," the new musical extravaganza which will be next Monday's attraction at the Boston Theatre. The eleven elaborate scenes of the play abound in marvelous mechanical effects and transformations. The merits have already been described in many side-lights upon its funny scenes and queer characters. The fiftieth Boston performance of "Mrs. Wiggs" will occur on April 18th next, on which evening a dainty souvenir will be given to every lady who attends. There will also be a special Patriot's Day matinee on Tuesday, April 19th.

Colonial Theatre—Klaw and Erlanger's spectacular triumph, "Mother Goose," at the Colonial Theatre, Boston, was received all last week with volleys of Easterlike appreciation from the greatest audiences which have been gathered together in this house for many a day, and it entered upon its fourth week on Monday evening with a surety of retaining its record-breaking pace. In this huge carnival of mirthfulness, melody and magnificence, the management have made a supremely successful effort to outshine all previous achievements, and have succeeded in making the past triumphs of all Drury Lane importations to this country appear "faded." "Mother Goose" is veritably like the three-ring circus. One cannot absorb its glories or watch its ever-changing beauties at one sitting, but must go again and again to appreciate the biggest and most beautiful show that ever gladdened the heart of that vast majority of amusement patrons who delight to laugh a way a night as if by magic, in the realms of magnificence. As a spectacle, no finer stage picture can be conceived than dreds of beautiful women, lavishly attired, their graceful ballets, tableaux, marches and processions, the clever specialties and the host of inimitable comedians, furnish a series of pictures dazzling in their effect.

Boston Music Hall—Vance and Sullivan attach the greatest importance to the scenic equipment of their plays and in "The Lighthouse by the Sea," which will be the attraction at the Boston Music Hall next week, they have surpassed their previous efforts. The four sets used are each said to be remarkable for their artistic beauty and massive proportions, the rock-bound coast of New England affording the scenic artist unusual opportunities. That which has aroused the greatest enthusiasm is act third, which shows the great light on Devil's Rock towering high in the air, with the waves gently rippling upon the rocks, while over all floods the mellow light of a full autumn moon.

Majestic Theatre—That funny little comedian, George Sidney, with the splendid company which is supporting him this season, enters upon the second and last week of his engagement at the Majestic Theatre on Monday night of next week in that jolliest of all musical comedy successes, "Busy Izzy." There is no more popular entertainer on the farce comedy stage today than Mr. Sidney, and he has won his present enviable position by a close application to refined methods. Much has been said day and Saturday afternoons with an extra special matinee on Patriot's Day. The attraction announced to follow Mr. Sidney is another of Mr. Stair's attractions, Ward and Vokes, supported by the best company they have ever had, in their greatest success, "A Pair of Pinks."

Globe Theatre—The most important dramatic event of the season in Boston will be the engagement of the Weber and Fields all-star stock company at the Globe Theatre for two weeks, beginning Monday, April 18th, with an extra matinee on Patriots Day and Wednesday and Saturday matinees. This engagement is the most conspicuous in the history of the beautiful new theatre, and will attract widespread attention. There is not the slightest doubt but that the house will be sold out at each performance, for the popularity of the Weber and Fields company with their unique style of entertainment is unparalleled, in fact, they have no rivals in their particular field, and wherever they go, they invariably play before enormous audiences. The entertainment to be given by Weber and Fields during this engagement is a musical burlesque called "Whoop Dee Dee" in two "Whoops." It serves to introduce all the famous principals, such as, Lillian Russell, Louis Mann, Chas. J. Ross, John T. Kelly, Peter F. Dailey, Mabel Fenton, and Weber and Fields themselves, besides the chorus of 100 persons most of whom are famed from one end of the country to most striking are: the electric storm at sea and the wreck of the galleon; Contrary Mary's glittering garden; the spiders' forest, and its metamorphosis to the Moth Queen's palace; the Toy Makers' workshop; Christmas Tree Grove; the volcanic eruption and destruction of the Toy Maker's castle. One of the sensational features of the production, according to authoritative critics, is a droll pantomime scene by Charles Gwyer, formerly the star of Haulon's "Superba," and the greatest living master of silent fun. There will be a special matinee on Tuesday, April 19, Patriot's Day, in addition to the regular matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Seats are now on sale for this engagement.

Keith's Theatre—"His Japanese Wife," a one act play is to be offered at Keith's the week of April 18, for the first time in Boston, by Valerie Bergere, a well known and talented leading actress, and an excellent supporting company. Another sketch will also be given for the first time, and it is pronounced the most laughable offering of the kind that has been done in the varieties for several seasons. The title is "Mag Haggerty's Father's Daughter," and the actors Thos. J. Ryan and Mary Richfield, the first named one of the quaintest and most amusing Irish character comedians on the stage. Other entertainers will be Vernon, ventriloquist comedian; Max Wald on, the great female impersonator; John W. World, eccentric comedian, and Mindell Kingston, comic opera song-brette; Martin brothers, xylophone players; Hickey and Nelson, in funny acrobatic and dancing specialty, "Twisted and Tangled," and E. Foster and dog "Mike," a mind reading and musically inclined canine.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

Three events of unusual interest transpired at the State House during the past week that may well receive more than a passing notice. They may be enumerated as follows, the debate and execution of what is known as the semicolon bill; the same process applied to the constitutional amendment measure, and the hearing before the committee on federal relations of the Drinkwater resolutions for reciprocity with Canada.

In regard to the first, nothing else could have been expected but the defeat of the measure looking to the extension of time for the sale of liquor until 12 o'clock. A man half drunk with beer is a pretty stupid fellow, but such a man is brilliant beside the methods pursued in endeavoring to induce the legislature to pass a 12 o'clock law. The hearings by the committee upon the several bills developed the probable fact that there was but one bill that could pass both branches and that was the measure known as house bill 303. In spite of that conviction the powers that were, chose to make the fight on a measure that had fewer friends than Ham the defaulter, and that never saw the ghost of a chance of becoming a law.

The truth is that probably the liquor people, that is those who take an interest in liquor legislation, did not wish to have the only bill that ever had any chance, become a law. The debate upon the matter was not marked with any considerable degree of ability upon either side until Newton of Everett took the floor when the chairman of the metropolitan committee made one of the best speeches ever heard from him. Mr. Newton showed entire familiarity with the history of liquor legislation for the last forty years and in the course of his remarks exposed the utter fallacy of the argument that has been urged by the liquor interests that the famous semicolon was a clerical mistake. Mr. Newton proved this by calling attention to the title of the bill in which the semicolon occurs, and which reads, "A bill to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors after 11 o'clock at night."

When the first class hotels in Boston get ready to come to the state house together in a business fashion and ask for legislation in a straight forward manner, without slapping the great and general court in the face by some "mistake" that they contend has been made by that honorable body, they will at least, get more votes than was accorded to the monstrosity that came into the house on all fours last week and collapsed in the area in front of the speaker's desk before anybody could obtain its correct measurements.

The "initiative and referendum amendment" to the constitution failed of passage in the house Thursday as the result of a second thought more than anything else. Last year the same measure went through the house by a vote of 152 to only 22 against and through the senate by a vote proportionately as great, last week men stood upon the floor and said openly and frankly that since last year they had changed their minds. Only one man avowed that he had not performed that mental exercise and he was immediately assigned to that class of men who never change their minds. The debate was more interesting than that on the semicolon bill, and held the attention of the house and spectators up to the close. This was really the most important measure that has been before the legislature this session and too great a significance can not be placed upon the final result. As it now stands such a measure would have to pass two succeeding legislatures before it could go to the people. The defeat of the bill last week will make it necessary to begin all over anew if the promoters of the scheme have the heart to renew the battle. The measure included a proposition that it is believed was never before submitted to the people of a republic. Name, that a minority should prevail. This astonishing proposition was that if the 15 of the 40 senators could be found to endorse the measure it should be considered as having senatorial sanction. History will undoubtedly make a note of that freak in proposed legislation and the question may sometime arise, is that number, representing the supposed purchasable quantity in the upper branch? All honor to Representative Coulthurst of Boston who although a democrat, could not endure that "suggestion of unthinkableness" and moved an amendment that a majority of the senate be required.

The third of the important matters was the reciprocity resolve before the federal relations committee. This was a very interesting hearing in spite of the political tendency given to the affair by some of the speakers and it was a pity that a competent committee was not furnished to hear the matter. Of course as long as the good, bad and indifferent in a legislative body have to be provided for in committee construction, totally incompetent men must sit in judgment upon matters of which they are about as capable of grasping as a cow would be to comprehend the declaration of independence. The present committee on federal relations comprises six competent men. If the committee had been constituted only by gentlemen there might have been some reason in submitting so important a proposition as was contained in the Drinkwater resolutions, to that body, and perhaps the judgment of those gentlemen will prevail. During one session of the hearing while William Whitman was addressing the committee two of the members were talking and laughing about their experience the night before, and during the entire hearing there never was a full committee who listened to the speakers.

Without considering the merits of the matter, it is safe to say that the hearing was remarkable in many respects. Henry M. Whitney, William Whitman, Frank P. Bennett, Albert Clark, Osborn Howes, General Draper, E. N. Foss and such as they would prevent the proceedings from becoming tiresome and certainly the ordinary man would pick up considerable information with which to stock his store of things worth knowing. When Mr. F. P. Bennett took a hand in the debate, things began to come to a focus as it were, and when the Saugus Argus opened up his expose with the request that he might have an hour more than the time allotted him in which to present his argument, the tide of expectation ran high. Mr. Bennett said that he had a mass of matter to lay before the committee of unusual interest and proved his assertion by reading the United States Government was run along certain lines by William Whitman for the Arlington Mills. Business must have been very urgent to take Mr. Whitman away after he had concluded his argument and deprive him of listening to Mr. Bennett, who was manifestly right in his contention or else he furnished ground for an exceedingly strong libel case. Mr. Whitman ought to be present today when Mr. Bennett is going to have time in which to conclude his remarks that embrace allegations against men high in the councils of the republican party and are brought with remarkable directness. Has this great political organization, the greatest the world has ever known, been again betrayed in the house of its friend? Is another instance of such selfishness about to be brought to light? Perhaps the concluding session of this remarkable hearing which is to be held today, will determine the question.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

Several Newton Gentlemen on Its Finance Committee.

Boston, April 9, 1904.

To the Citizens of Massachusetts: In response to a most cordial invitation from the veterans of Massachusetts, warmly seconded by our state and city officials, the Grand Army of the Republic have again honored this city as the gathering place for the coming National Encampment, August 15th to 20th.

This great gathering of the veterans of our country, led by a few survivors of their great captains, who achieved the highest distinction and our people, and by the generous outpouring of our treasure, such an event as this will appeal at once to our citizens as an opportunity for grateful recognition of the services of the Grand Army.

To carry out this celebration with a dignity commensurate with its national importance, and in keeping with the reputation of our city for hospitality and public spirit, will necessitate a large expense. The committee, therefore, appeal to all of our citizens to contribute, in as gen-

COL. E. H. HASKELL, Chairman.

the lasting gratitude of their countrymen, promises to be a most eventful occasion in the history of our city, and especially, because it is probable it will be the last parade here of that noble army who passed in grand and memorable review before Grant and Sherman and Sheridan at the close of the Civil War.

To a state and city whose reputation became historic through all the dark and trying scenes of the war, by the quick, responsive loyalty of reous a manner as possible, toward securing a guarantee fund of at least $50,000.00 to meet any deficit not covered by the State and city appropriations.

All such subscriptions, or gifts, will be gratefully appreciated and acknowledged through the press, and may be sent to the chairman, Finance Committee at Old South Building, Room 347, Boston.

In behalf of the Finance Committee, E. H. Haskell, Chairman.

HON. JOHN W. WEEKS, Treasurer.

BY ACCLAMATION.

WM. M. FLANDERS, Delegate to Republican National Convention, 12th District.

The anticipated contest over the selection of delegates to the Republican National convention from the 12th Congressional district did not materialize at the convention held in Wesleyan Hall, Boston, last Tuesday afternoon. For several days previous there had been rumors that Mr. Henry A. Bacher of Randolph had decided to oppose Mr. Flanders of this city for the honor, but it is evident that he thought better of it as his name was not even mentioned in the convention.

Mr. Seward W. Jones, chairman of the district committee called to order and read the call, and Mr. Elbridge

J. Whitaker of Wrentham was chosen temporary chairman and Edward W. Baker of Brookline temporary secretary. A committee reported 106 delegates present out of a possible 125, and the names of Leslie C. Wead of Brookline and of William M. Flanders of Newton were placed before the convention. Mr. Wead by Chas. H. Utley of Brookline, seconded by Mr. J. Richard Carter of Newton, and Mr. Flanders by Eben D. Bancroft of Hopedale, seconded by Hon. A. J. Harwood of Newton. They were then chosen by acclamation. Albert Totten of No. Attleboro and Cornelius R. Day of Blackstone were chosen as alternates.

PROBATE COURT.

MIDDLESEX, ss.
To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Elizabeth O'Halloran, late of Newton, in said County, deceased.

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by Edward P. O'Halloran, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, without giving a bond on his official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the third day of May, A. D. 1904, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, the last publication to be on day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, CHARLES J. McINTYRE, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this eleventh day of April in the year one thousand nine hundred and four.

Sarah Hull Chapter, D. R.

This chapter was entertained at the Hunnewell Club house Newton, Tuesday afternoon, April 12th. The hostesses were Mrs. W. T. Coppins, Mrs. G. Aggy, Jr., Mrs. G. K. Clarke, Mrs. G. Eastman, Mrs. S. F. Kelley, Mrs. F. R. Stubbs, who held a reception of half an hour. A business session was called at three o'clock, at which two new members were elected, plans for a Flag Day outing discussed and matters arranged in connection with the meeting of the General Society in Boston, the first week in May. An attractive program of entertainment was opened by singing "Freedom's Land, America." Miss Katherine Hooper gave two very amusing monologues, "At the Rendezvous" and "A Common Nuisance." An interesting and instructive paper was given by the Regent of the State Society, Mrs. Adeline F. Fitz, her subject being "Patriotism as expressed in Music." This was illustrated by fine rendering of some national songs by Mrs. H. A. Austin, accompanied by Miss Lillian Scovel, who gave upon the piano other national airs. The paper was still further illustrated by the presentation of the flags of many countries borne by young ladies whose white gowns contrasted effectively with the brilliant flags as they were grouped upon the stage, the strains of music above them all. After joining in singing "America" the usual social hour was enjoyed in the dining room, where light refreshments were served by the hostesses and their aids.

Among Women.

At the meeting of the Social Science Club next Wednesday morning at the Hunnewell Club, Mrs. John Stetson will speak on "Scraps from a note book in Europe, last summer." A meeting of the Board of Directors is called for 9:15.

Letter to Arthur Hudson, Newton.

Dear Sir: Shuffert Hardware Co., Hickory, N. C. bought a car-load of paint; after selling it a few months, found out it measured seven pints a gallon.

Returned it to the maker and credited customers with what they had lost from short measure.

What do you think of a short-measure paint? Don't you think it half whitewash? Half the paints are part whitewash.

Go by the name: Devote lead-and-zinc. No whitening or clay in that; full measure besides. A gallon Devote is worth two of whitewash paint.

Yours truly
F. W. Devote & Co.

THE NEWTON CENTRE DAY NURSERY

On April 1st, 1904 the Newton Centre Day Nursery entered upon the second year of its existence. Many things still remain to be done. The little nursery needs all the help that its good friends can give it, both in contributions and supplies, and in subscriptions towards the running expenses which of necessity exceed the receipts at present. Yet the Board of Managers are starting in upon this second year's work with a feeling of confidence much stronger than that which existed a year ago when it was but natural to feel not sure of the field in Newton Centre for such work.

It may be of interest to the many well wishers who have helped the Day Nursery through its first and hardest year to know that in the last twelve months 2,443 little children have been received at its rooms and cared for. The largest attendance during these months for a single day was on December eighth, when 20 children were brought to the Nursery; a number that sorely taxed its limited facilities. In the month of November alone 286 children were left with the matron in charge.

Those who from the first have had so deeply at heart the success of this little charity feel well satisfied with this splendid record of work done, and ask all who feel able to contribute somewhat to meeting the expenses of the coming year, to send their contributions to the treasurer, Mrs. W. B. Merrill, Newton Centre.

Electric Power.

We wish to interest you in electric power. We wish to place you in possession of some facts and figures on the efficiency, convenience and economy of this power.

NOTE THE ADVANTAGES:

Convenience.—Which includes ease of handling—small floor space—no fires to feed, no gauges to watch—no engineer required.

Cleanliness.—Freedom from odors—no ashes, oil, water, or mess of any sort.

Reliability.—Always available for 24 hours a day. If you want to run overtime you have no trouble. There are practically no breakdowns and stops for repairs are short and infrequent.

Economy.—Chiefly where the use of power is intermittent, as in elevators, printing machinery and every shop where machines have frequent stoppages. You pay for no waste power.

Make an appointment at your office for an hour that suits your convenience, that we may discuss the above matter with you for your benefit and ours.

SIXTH CLASS LIQUOR LICENSES.

Bernard Billings, B. Benj Buck, Fred R. Durgin, Fred A. Hubbard, Arthur Hudson, George W. Hunt, George H. Ingraham, Elliot W. Keyes, John J. Noble, Edward F. Partridge, Wallace A. Prince, Gordon H. Rhodes, Michael U. Robbins, Sherman N. Sears, Isaac H. Snow, Thomas W. White, Fred H. Wright.

Alderman Webster: I have voted nay on this report because the Mayor recommended in his inaugural that no licenses of this class be issued, and because it is such an important matter it should be discussed by this board. I believe that the Mayor has changed his position somewhat, and is not now opposed to issuing them.

At the request of Alderman Webster a letter from the Mayor to Alderman Dennison was read. Alderman Webster then wished the names of druggists referred to in this letter be given the board. President Saltonstall demurred at this and Alderman Dennison said that he did not know them.

Alderman White. The mayor is man enough to communicate these names to the board directly if it is necessary for the board to have them. Alderman Webster is objecting to these licenses as a matter of principle.

Alderman White was excused from voting on this matter. Recommending leave to withdraw on petitions of Antonio Bontembo, Carmine Calalucia, Grazia Calalucia, Andrew Cornoni and Amadeo Marchelletta for street musician licenses, and to H. H. Gilfix for a junk license.

RECESS.

From 8:35 to 8:40 p. m. for meeting of Committee on Public Works.

ORDERS ADOPTED.

Making certain betterment assessments on Green street, and assigning hearings on May 2 for taking land for sewers in Emerald st., Hawthorne street and Foster place and for change of grade of Broadway.

ORDERS READ TWICE AND ADOPTED.

Granting $31,817 for city expenses to May 15th for perambulation of boundary line between Waltham and Newton, authorizing water mains in Grant ave, $100., Proctor st, $200., and Wyman st, $300.

NEW WADE SCHOOL.

The order authorizing the erection of a new school building on the Wade School site at cost of $82,000 was presented by Alderman Hunt.

Alderman White. I have dissented from this order not on account of the amount involved but because the location is not satisfactory to the residents of Upper Falls. It was my intention to introduce an order this evening to purchase additional land for the purpose of facing the building on High street, but after consultation with the leading citizens of Upper Falls, I have decided to acquiesce in the present order. The order was then read twice and adopted.

Alderman Mellen then introduced an order for serial bonds, for $82,500, twenty years at 3½ per cent for construction of new Wade School.

Alderman Mellen. The Finance Committee in considering this matter have added the $500 appropriated last year for the competitive plans, to the amount required for construction purposes. At the suggestion of the Finance Committee, the Committee on Public Works added to its original recommendation of $81,000, the item of $1,000 for inside painting, so that the entire cost of the building will be covered by this order. The amount will be taken by the Sinking Fund Commissioners so that the city will not be obliged to place its bonds on the market.

The order was then read twice and adopted.

NEWSBOYS.

Alderman Sweeney introduced an order requesting the Committee on Rules to consider the advisability of licensing newsboys.

Alderman Sweeney. From my place of business in Nonantum square, I have seen as many as 15 newsboys selling papers. They inconvenience the people, and impede the traffic in this busy square, and at times one would think a football game was in progress. Other cities require such licenses and the police department is in favor of it.

The order was referred to the Committee on Rules.

Adjourned at 9 p. m.

DEATH OF MR. THOMAS DANA.

Mr. Thomas Dana, father of Senator W. F. Dana, and for many years a prominent business man of Boston as a member of the firm of Thomas Dana and Co., wholesale grocers died Friday night at his home on Centre street, Newton. He had been an invalid for six or seven years past and much of the time was confined to the house. Mr. Dana was born in Springfield, Windsor County, Vermont, on Dec. 8, 1833. He attended the district schools of his native place and afterward entered Wesleyan Academy, being graduated from there in 1848. Two years later Mr. Dana began his business career with Tarbell and Dana wholesale grocers, of which his father was a member. In 1863 Mr. Dana purchased the share of Mr. Tarbell and the firm name was changed to Thomas Dana and Co., which did a prosperous business for many years.

Besides his business in the firm of Thomas Dana and Co., Mr. Dana held several important positions, among them being that of president of the Union Glass Company Mr. Dana was married in Upper Falls, Vermont, Feb. 9, 1855, to Helen P. Williams. In 1861 he was married a second time to Mary C. Baldwin of Cambridge. His wife and three children, Senator William F., Helen and Ada, survive him.

The funeral which was of the simplest character was held from the family residence Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was conducted by Rev. Samuel M. Crothers of Cambridge. The burial was at Mount Auburn.

COACH AND FAMILY HORSES.

The finest lot of high class horses ever exhibited for sale in New England. They were all selected with great care, have been carefully blitted, handled and driven regularly, so that they are fitted for use in the city and country. Beautifully matched coach and family pairs, cobs, single drivers and saddlers, all at reasonable prices. Why not buy of a thoroughly responsible firm who have been in business for more than 20 years, and who can show a better list of regular customers and references than any dealers in New England. Our policy is, where we sell a horse and it does not give perfect satisfaction, to take it back and give another equally as good, without any additional charge. We can give the very best references. MONTANARI-DAY.

Eliot Church Thronged at Brilliant Ceremony.

Italian Army Officer Weds Newton Young Woman.

The spacious Eliot church was none too large to contain the immense gathering at the wedding, last Wednesday afternoon of Miss Helen R. Day, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Day of Sargent street, and Captain Carlo Montanari of Spezia, Italy, an officer of the Italian Army. The ceremony took place at 4:30 o'clock and long before that hour, the ushers, Messrs Carlton L. Ellison, William Ellison, Francis Prescott, Otis B. Prescott, Richard S. Tolman, Robert Lord of Newton, C. E. Whitmore, Jr., of Boston and Willard L. Day of West Newton were busy indeed in seating the multitude. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with palms, pink and white azaleas and Easter lilies. Prior to the ceremony Mr. Everett E. Truette, the organist, assisted by Mr. Heinrich Schuecker, harpist, rendered the following attractive program:

Grand Choeur.
Harp Solo, Fantasia.
Cantilene Nuptiale.
Evening Star.
Harp solo, Ballade.
Benediction Nuptiale, from Wedding Mass.
Processional, from Wedding Mass.
Harp and Organ Duo.
Traumerei.
Processional March.
Harp Solo, Preghiera.
Lohengrin Wedding March.
Mendelssohn Wedding March.

The bride, dressed in white panne voile, the waist trimmed with Burano lace, wearing a long veil of tulle fastened with orange blossoms, and carrying a bouquet of sweet peas, was escorted to the altar by the arm of her father. She was preceded by the ushers, the bridesmaids, Miss Alice B. Day and Lucy M. Day of West Newton cousins of the bride, Miss Anna S. McDonald of Boston and Miss Beatrice C. Springer of Newton, dressed in pink messaline silk

HARWOOD-REED.

The wedding of Mr. John Harwood of Ivanhoe street and Miss Annie B. Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Reed of Chicago took place in the Hyde Park Presbyterian church of that city last week Thursday at 4 o'clock.

The bride was gowned in white lace and was accompanied by Miss Gertrude Powell of Burlington, Vt., as maid of honor, and Miss Annie McWilliams of Odell, Ill., and the Misses Katherine Barton, Sara Otis Armory and Elizabeth Baker of Chicago as bridesmaids. These young ladies were dressed in white net with pink ribbons and wore white lace hats.

Dr. Walter A. Lecompte of Boston was the best man and Messrs Edward R. Coffin of Schenectady, N. Y., Albert R. Whittier, Jr. Dr. Fred M. Spalding, Pierpont L. Stackpole of Boston, Frank J. Currier of Lynn, Mass., and Charles B. Reed of Chicago were the ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Reed residence 5409 Jefferson avenue, for the bridal party and relatives.

There were many Boston and Newton people present.

Mr. and Mrs. Harwood will go abroad on a wedding trip and will reside in Newton on their return.

DERBY-FRENCH.

Miss Edna Jeanette French, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. French of West Newton became the bride of Mr. John Howard Derby of Boston the son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Derby of Poulney, Vt., last Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed at 7 p. m. at the residence of the bride on Henshaw terrace, by the Rev. John Mattison of the Church of the Messiah in the presence of intimate friends and relatives of the young couple.

The bride was dressed in a very beautiful gown of white India silk with trimmings of Valenciennes lace and Brussels net. She wore the usual tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses. A diamond pin the gift of the groom was a conspicuous ornament.

Miss Jean Chalmers of West Newton was the maid of honor and wore a light blue silk muslin over taffeta, trimmed with point Venice lace and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

The Easter offering taken at the New Church, Newtonville, has been increased by additional contributions until the amount has reached the sum of $1,000.

Plans are being made for a Sunday school social to be held later at the Universalist church, Newtonville, under the direction of Mr. Elmer H. Jenson's class of young men.

A Child Study Club has recently been organized by members of St. John's church, Newtonville, and will be non-sectarian in character. The first meeting will be held, Friday afternoon, April 29th at 3 o'clock when the subject "Rewards and Punishments," will be considered.

The Newton Methodist church contributed for religious and benevolent work, consisting of the running expenses, church debt and various organizations, during the past year the sum of $8,110. This is an average of $32.44 per member.

Mrs. F. N. Robbins who served so acceptably for years as the head of the Chancel Committee at Grace church has resigned and Mrs. H. Sellman has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

The Freedman's Aid Society of Eliot church held a meeting at the home of Miss Spear on Walnut park last Tuesday afternoon.

A sale and entertainment under the auspices of the Junior League was held at the Newton Methodist church last Wednesday afternoon and evening.

A communion service will be held next Sunday afternoon at 4:30 at the Second Congregational church, West Newton.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held Thursday afternoon at the Newtonville Methodist church. Supper was served at 6:30 and was followed by a social hour.

The Sunday school connected with the New Church, Newtonville, gave an interesting Easter program at the session of the school last Sunday.

Rev. E. M. Noyes of the First church, Newton Centre, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church in that village last Sunday evening.

At the morning service at the Newton Centre Baptist church last Sunday Mr. M. J. Fanning, superintendent of the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon league gave an interesting address on the work being done by that organization.

Rev. W. W. Hooper of Bellows Falls, Vt., occupied the pulpit of the First Universalist church, Newtonville, last Sunday exchanging with the pastor.

The Woman's Guild held a meeting in St. John's church, Newtonville, last Wednesday afternoon.

At the Auburndale Methodist church last Sunday morning Rev. F. E. Emrich D. D., of the Massachusetts Home Missionary society was the speaker and the annual offering was taken for home Missions.

The North Evangelical Church, Chape street will dedicate next Sunday at 7 p. m. its new addition to the vestry, free of debt, Dr. Davis, Dr. Patrick and others officiating. This addition includes Sunday school room, a light and sunny ladies' parlor with genial fire place, a commodious kitchen, toilet rooms, and spacious basement. This is the culmination of a series of efforts, dating from the burning of the little chapel built in '66. Through the untiring labors of Rev. Sam'l E. Lowry the present stone church was built in 1873. This was followed by the purchase of land through to Bridge st., on which through the late Rev. Daniel Greene the present parsonage was built nine years ago. Two years ago the beautiful Hutchinsons organ was placed in the church.

On Wednesday at 7:45 p. m. will take place the social celebration with addresses by some of the local pastors and others. Light refreshments will be served.

All are cordially invited.

Funeral of John C. Chaffin.

The funeral of the late John C. Chaffin took place from his late residence 124 Vernon street, Newton, last Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The service was conducted by Rev. William H. Davis, pastor of the Eliot church of Newton. His readings from the scriptures and his prayers were interspersed by the singing of several hymns by the Albion Quartet, T. E. Johnson, James C. Bartlett, George H. Remese and D. Mark Babcock, whose selections were "Eternal Goodness," "Gathering Home" and "Passing Out of the Shadow," all sung by special request of Mr. Chaffin's family. The burial was in Mount Auburn Cemetery, and was without the services of honorary pall bearers.

An Ideal Household Article.

The modern theory of germ life and its relation to disease has shown the housekeeper how important it is in her spring cleaning that all unclean conditions liable to become sources of sickness or disease should be removed. For this work nothing equals that well-known article Cabot's SULPHO-NAPHTHOL.

Throughout the house, in kitchen, pantry, bath room and cellar in fact from cellar to attic everything should be thoroughly washed with it in the water instead of soap, for it has cleansing properties vastly superior to any other agent.

It will correct all unsanitary conditions, purify the air of foul, poisonous odors, emanating from closet bowls, drains, sinks, slop jars, etc., also rid the house of roaches, buffalo bugs, moths, ants, etc. A perfectly healthy home is the result of using Cabot's SULPHO-NAPHTHOL.

Pity the Poor Bachelor.

Laying all jokes aside, what excuse has an old bachelor for living? Possibly the better one is that he can't help it or that it is no fault of his that he is or that he continues to exist. These observations are made from the old maid's point of view, which seems to be the point from which the old bachelor is viewed. There are other viewpoints from which he appears to better advantage, particularly at first glance, but when the halo of sentiment which he has gathered around him has been blown away even these points do not offer entrancing views. The fact remains, however, that he still exists and still has natural force enough to develop a halo of sentiment that is more or less attractive to the opposite sex, if not really magnetic, and strong enough to draw attention to him, and respectful attention too. The bachelor ought to know why he is as he is, and no doubt he does, but for some reason or other he has not been entirely successful in satisfying the public that his reasons are good and sufficient. It is up to him, therefore, to set public opinion right concerning himself. — Pittsburg Gazette.

An Eccentric Lord.

Matthew Robinson (Lord Hokeby), a prominent but eccentric Englishman of the eighteenth century, became famous for his long beard and his pronounced hatred of medical practitioners. In regard to the former it is said that upon one occasion when going to an election he stopped at an inn where the country people, who had assembled from miles around, took him for a Turk and through this mistaken idea almost worried "uncle lord" to death. His dislike for physicians was carried to such an extreme that he left a codicil to his will which was to the effect that a favorite nephew was to be disinherited should he (the nephew) in the last illness of the lord let his sympathies cause him to send for a doctor. This having been made known to the nephew when his uncle, the lord, was in good health, it is needless to add he allowed that person's spirit to take its flight without calling in any of the "infernal surgical fraternity."

Grossing Humor.

The story of the French humorist who was presented with a silver ornamented coffin by a grateful undertaker whom he mentioned in his latest story is not without a parallel in the Lincoln's Inn store of anecdotes. The late Mr. Edward Karshake, Q. C., while canvassing at Colechester in the seventies, is said to have asked an elector to make him two trunks. "But I'm not a trunk maker," said the disappointed tradesman. "What are you, then?" inquired the candidate. "I'm an undertaker," was the answer. "Very well, then," said the learned gentleman, "make me a coffin instead." When the coffin arrived at his London residence there were members of his family who strongly objected to giving it house room. "Very good," he rejoined, "I'll have it sent to my chambers. It will serve as a receptacle for Beavan's reports." — London Globe.

An Example of Stern Bravado.

For stern bravado, says the United Service Magazine, it would be hard to rival the feat of Ensign Gillis, who saw a stray torpedo coming slowly, but surely, toward the anchored torpedo boat Porter in the Spanish-American war. He sprang overboard, turned the nose of the torpedo in a safer direction and screwed up the firing pin tightly, so that it would not operate. Then, treading water, he saluted Lieutenant Fremont and reported, "Sir, I have to report I have captured a torpedo." "Bring it on board, sir," commanded Fremont, and Gillis actually did so, swimming with it to the ship and fastening tackle to it.

Proved Her Responsibility.

A curious incident occurred at a railway station at Kingstown, near Dublin. A wealthy lady one day demanded a ticket on credit, saying that she had forgotten her purse. The clerk naturally refused to accede to her request, whereupon the enraged lady went straight off to her bank, drew out a hundred pounds in gold and, returning to the station, showed the sovereigns through the pigeonhole of the booking office in front of the astonished clerk. "There," said she; "that will teach you that I can be trusted with a return ticket to Dublin!"

Never Surrender.

There is no defeat. Don't admit it for a moment. Never surrender. When the last second comes, make the last thought hopeful, the last breath brave. The man or creed that tells you it is too late speaks hopelessly and in ignorance of the great mystery, for we are the great mystery, fragments of a fate, a future, not within our comprehension, beyond the speculation of the thing that dies. — Schoolmaster.

Fitting.

"I beg your pardon, doctor," said the stout master after the dinner was over, "for introducing you inadvertently as 'professor.'"

"That's all right," replied the principal speaker of the occasion. "The title fits me better than 'doctor' does. I profess to be a doctor, but I get mighty little practice."

Getting Out of It.

Mrs. Unhappy (after the quarrel)—When we were married you said you'd be willing to follow me to the end of the world, and now—Mr. Unhappy—Now I desire to call your attention to the fact that the world has no ends. It is round.

When one meets the tipping problem face to face he understands what is meant by the saw "All things come to him who waits." — New Orleans Times Democrat.

TO NURSING MOTHERS.

Are you worn out? Tired and completely run down? You have no vitality, no energy. You are nervous, weak, fretful and cry easily.

For just such cases as yours Vin-Tone has been prepared. It overcomes that tired, weak feeling and puts new energy into body and mind.

Do not be skeptical and refuse to believe what eminent physicians pronounce to be a fact.

Doctors who have made a deep study of this subject, have, after much patience, experimenting and expense, succeeded in compounding Vin-Tone. And having been convinced of its wonderful strengthening power, they now send it out into the world to do its work among poor weary human beings. We are glad to be able to print the good news that a remedy has at last been discovered which takes right hold of any worn-out system and builds a foundation to health and happiness.

To the nursing mother this is a little like a God-send.

One bottle will convince you.

Scene of Montanari-Day Wedding.

trimmed with repousse lace with chiffon girdle. They wore picture hats of white point d'esprit lace with long pink streamers and carried bouquets of pink roses. Following the bridesmaids came the maid of honor, Miss Florence Harding of Newton gowned in white messaline silk trimmed with repousse lace with chiffon girdle and wearing a picture hat of white rosebuds tied with long tulle streamers. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Immediately preceding the bride was the flower girl, Miss Harriet R. Ellison, cousin of the bride, in white muslin with lace over pink silk and with a basket of pink and white sweet peas. Following the bride were her two brothers, Ashley and Ellison Day, dressed as pages in white mohair suits.

The bridal party was met at the chancel by the groom, in the full dress uniform of his rank, for the wearing of which, special permission was given by the Italian government. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. William H. Davis, D. D. pastor of the bride, while the soft strains of an improvisation of the tune of "Immortal Love" was played.

Following the ceremony a small family reception was held at the Day residence, 154 Sargent street, which was adorned with white azaleas and Easter lilies.

Captain and Mrs. Montanari will make an extended wedding trip over the American continent and will sail for their home in Italy in the early fall.

Sarah Hull Chapter, D. R.

Members and interested persons are notified that the Sarah Hull Chapter D. R. will send soon one or more barrels to the mountaineers at and near Berea, Kentucky. All desiring to contribute reading matter, clothes, or useful and fancy articles, please notify or send before May 1st to Miss S. A. Whiting, 11 Washington street, Newton.

The groom was attended by his cousin, Mr. Clyde Cushman of New York as best man, and Messrs. Joseph Dore of Boston, Ralph Sawyer of Dorchester and Ernest W. French of West Newton were the ushers.

The house was elaborately decorated with white in the parlor and hall, and pink in the dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Derby received under a triple wedding bell of white, covered with asparagus vine and were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. French.

Following a wedding trip to New York and Vermont, Mr. and Mrs. Derby will spend the summer with Mr. and Mrs. French at Wheeler's Point, Cape Ann.

The presents were beautiful and costly with many pieces of cut glass, solid silver and hand painted china.

We congratulate both the city of Newton and the village of Upper Falls on the settlement of the much vexed question of a new school house and its location. The city is to be congratulated because it receives a splendid addition to its valuable school plant at a cost which is considered very reasonable by competent authorities. Upper Falls is to be congratulated because its children of today and for many years in the future will have excellent accommodations, admirably adapted for educational purposes, under the best possible hygienic conditions.

We predict that the disappointment
felt by some over the failure to face
the building on High street (on account of the greatly increased cost) will disappear in the near future, and cause as little disturbance as the location of the Bigelow School does in the village of Newton.

We rather imagine that the public are satisfied with the solution of the druggists' liquor license question, although there is evidence that some of the druggists have been unjustly treated by the state board of pharmacy.

cent change in the Brookline street

Song Recital.

A select and fashionable audience greeted Miss Cora E. Davis and Miss Josephine Martin at their Song Recital last Wednesday evening at the Newton Club.

These two young ladies are too well and favorably known to Newton audiences to require extended comment on their work, and it suffices to say that both appeared to be in excellent voice and fully deserved the many flattering recalls which they each received. "Castles in the Air" was pleasingly rendered by Miss Davis, and Miss Martin's fine contralto was heard with fine effect in the Scotch air "Av Wakin' O."

Mr. Winternitz aroused considerable enthusiasm with his playing on the violin and Miss Tibbets and Mr.
Zirnbaum were excellent accompanists.

GOODRICH-BOARDMAN

One of the social events of the spring season was the wedding of Miss Madeline Boardman daughter of Mr. T. Dennie Boardman of Boston and Mr. J. Wallace Goodrich, formerly of this city, the ceremony taking place Wednesday at 12 o'clock in Emmanuel church at Manchester. The officiating clergyman was Rev. John McGaw Foster rector of the Church of the Messiah, Boston. The bride and groom were unattended and the ushers were Mr. Herbert S. Potter of Newton, cousin of the groom, Mr. Reginald Boardman of West Manchester, brother of the bride and Messrs Frederick
S. Converse of Westwood, Henry
M. Goodrich of Boston, Arthur J.
Richmond of Boston and William B.
Dinsmore Jr. of New York. Following the service at the church a wedding breakfast was served at the "Chubb's" the Boardman summer residence at West Manchester. Mr.
Goodrich, who is a native of Newton,
is well known in musical circles and is at present organist and choir director at Trinity church.

MRS. LOWELL DEAD

Mrs. Lucy Buckminster Lowell, widow of Judge John Lowell, died Wednesday at the family residence, on Hammond street, Chestnut Hill, in her 77th year. The immediate cause of her death was the bursting of a blood vessel. For more than 30 years she lived in the Lowell residence in Chestnut Hill. She was the daughter of George H. Emerson. The surviving family consists of Mr. John Lowell, Representative James Arnold,
Lowell, Mrs. William H. Aspinwall and Miss Lucy Lowell, who lived with her mother.

Golf.

The season was formally opened allow the city last Tuesday and all the clubs enjoyed a large patronage.

ALBEMARLE.

The formal opening of the Albemarle Golf Club for the season, Apr.
19, was a great success in every way, a large number of members and their friends being present. A Handicap Match versus Bogey, 27 holes, 9 selected, brought out a field of 30 players in the morning. President Avery and Vice president Duncan, as partners, starting the ball rolling. The following tied for top place, with four below bogey: Henry Haynie, P. R. Knight, W. C. Boyden,
Harvey S. Chase and C. H. Alden,
Jr. They will play off next Saturday morning.

The reception committee, composed of Messrs Harry M. Stonmetz
J. H. Vahey, C. B. Somers, Albert
Auryansen, W. L. Wadleigh, H. H.
Cook and Misses Elizabeth Schofield, Sallie Casey and Mabel Pettee did
the honors in the club house, serving refreshments from one until six.
The management received high praise for the completeness and efficiency of its entire arrangements.
The club house has been refurnished, the course put in splendid condition, the caddy system satisfactorily reorganized, and the tournaments, if that of Tuesday affords a criterion, will be conducted efficiently in detail. The active membership is limited to 75, the associate membership to 150. From present indications it looks as though there would be a waiting list by the first of June. In addition to owning one of the best nine-hole courses in the state, centrally located in Newton, the expense of membership is lower than that of any other golf club in this vicinity—$20 a year and $10 entrance fee for active members, and $15 without entrance fee, for associate members.

WOODLAND.

There was a scratch medal play in three classes. A. J. Wellington in class A won the gold medal with 95, in class B, W. L. Church took the silver medal in 95 and the bronze medal in class C was won by G. F.
Steele in 105.

NEWTON.

Langdon Coffin won the handicap stroke competition with which the club opened the season, by winning both the gross and net scores with 84-10-74.

BRAE BURN.

The holiday cup was won by Lennox H. Lindsay in a long list of entries, with 108-28-80. Percival Gilbert had the best gross score of 89.

The first club match for the season was won by Capt. Fuller's team by defeating Capt. Paine's team 6 to 4, thirteen men on a side.

Among Women.

"The Use and Abuse of Public Libraries" will be considered at the Social Science Club next Wednesday
at 10 a. m. at the Hunnewell Club.
Miss E. P. Thurston and Mrs. John
M. Woodbridge will be the speakers.
Guests may be invited.

The annual meeting of the Newton-ville Woman's Guild will be held Tuesday April 20th at 3 o'clock in the New Church parlors, Newton-ville. The business session will be at 3 o'clock and will be followed by a program of tea and music.

The Ladies Home Circle will hold a whist next Wednesday at 2:30 p.
m. at the residence of Mrs. Albert Plummer, Lexington street Auburn-dale.

Club and Lodges.

General Hull Lodge No. 123, A. O.
U. W., will observe its thirty-fifth anniversary in Dennison hall, Newton-ville, this evening at eight o'clock.
From eight until nine a musical entertainment will be provided; from nine until quarter after ten whist will be enjoyed. Souvenirs will be awarded to the two gentlemen and ladies having the largest scores, after which strawberries, ice cream and cake will be served.

An Old Folks' leap year party under the auspices of Waban Lodge I. O. O.
F. was held in Dennison hall, Newtonville, last Wednesday evening.
Many quaint costumes were worn and
the affair was well attended.

High School Notes.

The commissioned officers have had their pictures taken by Partridge.

The baseball team has been chosen as follows: W. Woodward, 1904, pitcher; A. Schofield, 1905, catcher; B.
T. Stephenson, 1904, first base; A.
Bacon, second base; F. R. Thomas, captain, 1904, third base; C. R. Leonard, 1904, short stop; Cushing, 1907,
left field; Sullivan, 1906, centre field;
T. Hobart, 1906, right field. The team ought to make a good showing
this season as five of last year's team
are still playing and the new men have made a good showing in the practice.

C. E. CONVENTION.

The Middlesex County Y. P. S. C.
E. Convention was held at the Eliot church, Newton, April 19th. The delegates were the guests of the Newton
C. E. Union, whose Reception Committee was on duty in full force, detachments meeting every train and electric car, during the afternoon and early evening. The work of the Registration Committee commenced promptly at one o'clock, and 1200 names were registered, making the attendance considerably larger than it has been for 5 years past.

The afternoon program opened at two o'clock with a praise service conducted by Mr. C. L. Estey. The Quiet Hour in charge of Rev. F. B.
Matthews of Newton followed. The keynote of the Convention was "Expansion," and the addresses of both sessions were in line with this topic.
In the afternoon Rev. Willard Scott,
D. D. of Worcester, spoke most impressively of "Our Modern Attitude Toward Life," Mrs. Flora V. Stebbins of Fitchburg told of "The Church of Our Fathers—Plus," the last word standing for a half dozen or more of the most effective organizations of the modern church. "The World-wide Expansion; or the Cultivation of the Missionary Spirit," was the subject of a stirring and suggestive address
by Prof. E. C. Moore of Harvard University, his main thought being introduced in his opening sentences—
"to the effect that the rich are not rich to their own private benefit, but in order that they may know the joy of service through their riches; those with high mental powers are not thus endowed for their own gratification
but that they may be the blessers of their fellow men." "It counts for a disgrace for a man to have money and not give, to be Educated and not to have an active interest in the cultivation and education of his fellows." And Prof. Moore proceeded to answer the greater and more vital question as to the use of the "treasures of the moral and spiritual life which are inestimably more valuable than these other things."

The Devotional service of the evening session, led by Rev. W. H. Davis of the Eliot church, was followed by addresses by Rev. George Hodges, D.
D., Dean of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, on "The Christian Social Parish," and by Dr.
George F. Pentecost of Northfield, whose theme was Jesus Christ, an Imperialist. It was he who "looked over the world, even when the cross was just before him, and said: This Gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached to all Nations." What a magnificent conception, what a magnificent purpose." Dr. Pentecost pronounced this Gospel the only force
by which the world will be conquered, and closed with the significant words: "Expansion was not only our Lord's command and his last command, but it was his only command to his Church."

A specially pleasing feature of the Convention was the music. A well trained chorus and orchestra led the singing. Solos were very effectively rendered by Mr. Estey of Campello and Mrs. May Sleeper Ruggles of Auburndale. An organ recital given by Mr. Henry T. Wade, Newton, from 6:15 to 6:45 p. m. was highly appreciated.

Supper was served in the Immanuel Baptist as well as at the Eliot church, the two churches accommodating 900 people.

The program was as follows:

Feared a Separation.

Her father had read her the parable
of the sheep and the goats at the day of judgment. She made no comment, but that night a sound of weeping came from her room. Her mother went as consoler.

"Why are you crying, dear?"

"About the goats. Oh, I'm so afraid I'm a goat."

"Why, no, dearie. You are a sweet little lamb, and if you should die tonight you would go straight to heaven."

With this and like assurance she was finally pacified.

The next night the same performance was repeated, and again her mother inquired the reason.

"It's the goats. I'm afraid about the goats."

"Didn't I tell you, dear, that you were a little lamb?"

"Oh," she sobbed, "I'm not crying about myself, but I'm 'fraid you may be a goat!"—Brooklyn Life.

Odd Hair Styles.

Some of the New Hebrides people do their hair up in a bunch on the top of the head and stain it yellow, while the inhabitants of Omba island pass it all through a tube so as to make a kind of plume. The Marquesas chief's favorite method is to shave all the head except
two patches, one over each temple,

where he cultivates two horns of hair.
No doubt this is to render him more a thing of terror to his enemies than of adoration to his friends. His reason for shaving the rest of the head is to allow more space for tattooing, as if all the available skin of the body were not enough.

Not Yet.

"They're saying you're just like all the other members of the house," remarked the newly elected legislator's close friend. "They say you have your price."

"That's a lie," declared the new member.

"I thought so."

"Yes, I haven't got it yet, but I have hopes."—Philadelphia Catholic Standard and Times.

Cutting It Short.

"How long can you stay?" asked a hostess who had received an unexpected visitor coolly.

"No longer than I can help," was the crisp reply. "I have telephoned to have my trunk stay at the depot and to notify me of the first train I can take home. So sorry I can't stay longer."—

Letter to Nonantum Coal Co., Newtonville.

Dear Sirs: Lead-and-oil is not good paint; don't wear; the rule is, as everyone knows, repaint in three years.

Devote lasts six, in the same way—allow wide margin in all such statements. What does it mean, to last? It means the same with both.

As to covering: that's another. Here's an instance.

Mr. J. Hall, Sheffield, Pa., painted two houses, lead-and-oil; took 40 gallons.

Last summer bought 40 gallons Devote for the same two houses; returned 10 gallons.

The paint, that covers, lasts; it's all paint, true paint, and full-measure. Lead-and-oil is all paint but not good paint; the lead wants zinc. Better paint Devote.

Yours truly

F W Devote & Co

They sail for the Philippines on April 30th, to be gone three years.

—Miss Alice Mabel Stanaway, the popular and talented contralto of the Channing church choir is to give a song recital in the church parlors next Wednesday evening at 8:15. Mrs. Charles A. White of Boston will be at the piano. There is a considerable desire to hear Miss Stanaway who is about to go to Paris to study during the summer. Tickets have been placed on sale at Hubbard's drug store.

—An entertainment for the benefit of the Nonantum Industrial school was given at the residence of Mrs. Francis Edgar Stanley, on Thursday April 21st from three to five o'clock. Mrs. William J. Follett gave a paper on Booker Washington, and Mrs. Lewis R. Spear sang several typical southern songs. The Misses Mason and Spear gave selections on the guitar and mandolin, and Miss Jennie Haskell on the piano. Refreshments were served, and a goodly sum was netted for the school.

—The old newspaper reading room in the Newton Free Library which was recently partitioned off has been opened for children's room and will be in charge of Miss Lucy B. Cain. The walls have been tinted an attractive green, new tables, chairs and pictures have been put in and the shelves have been filled with the juvenile books. This new feature will fill a long felt want and will be appreciated by the library patrons. The room will be opened from 1.30 to 6.00 p. m. each day and on Saturday from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

—The many friends of Mr. S. M. Sayford are afforded the opportunity of hearing him speak at the Inman Baptist church next Sunday morning, where he assists the pastor. In the evening a double quartette of trained voices will give a musical program of the following numbers: Anthem, "The Saviour when Night involves the Skies," Shelley Male Quartette, "Still, still with Thee," Gerrish

THE PLAYHOUSE.

Boston Music Hall—James H. Wallick's big scenic success, "The Queen of the Highway," which scored such a success when it was presented at Music Hall last season, and which was rated as one of the best melodramas of Western life that had been presented in Boston in several years, returns to that theatre on Monday afternoon of next week for an engagement of one week. The play abounds in thrilling situations and wonderful mechanical effects. Special scenery is carried for each of the four acts, the production being one of the most elaborate ever presented at popular prices.

Majestic Theatre—For a number of years no musical comedy organization has visited Boston that is any more welcome than Ward and Vokes. No matter what these well known comedians may bring to this city in the way of an attraction they are always certain to be greeted by an enthusiastic audience, and it is a well known fact that they have always something of interest to amusement loving seekers to offer. This pair of "comics" comes to the Majestic theatre on Monday night of next week in their latest and greatest success, "A Pair of Pinks." This is the most pretentious offering that these comedians have had since they first began their career as farce comedy stars ten years ago under the direction of E. D. Stair, and in every city in which they have appeared this season their product has been hailed as one of the best musical comedies that has been sent upon the road this season. The engagement is limited to two weeks with matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Globe Theatre—Not in many seasons has so pronounced a hit been made in Boston as has been scored by Weber and Fields' all star stock company at the Globe Theatre where this splendid organization opened last Monday night to an audience that occupied every vacant space in the large playhouse. "Whoop Dee Doo" is only what the management has claimed for it, a musical absurdity in two "Whoops." So tuneful is the music, so fast and furious the comedy, and so magnificently staged is it, that all of Boston was talking about it Monday night. Weber and Fields themselves, who have had many imitators but no rivals were never funnier than they are in this play, while Lillian Russell, undoubtedly the most beautiful woman on the stage had four song numbers which won her great applause. Peter F. Dailey, Chas. J. Ross, John T. Kelley, Louis Mann and Mabel Fenton, all had most congenial roles for the exercise of their ability. The evening performances begin sharp at 8, owing to the length of the bill, and Wed. and Sat. matinees at 2.

G. A. R.

A reception to the Lasell battalion was given by Charles Ward Post in Temple hall, Newtonville last evening. There was a large attendance and the program consisted of an address of welcome by Commander C. C. Patten, drill by Company A and B of Lasell, remarks by Rev. W. H. Nick, Captain Jenks of Lasell, Rev. Mr. Anderson of Quincy, Henry Haynie, an original poem by Comrade S. L. Putnam, singing by the Post led by comrade Wetherbee and by the battalion. A collation was served by Hyslop and the exercises closed by singing America.

A Thai Wedding.

In many parts of India Hindu girls are wedded not with a ring, but with a necklace or thali. At the wedding of the daughter of a leading native, Monimeln, there were present among the numerous guests a Hindu maiden and her lover, whose suit had not so far progressed to his satisfaction. While the wedding ceremony was in progress the young man suddenly went up to her and before any one suspected what his object was pulled out a thali from his pocket and quietly tied it round her neck. Of course there was a hubbub as well as parental lamentations over this dramatic episode, but so great is the veneration for the thali among Hindus that no one dared to remove it from the neck of the astonished maiden. All concerned, therefore, repaired to the Marriam temple, where the act was ratified, and the maid who went to the wedding of her friend fancy free left the scene as the legal wife of a bold and successful husband.—London Telegraph.

Sterling Coin.

The origin of "sterling" as applied to coined money is thus given in "A Short Treatise Touching Sherriffs' Accounts," by Sir Matthew Hale, 1683: "Current coin of the realm is of gold or silver, with an alloy of copper, at least from the time of Henry I. and this alloy gave the denomination of Sterling to those coins. "Spelman supposes it to take that name from the Esterlings, who came over and reformed our coin, to that alloy—of this opinion was Camden. Possibly in those times a Penny was called a Sterling, without any other reason than the use of the times, as other names grow, for the old Act of Henry III. tells us that Denarius Anglice Sterlings dicitur (a denarius, or penny, is called in English a Sterling), and because this was the root of the measure of silver coin; therefore all our coin of the same alloy was also called Sterling."

The Old Time Skipper.

Inmates of the workroom on an American man-of-war often allude to the captain as the old man or the skipper. The latter is not, as many suppose, a slang term, but a sound word, of excellent etymology and valuable as carrying within itself an interesting bit of commercial history. Skipper is simply skipper, and it comes down from a time when every commander was as well part owner of vessel and cargo, or, literally, the skipper. There are still scores of local shipyards along the Atlantic coast, some of them the outgrowth of private yards where the "vessel owners" of years ago built their own ships to carry their own and their neighbors' crops to market.

The Greek Year.

The Greek year consisted of three seasons only. Prometheus enumerates them. "They had no sign," says he, "of winter, of dowerly spring, of fruitful summer." In ancient Germany a similar division of the year prevailed, for Tacitus makes the caustic remark that among the Germans winter, spring and summer have a meaning and a name, but to that people the name and blessings of autumn are alike unknown. It is not likely, then, that our Saxon forefathers were acquainted with the last named season, and our very term autumn is an echo of the Roman tongue.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Velocity of Raindrops.

Of course we all know that it would be an utter impossibility for storm clouds to form and rain to fall were it not for the forty odd miles of atmosphere that rises above our heads. But, supposing it were possible for human beings to exist in an atmosphere that only rose to a level with their mouths, and that storm clouds could form in the region outside such a low grade atmosphere, then every raindrop would prove as fatal to earthly creatures as if it were a steel bullet fired from a dynamite gun.—London Nature.

Comfort For the Sheep Stealer.

The prisoner sensibly observed, "I have only this to say, my lord—that it seems rather hard that I should lose my life merely for stealing a sheep." "Prisoner at the bar," replied the judge, "pray understand. You are not going to be hung for stealing a sheep. You are to be hung in order that others may be deterred from stealing sheep."—A. C. Plowden's "Autobiography of a Police Magistrate."

Japanese Applause.

The Japanese show their appreciation of an actor's playing in a more substantial manner than by merely applauding. They throw various portions of their dress on the stage, and at the end of the performance the favored person claims the money that the donors repurchase them with, the prices for the various articles being fixed rates.

All Things Fitting.

"No," said the lumber dealer, "we don't sell all woods here—only the parts cut directly from the trunk." "And what," asked the customer, "do you do with the limbs?" "Oh," replied the cheerful dealer, "we send them all to the branch of blood."—Baltimore News.

She Knows the Reason.

At the dinner table one evening some one remarked that a certain lady had a thin, falsetto voice. Little Maizie was acquainted with the person referred to, and she cried out abruptly: "Oh, I know why! Because she's got a false set of teeth!"

Wine.

"Did Jerrold get anything out of his rich uncle's estate?" "Well, rather; he married the daughter of the attorney for the estate."—Puck.

At the TheatresComing Attractions

Colonial Theatre—Klaw and Erlanger's peerless production, "Mother Goose," is now in its second month at the Colonial Theatre, Boston, and was seen at a special holiday matinee performance Patriots' Day, in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinees. This mighty beauty spectacle has set up two big standards for other local productions—a standard of magnitude and gorgeousness, as well as a standard of success. It is in three parts, or acts, not marked by periods in the story but by scenes of special magnificence—scenes that have set the town talking—and costumes which have made the female portion of the audience go into ecstasies. It is plentifully supplied with rollicking fun and clever satire on modern manners and customs, not too subtle in quality to be appreciated by the thousands of youngsters as well as the oldest who continually crowd the theatre. Joe Cawthorne's humorous methods in the title role are more pronounced than any character in which this clever comedian has heretofore been seen. Harry Bulger, W. H. Macart, Clifton Crawford, Viola Gillette, Leila McIntyre, Edith St. Clair and Marion Garrison have become prime favorites, and the superb ballets with their legion of graceful femininity, added by the marvelous Grigolatis Troupe of aerialists, go far towards making "Mother Goose" stand preeminent among all attractions of its kind, and in a class solely by itself.

Grand Opera House—Joe Welch, famed the country over as the cleverest of Jewish character impersonators, will be seen in the four act comedy drama, "The Peddler," at the Grand Opera House next week under the management of Sullivan, Harris and Woods. In most plays the character of the Hebrew is portrayed as a mean, sordid, grasping sort of man with a heart of stone but the character presented by Joe Welch in "The Peddler" is of a distinctly different type and never fails to appeal to the sympathies of the audience. There will be the customary matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Tremont Theatre—Henry W. Savage will bring out his annual Boston production at the Tremont Theatre Monday night, April 25. It is a musical fantasy of the forest, called "Woodland," and is the latest and most elaborate work of Pixley and Luders. Of all the productions that have been made by Mr. Savage, this newest one is without doubt the most novel and unique. All the characters in this "bird Opera" represent birds. Mr. Pixley has furnished an admirable book which contains many novelties and beautiful lyrics. Mr. Luders, as in his other works, has furnished tinkling melodies. There will be many who will be pleased to learn that in "Woodland" Mr. Luders has written a musical number called "The Tale of a Turtle Dove," as a companion piece to "The Tale of a Sea Shell," "The Tale of a Kangaroo," and "The Tale of a Bumblebee."

Boston Theatre—Through the medium of Julian Mitchell's latest gorgeous spectacular production, "Babes in Toyland," local playgoers are renewing their youth at the Boston Theatre and making a most delightful journey back into childhood days. "Babes in Toyland" has come to Boston and achieved a complete and easy victory. It is one of the biggest successes the stage has seen in its line in years. Childhood's days are easily the most enjoyable of life, and the production of "Babes in Toyland" comes about as near as possible to providing its audience with the most pleasing of spectacles. The fine orchestration adds to the pleasure of the evening, and a meed of praise is due Max Hirschfeld for his able leadership of the enlarged orchestra. Once again, the management desire to call attention to the early rising of the curtain at 7:45 at night and 2 o'clock at the matinees.

Keith's Theatre—One of the most interesting items of the bill to be given at Keith's the week of April 25 will be a 20 minute illustrated travelogue by John Bowker, the noted traveler, entitled, "Japanusa," being a comparison of the two countries now at war. As the lecturer has lived for three years in each country, he is in a position to speak with authority on the subject. The general program includes Fanny Rice, a talented comedienne; Parros Brothers, the greatest equilibrist who have ever visited this country; Callahan and Mack, Irish comedians, in their charming comedy sketch, "The Old Neighborhood;" George W. Day, one of the cleverest blackface comedians and parody singers in the variety; George E. Austin, comedy wire performer, and Gillett's musical dogs, a troupe of canines that will make no end of fun for the juveniles. Underlined for the week of May 2, which marks the beginning of the summer season, is the popular Fadettes woman's orchestra, increased in number to 40, and with a magnificent stage setting.

Among Women.

The annual meeting of the Newtonville Woman's Guild will be held next Tuesday in the New Church parlors. The annual reports will be read and officers elected for the coming year.

The West Newton Women's Educational Club will meet in the Unitarian church parlors this afternoon. The Social Science Committee announces as speaker, Rev. Francis H. Rowley, of Boston, subject, "Our Animal Friends."

A meeting of the Newton Equal Suffrage League will be held next Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Walton on Chestnut street, West Newton. An address will be made by Mrs. Katharine Lent Stevenson, President of the Massachusetts W. C. T. U., and mandolin music by the Misses Bacon, Choat and Burnham.

Norumbega Park

The thousands of patrons of Norumbega Park, who have enjoyed pleasant afternoons and evenings at the vaudeville performances in the open air rustic theatre the past seven seasons, will be pleased to learn that Manager Carl Alberte has under way an entirely new and beautiful open air theatre at this resort for the coming season, which will have the double advantage of greatly increased seating capacity and ample overhead protection in case of rain.

Contracts have been signed and the work began recently on this large structure which will involve an outlay of over $20,000. For several seasons past, notwithstanding the fact that the present rustic theatre at Norumbega Park has been looked upon as the most artistic and most commodious open air theatre in the country, the need of larger seating capacity and better protection from the rain and sun has been keenly felt. During the past winter, Manager Alberte determined that the sentiment for rustic outdoor theatres had passed away, and that the ever increasing patronage of Norumbega Park demanded a much greater capacity. On every pleasant day the past season the attendances not only filled the 2000 and odd seats, but frequently 1000 or 2000 persons had to stand throughout the performances. In the new theatre this season the audience will be completely shaded from the sun by the immense steel trussed roof which covers an area of 20,000 square feet, and at the same time will be fully protected in case of rain. Heretofore, whenever a shower has come up during the afternoon or evening, it has been necessary to abandon the performance entirely or else interrupt it until the rain had ceased. Not a vestige of the old theatre is to be left standing and everything will be new, from the ground up. The new theatre will be completed in modern Renaissance style with immense decorative steel columns supporting the great roof at an average of forty feet above the heads of the audience; and the decorations will be in white and gold with the ceiling in Nile green tints. The seating capacity is enlarged, making the number of seats a little over 3000, the greater part of which are folding opera chairs.

While the stage is enclosed, the auditorium itself is just as open as it ever was, with the exception of the protecting roof. In fact, the roof acts in the capacity of a huge umbrella. It is promised that this new open air theatre will be the handsomest structure of its kind in America, if not in the world. In fact, there is nothing like it in this country, and probably not abroad. The same high class attractions are promised, including the brightest lights of the higher vaudeville stage. A very pretty effect is to be given to the stage and to the enclosures on either side by leaving openings through which the spectators may look upon the beautiful landscape gardening and floral effects.

The huge iron girders which support the roof are 90 feet in length, and 80 tons of steel are required in the construction of the new theatre.

The architect is Samuel J. Brown, who has had in charge the construction of all the buildings at Norumbega Park.

Literary Notes.

Synopsis of The Bright Face of Danger, a new book by Robert Neilson Stephens to be published about April 20th by L. C. Page and Company, Boston, 1 volume, cloth, illustrated, $15.00. This is a story of the adventures of Henri de Launey, son of the DeLauney of La Tournoire of "An Enemy to the King" fame. It will, consequently, be looked forward to with interest by those who have enjoyed that book, as well as by those who had the pleasure of seeing the dramatic version of "An Enemy to the King" which was produced by E. H. Southern. On the other hand, "The Bright Face of Danger" is a complete tale in itself, and can be read without reference to "An Enemy to the King." The book is full of life and action. Young De Launey is well done in every detail—the character of the bookish yet manly lad, just entering upon the strenuous life, is very sympathetically conceived. The Count and the Captain are as striking a brace of villains as have ever been created; while the three maxims given to Henry on his setting out are almost classic:

1st. Never start upon an undertaking until you see your way clear to the end.
2nd. Never sleep in a house where there is an old husband and a young wife.
3rd. Never leave a highway for a byway.

This advice was given DeLauney by Blaise Tripault, La Tournoire's faithful follower, whom we all remember in "An Enemy to the King."

Had DeLauney followed this sage advice, he would not have fallen into so many difficulties—but then The Bright Face of Danger would not have been written. The heroine is beautiful and good. The maid is piquant; and several of the minor people are quaint and amusing. The situations are thrilling and dramatic; on the whole, the book is Stephens' best since "Philip Winwood."

THE MODERN NOTE.

It is not sentiment, but Bravery With a Dash of Humor.

According to the modern notion, a man should be something of an artist in life. He should at least appear to play his part easily, with dash and gusto, like the acrobat who performs each dangerous feat smiling. This is la pantoche, the feather in the cap of courage-bravery with humor added. It is the spirit in which Langtungen was taken, in which Cyrano composed his ballade while he fought a duel, for Cyrano and Alan Brock, no less than Mulvaney and Sherlock Holmes, are very modern heroes.

Stevenson's whole life was one long devotion to this ideal. He carried his ill health and penny bravely and wittily into far corners of the earth through many strange adventures. As he wrote to William Archer: "The medicine bottles on my chimney and the blood on my handkerchief are accidents. They do not exist in my prospect."

The melodramatic gloom of Byron, the hehymose pathos of Dickens and the shallow sentimentality of Thackeray touch the source of our tears less surely than the sheer gay heartedness and courage in the face of disease, difficulty or danger. "This is the modern note. A clever woman told me that every young man of her acquaintance when he reached a certain degree of intimacy, quoted these lines of Henley's:

Under the bludgeonings of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.
—Claude Brangdon in Reader.

THE KANGAROO'S STORY.

Why the Does Throw Their Young Away When Hard Pressed.

"I have heard that men folk in their blindness deem our does to be lacking in the proper instincts of maternity because they have found that a doe kangaroo when hunted will throw away its offspring to save its own skin by hastening its speed. This," says Old Man Jack in the "Autobiography of an Australian Kangaroo" in Pearson's Magazine, "is simply scandalous and foolish."

"Men people are evidently not aware that our youngsters use the mother's pouch almost up to the age of maturity. Would they have our does attempt to fly from dogs and men and horses with youngsters weighing nearly fifty pounds in their pouches? The thing would be impossible."

"Among us a mother is taught to toss her youngsters to a place of safety when she is hard pressed. If she could not throw it to a place far safer in the circumstances than her own pouch she would turn at bay with it and face any odds."

"In the case of my mother, when we were chased, and sure as the hunt became dangerous she would pause, draw me out of her pouch, throw me carefully into long scrub on her right, then turn sharply to her left, pause again until the hounds had seen her and then be off like the wind straight away from me."

Easily Explained.

"Strange that after reaching the top of the ladder he should fall so suddenly."

"There was a woman at the bottom of it."—Life.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

At the closing hearing before the committee on federal relations last week, on the Drinkwater resolutions relative to reciprocity with Canada, Colonel Albert Clark, secretary of the Home Market Club, and one of the best authorities living on tariff questions, from the protection standpoint, gave the closing address in opposition to the resolution. Colonel Clark's speech was so timely that we give in full:

Col. Clark said, To say the least and the best of it, the scheme itself is an impracticable overture. Some of the means by which it is advanced are a feeble imitation of Secession.

A LEAF FROM HISTORY.

In 1830 Mr. McDuffie of South Carolina advanced the remarkable theory that the people of his state were being taxed by the manufacturers of Massachusetts, and Mr. Whitney at this hearing has charged Mr. Whitney with using the Government for levying upon the people a large tribute to his industry. O, what a moss-grown doctrine these alleged reformers are taking up! In 1832 Mr. McDuffie caused the committee on ways and means in Congress to adopt his young treason and they put forth this report:

"We will suppose that a number of cotton planters should form themselves into a company, for the purpose of exporting their cotton to Europe, exchanging it for the manufactures of Massachusetts, and importing these into the United States, with the view of selling them for the benefit of the company. When these manufactures should be brought into the port of Charleston, or Savannah, the custom house officer would demand forty per cent on their value, before he would permit them to be landed and sold in the United States; and the company of planters would, probably, inquire why this duty was exacted upon their manufactures, while the same articles, manufactured in the Northern States, were subject to no duty or tax of any kind? If the officer of customs should truly persecute the system of which he is the minister, he would answer this inquiry by saying: 'it is not because the revenue is wanted to pay the debts, or provide for the common defence of the United States that you are required to pay this duty; but this burden is imposed upon you by a wise and paternal Government, for the avowed purpose of excluding the productions of your own honest and lawful industry, from the market of your own native State, in order that a company of MASSACHUSETTS' manufacturers may obtain possession of that market and be enabled to sell inferior articles at higher prices. The history of the world may be confidently challenged for a parallel instance of outrageous injustice, perpetrated under the perverted forms of legislation.'"

Thus it is seen that South Carolina charged Massachusetts, precisely as some of the gentlemen here now charge Pennsylvania, and in neither case is there any truth or sense. In both there is danger. Fortunately Boston had in Congress a great merchant in the person of Nathan Appleton. How easily he punctured the South Carolina bubble. Said he:

"Now I apprehend that the custom house officer in Charleston or Savannah, instead of the answer which the gentleman from South Carolina has put into his mouth, would reply something in this style. 'In making this importation of foreign manufactures you have gone out of your true character of American planters. National protection does not extend beyond the limits of the United States. In presenting yourselves as the manufacturers of Yorkshire woollens and Manchester cottons, you assume an alien character, and I can recognize you in no other.'"

AN APPEAL TO PAUSE.

But the more completely the delusionists were answered, the more sectional they grew and the more they menaced, until Mr. Appleton exclaimed:

"South Carolina prosperous separated from the Union! Her population doubled in ten years! What but infatuation can think so? What will free trade do for her? All the ports of the United States are as free now as they can be for foreign trade. Every article of foreign merchandise can be bought and sold in them for exportation, free of duty. In the language of the gentleman himself, I say to him—it is time to pause. For Heaven's sake, pause!"

Thirty-six years before that, George Washington, in his Farewell Address, had warned future generations: 'yea sir, had warned us here, today—that it is folly in one nation to look for disinterested favors from another' and he made an appeal to national sentiment and interest which applies to industry not less than to politics and which I invoke against degrading the tariff to a 'local question'."

"The name of American, which belongs to you in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of patriotism more than appellations derived from local discriminations. With slight shades of difference, you have the same religion, manners, habits and political principles. You have, in a common cause, fought and triumphed together; the independence and liberty you possess are the work of joint councils and joint efforts, of common dangers, sufferings and successes. But these considerations, however powerfully they address themselves to your sensibility, are generally outweighed by those which apply more immediately to your interest; here every portion of our country finds the most commanding motives for carefully guarding and preserving the union of the whole."

This means a national and not a sectional industrial policy. All the great Presidents have favored it, and John Quincy Adams, wiser than some of his descendants, stated the broad truth with irresistible force when he said in his fourth message that "the great interests of an agricultural, commercial and manufacturing nation are so locked in union together that no permanent cause of prosperity to one of them can operate without extending its influence to all the others."

WEBSTER'S WEIGHTY WORDS.

Finally, Sir, Daniel Webster, fortunately for us a Massachusetts Senator, and who knew the commercial interests of Boston as well as he understood the principles of our national existence, lifted his great voice for the Union and its superior opportunities for all of us in words of living fire which I hope are still familiar to every schoolboy.

"It has its origin," said he, "in the necessities of disordered finance, prostrate commerce and ruined credit. Under its benign influences these great interests immediately awoke, as from the dead, and sprang forth with newness of life. Every year of its duration has teemed with fresh proof of its utility and its blessings; and although our country has stretched out, wider and wider"—Ah, Mr. Whitney, you used almost that same language as a reason for turning the other way—"and our population stretched farther and farther, they have not overturned its protection, or its benefits. It has been to us all a copious fountain of national, social and personal happiness. I have not allowed myself, sir, to look beyond the Union to see what might lie hidden in the dark recess behind."

Whist.

If you ever feel your bump of self-esteem getting the best of you, take a few lessons in whist. Your teacher will soon convince you that you know nothing and are next door to an idiot. He may not wish to insinuate quite all that, but he can't help himself. You may have had before a little natural ignorance as to your stupidity, but you'll have no doubt of it before you've got it knocked into your head that in every deal there are fifty-two cards, and that you've got to remember what each player wants to do and does with them. You are to be pitied if you are one of those simple people who fancy that, having learned that it is usually bad policy to trump your partner's ace, you're fit to play in a tournament. You're bound to be undeceived.

At first you may imagine that the one important thing is to play your own hand; bitter experience will show you it is much more essential not to spoil your partner's. It is no use to wish for Roentgen rays to see through his cards. You've got to depend on intention and his lead, and the leads of the other two players, to find out what he's got. It depends, too, on what is turned up on your right and your left; and if he wants to be strengthened or unblocked, always do what he wants and you won't get into trouble.

First, learn all the new leads, and should you succeed without getting an attack of brain fever, and know that ace, king, and queen, ace, etc. are utterly different things, remember that the other players are liable to upset the most modern combinations. Sometimes, alas! it turns out that to have done the right thing is the worst thing you could have done. Your partner will probably demonstrate why, afterwards. Whist is a game which has no finality; brace up for the afterword, it is inevitable. Mind you don't dilly-dally; there are few things a veteran hates more than a person who stops to think. He knows what he wants and expects you to do it.

Don't for a moment imagine that when you've learned the leads your partner is always going to follow them. He's apt to upset all your calculations when he gets a chance by leading something different from all the rules you've committed painfully to memory. He calls it an irregular lead. Now of all irregular things, an irregular lead is the most irregular. Sometimes it means he's crazy for trumps, but timid about starting them himself; another time it is because he's got nothing; although it "beats all" why if he hasn't he should want to play it. But your swell player is very fond of wanting to lead from the top of nothing. You needn't worry, though, he always knows what he is doing. He is not working so much to confuse you as to please himself. Don't fancy it is a sort of revenge he is working off because a simpleton like you has all the good cards. It is possible he may be practising off a few whist pyrotechnics. You ought to be prepared for emergencies of that sort. You had better not indulge in them yourself, though. Never forget either, when you've caught on to the fact that your partner is indulging in some experimental whist gymnastics, to rule your play accordingly. He is certain to tell you later he was "really only following the most elementary principles of the game, as you ought to have seen."

Your proper attitude when learning whist is one of deep humility. Learn that you know nothing and be guided by that. Never expect to be reproved gently. You've got to have your mistakes hammered at and driven home to make the proper impression. It is a peculiarity of the human brain. Be assured that if explanations are not always readily understood, it is not because they might be more clearly put.

Lay it to your heart, without anger, that when you know all the rules you'll be told "there are occasions when rules don't work." Remember, though, that these occasions never, by a possible chance, happen to a beginner; they are the exclusive possession of the veteran player, and he won't stand any monkeying with what he owns. Never be idiotic enough to offer them as an excuse for a seemingly erratic play on your part.

Learning whist makes you long for many things, as better brains, a Japanese memory, the power to slay your partner. But soothe yourself. Think of the awful nuisance you are to the other fellow. Hope for the time when you'll be able to square all your present rebuffs on some future novice; imagine how pleasant the time will be when, in the words of the poet, it will be said of yourself: "And still the wonder grew, How one small head could carry all he knew."

Golf.

Officers have been chosen and a schedule prepared for the Newton Golf League, which has been formed to promote a series of team matches between Allston, Albemarle, Commonwealth and Woodland. S. A. MacDonald of the Commonwealth Country Club was chosen president; A. A. Highlands of the Albemarle Golf Club and A. J. Wellington of the Woodland, vice presidents; and E. S. Foster of Allston, secretary-treasurer. Each team will play six matches, beginning on Wednesday, May 11, and continuing each successive Wednesday until June 15, when the series will terminate and the team winning the greatest number of points by the Nassau system will be champion of the league. The schedule follows:

WEDNESDAY, May 11
Allston vs. Woodland, at Allston.
Albemarle vs. Commonwealth, at Albemarle.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 18
Commonwealth vs. Allston, at Commonwealth.
Woodland vs. Albemarle, at Woodland.

Allston vs. Albemarle, at Allston.
Commonwealth vs. Woodland, at Commonwealth.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1
Albemarle vs. Woodland, at Albemarle.
Allston vs. Commonwealth, at Allston.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 8
Woodland vs. Allston, at Woodland.
Commonwealth vs. Albemarle, at Commonwealth.

Albemarle vs. Allston, at Albemarle.
Woodland vs. Commonwealth, at Woodland.

PLAYING RULES.

The teams shall consist of ten men. Each captain shall prepare a list of his players in the order of their club handicaps, and they shall play strictly in that order.

The Nassau system of scoring shall be used, as follows: The winner of the first nine holes shall score a point, the winner of the second nine holes shall score a point, and the winner of the match of eighteen holes shall score a point; in case of ties on any of these three points, each player shall score one-half point; each competing pair will thus account for three points.

A club failing to enter a full team shall lose three points by default for each absentee. 3:30 o'clock shall be the latest time allowed for the entry of a player, but players are requested to be ready for play not later than 2:30.

The rules of the United States Golf Association shall govern all matches, except in cases expressly provided for on the club score cards.

All matches must be played on scheduled dates, except that in case of heavy rain captains may agree to postpone matches, but postponed matches must be played during the week scheduled.

Competing players shall be accorded the privilege of playing over the opposing club's course the two days preceding a scheduled match.

The privilege of the home club's house and grounds is extended to all members of the visiting club wishing to witness the match.

To members of the Allston Golf Club belongs the credit of the formation of the league. They saw in such a series an opportunity to bring the clubs mentioned into closer relationship, bettering their close territorial relations, and in settling their club rivalries on the links new golfing spirit will be injected which is likely to be beneficial this season as well as in seasons to come. Each of the four clubs in the league has excellent golfing talent, so that the matches should be close and exciting and the championship won by the team having the most faithful individuals in its make-up who will attend all the matches and do their level best each time to win.

The Albemarle Golf Club has issued its fixture card for 1904 and it would seem as if the most enthusiastic golfer might be satisfied with the schedule which has been arranged. There is something doing all the time, beginning with the handicap tournament of last Tuesday to the Cup finals on Oct. 29th. The officers of the club are Chas. F. Avery, president; H. E. Duncan, vice president; Fred K. A. Wilcox, secretary; S. Waldo French, treasurer; W. E. Hickox, chairman house committee; C. A. Washburn, chairman grounds committee; A. A. Highlands, chairman open tournament committee; W. L. Wadleigh, chairman club tournament committee, and these directors, C. F. Avery, H. E. Duncan, W. H. Rogers, A. A. Highlands, F. L. Pierce, W. E. Hickox, F. A. McMann, H. H. Cook, C. A. Washburn, F. A. Wilcox and S. W. French.

Best Colors in Oil.

The Heath and Milligan Mfg. Co. call attention this week to their BEST COLORS IN OIL. Their colors in oil possess a depth of tone and strength of color not equalled by any other OIL COLORS and, just as the advertisement states, tens of thousands of tints may be obtained through the medium of these colors. It needs but a trial to convince you. They have been made by the H. and M. people for over fifty years and are for sale by C. H. Campbell of Nonantum Square.

Prevention of Blindness at Birth.

The inflammation of the eyes of newborn infants is a contagious disease, which can only be cured if taken in time and treated with proper care under a doctor's direction. Many thousands of children have lost their sight from this cause, and it has been found in England that thirty per cent of the pupils in schools for the blind were blinded by neglect or wrong treatment of this disease.

The following directions for treatment are most important:

1. Immediately after the birth of a baby, before doing anything else, wipe the eyelids and all around the eyes with a clean, soft, dry linen rag, and soon after wash these parts with warm water.

2. Do not expose the baby to cold air, as cold is one cause of this eye disease.

The disease can be easily known by redness, swelling and heat of the eyelids, and by the discharge of yellowish matter from the eye. Immediately send for a doctor, and keep the eyes as clean as possible by gently washing away the matter every fifteen minutes, both by day and night. It is the discharge of pus that does the mischief.

The washing is done thus:

1. Hold the eyelids apart with finger and thumb, and let a gentle stream of warm water run between them from a bit of fresh rag or cotton wool held a little above.

2. Then move the eyelids softly up and down and sideways to bring out the pus from inside, and wash it off gently.

3. The saving of the sight depends on the greatest care and cleanliness. Each rag must be used only once and then burned immediately; a separate rag must be used for each eye.

4. A little vaseline or lanoline should be occasionally smeared along the lids to keep them from sticking.

5. If only one eye is diseased the child must be laid on the side of that eye, so that the pus may not flow over the nose into the other eye.

Since the pus is highly contagious the nurse must carefully wash her own hands after touching the diseased eyes.

The poison of the pus is far more dangerous in the eye of the adult than in the eye of the infant.

Caution. Do not use any lotions or poultices without the advice of a doctor.

Seasonable Information.

Wherever there is any cleaning or disinfecting to be done this spring nothing will accomplish it so well as SULPHO-NAPHTHOL, which has so thoroughly demonstrated its peculiar adaptability for use about the house, especially as a disinfectant where drainage is dependent upon cess-pools, and for closets, toilets, urinals, sinks, etc. Dispense entirely with soaps, powders, etc., and use SULPHO-NAPHTHOL. Those who have done so are loud in its praise and say they will never be without it. Accomplishes a two-fold purpose—disinfects and cleans. While the imitations on the market may be alike in many respects, yet do not expect the same results, for SULPHO-NAPHTHOL stands without an equal for the numerous purposes it is recommended for.

Real Estate.

A transfer of considerable property has been filed in the Middlesex registry, East Cambridge, involving parcels in Newton Upper Falls and Needham. It is the property that once stood in the name of William T. Kyle, comprising dwellings and shops used by the Newton Silk Company, but later transferred to the Century Realty Investment Company of New York. Now it is redeemed by the company to Mary E. Kyle, who, in turn, conveys to Arthur Kyle. The Newton property standing to the name of the company comprises 14 frame dwellings, shops and stables, and 130,381 feet of land. Its assessed valuation is $10,844 of which $69,550 is on the land. The Needham parcel adjoins the other property, but it is just across the Newton line. This comprises an acre of land and a four family frame house. The total assessment is on a valuation of $3025, $1525 being on the land.

EARTHQUAKES.

BY J. F. FRISBIE, M. D.

A little after one o'clock Monday morning March 21st many people were aroused from their slumbers by rattling of curtains and windows and rocking and trembling of their houses.

Most of those who were awake or were awakened realized that an Earthquake was in our midst and those having a scientific mind instantly sought to ascertain two facts: direction of impulse or earth-waves and number and direction of shocks.

At the first oscillation of my home accompanied by rattling of windows and I exclaimed "earthquake," and springing from my bed hastily went to the window. I counted three distinct earth-waves or shocks, apparently coming from the eastward or north eastward, the first producing vibrations lasting ten or fifteen seconds; the second longer and the third slighter, lasting six or eight seconds. The three shocks were distinct with an appreciable length of time between, and I judged, from first to last, the movements, calculated from the time I was awakened till they entirely ceased, lasted from forty to fifty seconds; then all was quiet.

Of course it is very easy to err in reckoning the duration of earthquake waves, especially when suddenly aroused from sleep, but having experienced an earthquake, more than thirty years ago, under similar conditions to this, and having then made my estimate as to time and direction, which proved accurate, I feel convinced my estimate of this is nearly correct.

This earthquake has aroused a great deal of interest and the question is frequently asked, "What are earthquakes and what causes them?"

Earthquakes are the quakings of the earth and result from definite and well understood causes. The earth crust that the geologist has the opportunity of studying, is largely composed of strata laid down on the sea or ocean floor in the ages long since gone by.

The earth is continually radiating heat into space. As it loses heat it contracts, elevating folded strata in some places with corresponding depressions elsewhere. Fractures in the earth-crust occur in the upfolds and in the depressions. When these take place earthquakes result. Then again, in after years, one side of this fracture may subside, or, as more generally happens the other is elevated and this is accompanied by an earthquake. This change in the relative position of the strata is called a "Fault."

In the Appalachian chain of mountains is a "Fault" where one side of the fractured crust subsided 20,000 feet, nearly four miles. This shows how profound must have been the chasm and how far reaching must have been the effects of the resulting earthquake.

Earthquakes have been divided into three kinds—Explosive, Horizontally progressive and Vorticose. Explosive which may be likened to the explosion of an immense quantity of dynamite near the surface as in a mine. The crust of the earth is broken up and thrown directly into the air. They generally occur in the vicinity of volcanoes. A typical earthquake of this variety was that of Riobomba in 1797. The surface of the earth and objects lying upon it were hurled into the air hundreds of feet. The bodies of men and other things were thrown across a river to the top of a hill.

The "horizontally progressive," the true type of an earthquake, like that we experienced on the morning in March the effect of which sometimes may extend half around the earth as happened in 1755 when Lisbon was devastated and 60,000 people lost their lives.

Peru was devastated by an earthquake in 1868. This had its epicentrum or vertical centre some distance from the shore. The earthquake wave rolled up on the coast of Japan 10,000 miles away, reached Alaska on the north 6,000 and Australia 8,000 in an opposite direction. The profoundness of this convulsion can be appreciated when we take into consideration that nearly one half of our globe was affected by it. The water wave that rushed in upon the Peruvian coast was 50 to 60 feet in height and carried rain in its track. Vessels, and among them, a man-of-war, were carried inland on the crest of the wave and left stranded in street and field when it receded.

The report of coast survey of 1869 says, that had it not been for the barrier of the South American continent, it would have completely encircled the globe.

The velocity of these great sea waves is almost too great to be credited. The great Japan earthquake wave crossed the Pacific to San Francisco at the rate of 370 miles an hour and that from the Peruvian earthquake of 1868 at the rate of 454 miles an hour, or seven and one half miles a minute.

The earth waves are even more rapid in their onward movements but are not so far reaching in their effects. These earth waves have been observed, during an earthquake, to rise and fall like the waves of the ocean accompanied by a crushing, grinding sound as the change in position of the strata took place.

The third form of earthquake is called the "Vorticose." Here the ground is twisted and sometimes whirled back, turning the stones of an obelisk unevenly as was done in the great Calabrian earthquake and straight rows of trees were left twisted and in a zigzag line; and in San Francisco a few years ago when chimney tops were separated close to the roof and partly turned around, and even wardrobes and other furniture were turned partly and, in a few instances, entirely around with their faces to the wall. Cracks in the earth crust were traced more than sixty miles.

Alexis Perry, who has given a great deal of study to the subject of earthquakes believes the moon has some influence in producing them. He has reached the following conclusions:

First. Earthquakes are more frequent when the moon is on the meridian than when she is on the horizon.

Second. They are a little more frequent at New and Full moon than at Half moon.

Third. They are more frequent when the moon is near the earth than when she is furthest off.

With regard to the frequency of earthquakes Mr. Mallet of England collected records of 6830 earthquakes, which were known to have occurred in 3406 years previous to 1850. Of this number 3240 took place after the year 1800. In all probability earthquakes were not much more frequent during those fifty years than the preceding 3456 years, but with the advance in scientific investigation, the records of these convulsions had been more accurately kept. At this ratio for the entire time there would have been 200,000 earthquakes. Alexis Perry is authority for a still more stupendous announcement. He states that from 1843 to 1872, including both of these years, the number of recorded earthquakes were 17,249 or nearly two each day.

Now, when we take into consideration the fact that but a small part of the surface of our globe is inhabited by a people sufficiently advanced in knowledge and science to take notice of and intelligently record each earthquake, and that these may take place beneath the ocean as well as on the land, we are irresistibly led to the conclusion that the earth surface or shell is never entirely at rest, but that it is constantly quaking somewhere.

A deplored number and variety of bodily ills, is often mentioned in the more thoughtful paragraphs in the home columns of our daily and weekly papers. Nevertheless I firmly believe that they can be more hopefully ended by a complete and hearty restoration of morning to its rightful place in the total day of a normal life, than by any other single cause. I would therefore utter a stirring call for a grand revival of intelligent enthusiasm for such restoration; sure that other needed means of health would, of themselves, follow in its train.

For, as the rugged strength of the splendid Waverly oaks came from acorns, and the inexhaustible color beauties of fields and skies spring from the combined rainbow elements of simple white light, so, if we would, in behalf of health, live close to nature, how can we better begin than by adopting her own plan by making morning the foundation, glory, delight and strength of the day? See what nature, as the companion book of illustrative plates to the text of holy scripture by the same Author, has to show us. The full bird chorus at the height of the season, begins, as I have often heard it in former years not far from three o'clock in the morning, as if to rouse us not to miss what comes next. Then, from sunrise for three hours or more, flowers and grass are bedecked with dew-drop, rubies, sapphires, topazes, amethysts, emeralds.

Morning air, too, is at its maximum of purity and sweetness, by dew-washing and dust laying. The longer shadows, also, provide mingled beauty of light and shade. Refreshed by sleep, gentle outdoor motion in which we simply let ourselves be a part of nature before eating is as wholesome as it is delightful; and, with our breakfast, completes one's readiness to begin a new day as a new being. Hence our favorite American sage and true son of nature well said: "Early to bed and early to rise makes a man healthy and wealthy and wise."

Those, who, having occasion, seek to gain and keep health in nature's way—if only to give this old maxim a fair trial—may well perseveringly follow it, as many have done for many years with the happiest results, until—which is altogether improbable—they find an undeniably better one.

Turning a moment to the divine text to nature's illustrations, what saith it of morning and its related terms? God, who is "life," and is love is also "light." Truth and righteousness are allied to it, and belong to children of light; while children of darkness love darkness rather than light, and, if only for shame, suspend their ill doing at morning light. Thus, with twofold instruction and invitation let us all make field, garden, at room, and all pretty wild things, the favorite annex of every home, all eagerly sharing early home duties that all may have their share of morning. Life will then have a dignity, intelligence and use, and thence a health beauty and joy, better worth living for than petty belittling conventionalisms and fashions.

Writing from now more than fifty years of happy experience of the mingled pleasure and profit of morning life, and always happy to give others the benefit of such experience, all-the-year round rambling clubs would now seem in order, in behalf of enlivening fellowship in these good things. They might be of various forms and for a variety of possible specific objects. Who will, by conference start one or more of them? Who would not belong to one? May is at hand, and now is just the time to begin.

HANDY PAINT IN HANDY SIZES.

FAMILY PREPARED PAINT as manufactured by the Heath and Milligan Mfg. Co is worth this name. It is designed specially for use on interior woodwork, furniture, or any other article that the housewife may desire to improve with a clean, fresh coat of paint. While the price for this paint is not high, the quality is there and that is what we all want. Made in all the shades and for sale by C. H. Campbell of Nonantum Square. Call on him and ask for a color card.

Y. M. C. A.

At 4 p. m. the seniors will hold another hare and hound chase. The hares have promised to set a lively pace for the hounds. The race will be run in the open country no attention being paid to rivers or fences.

The pastors of the churches who are to observe Y. M. C. A. Sunday on May 8th and those who are to speak in the churches on that occasion were entertained at dinner on Monday evening at 6 p. m. Sec'y Bascom read a report of the years work which showed a good increase in membership and in the interest taken by volunteer workers in the various departments. The great need of the association today is workers. An informal discussion followed after which an inspection of the rooms was made.

A large and enthusiastic audience of members and their friends gathered on Monday evening for the April social and entertainment. Mr. Childs chairman of the social committee had arranged a very attractive program which was enjoyed by all. Light refreshments were served after the entertainment. Those taking part in the program were Messrs Ed Bacon, Pitt Parker, Robert Blue and Robert Porter. Master Edwards sang and the Glee Club rendered several selections.

The annual meeting of the Association will be held on May 4th at 7:45. Reports of the years work will be read and future plans made known. Twelve men will be chosen to serve on the Board of Directors for the coming year. Every member is urged to be present.

Newton Kicking.

Newton Kickers have at last succeeded in reducing the number of cars in Nonantum Square but at what expense to public convenience? Nothing less nor nothing more than forcing the large number of our citizens who use the Brookline and Huntington avenue cars to transfer at Oak Square. It's simply a great nuisance as our people are finding out to their manifested discomfort. The conductors in explanation simply say Newton Kickers did it, while Newton people know that they are the sufferers. To be frank I've never seen any reason to complain of the blockade of Nonantum Square by electric cars. What's the Square for? In spite of the efforts of our Newtonville people to make that village a railroad centre Nonantum Square has been and must remain the electric railroad centre of Newton City unless Newton Kickers prevent it. Why? Simply because it is the natural terminus of all five cent fares from Boston to Newton which exalts our village in the eyes of investors and prospective residents. The trolleys ought to be encouraged rather than driven away and if Nonantum Square isn't big enough to accommodate the people, then good horse business sense demands its enlargement by the curtailment of some of its one storied buildings and that right away. It's a public necessity.

COACH AND FAMILY HORSES.

The finest lot of high class horses ever exhibited for sale in New England. They were all selected with great care, have been carefully blitted, handled and driven regularly, so that they are fitted for use in the city and country. Beautifully matched coach and family pairs, colts, single drivers and saddlers, all at reasonable prices. Why not buy a thoroughly responsible firm who have been in business for more than 20 years, and who can show a better list of regular customers and references than any dealers in New England. Our policy is, where we sell a horse and it does not give perfect satisfaction, to take it back and give another equally as good, without any additional charge. We can give the very best references. The Entertainment Club.

Final Performance of Season will be Given Wednesday Evening of Next Week in Channing Church Parlors.

Two exceedingly bright and amusing comedies will form this season's final program of the Entertainment Club in Channing church parlors, Wednesday evening, May 4 at 8 o'clock.

The first is a comedy in one act, entitled, "Apples." The scene is laid in the studio of an artist in Rome. The story begins almost with the first word spoken after the rise of the curtain and is well sustained throughout. The dialogue contains many witty lines and gives the players many excellent opportunities, which, it is fair to say, will not be neglected.

In "Young Mr. Pritchard," the other piece, two delightful old ladies, Miss Hetty and Miss Betty, and their niece, Edith, have a somewhat unusual experience in letting their home for the summer to a person whom they know only by name and reputation. The situation is not without an abundance of comedy, which the author has seasoned with a liberal dash of romance, thereby providing plenty of interest in a most novel way. The casts are as follows:

"APPLES."

Lady Roedale Clara Bowers Emory
Miss Hetty Myrtle Woodman Lane
Miss Betty Harold Dudley Greely
Edith Henry Wrenn Pritchard
Loverett Bentley

Effect of High Speed on the Brain.

"That it surpasses the powers of man to drive a racing automobile for a long distance at high speed" is asserted by Forbes Winslow the eminent English brain specialist. He says as quoted in the Automobile Magazine for February "When these racing motor cars reach a speed of 80 miles an hour, they must drive themselves, for no human brain is capable of dealing with all the emergencies that may arise should that rate be maintained for any period worth speaking of. The human animal is not designed to travel eighty miles an hour. Neither the human brain nor the human eye can keep pace with it. The brain declines to respond to the tax upon it; so the big racing car dashes on minus the brain by which it is supposed to be controlled, and the unexpected obstruction is smashed up, or the car is, before the mental activities come into play. This craze for beating records is an abnormal mental condition. I should like to examine some of those afflicted with it. If they keep it up any considerable time, they are sure to end with a severe mental breakdown. I will not be surprised if we should have a new class of patients in our asylums before long. Motor-maniacs."

In view of this statement made by an expert we ought to know. Must our people young and old submit to having their lives in constant jeopardy by these Motor-maniacal incursions upon our fine roads and by ways? It's the prime duty of our legislators and City Fathers to protect the same from these insane and wild maniacal raids upon our roads, and not accept fines as punishment for these heedless sportsmen afflicted with motor-maniacism. They dash round our street corners at the most illopportune times and no effort is apparent to slow up by many of them. This is food for thought. Make our streets safe, not race tracks. W.

FUNERAL OF MRS. LUCY B. LOWELL

Many friends gathered in the First parish church, Brookline, Saturday afternoon to pay their tribute of respect to the memory of Mrs. Lucy Buckminster Lowell, widow of Judge John Lowell. The casket was almost hidden by the large floral offerings which surrounded it. The arrangements were in charge of Col. William D. Schier, assisted by Francis W. Lee. The ushers were Percival Lowell, A. Lawrence Lowell, Arthur Lyman, Herbert Lyman, Eliot C. Clarke, Judge Francis C. Lowell, William L. Putnam, W. Sturgis Lothrop, T. K. Lothrop, Jr., Dr. Algernon Coolidge, Jr., Frank Coolidge, Ellerton James and Charles H. Cook. Rev. Howard N. Brown of Kings Chapel, Boston, and the Rev. Edward Hale officiated and a quartet sang. H. G. Tucker, organist of the Second church, Boston, played the organ. The pallbearers were Col. Schier, A. Lawrence Lowell, Francis C. Lowell, Arthur Lyman, Francis W. Lee and Charles H. Kip. The interment was in the Lowell family lot at Forest Hills.

WALTHAM MERCHANTS' WEEK.

OPENS MAY 9TH, '04—BAND CONCERTS FIRST DAY.

The merchants of Waltham intend making Merchants' Week a "Gala Week." Monday will open with band concerts by the American Watch Company Band on the common. The business section of the city will be decorated with flags and bunting; also two forty foot banners will span the streets. Animated window displays will be in order; the eye is instantly attracted by activity and it takes but a few minutes for a crowd to gather about the window with such an attraction. A large number of industries will make exhibits of their products and machinery in full operation. Watch making and weaving will be fully demonstrated in some of the store windows. Look for the exhibit of prize posters in the different windows, designed by the school children of Waltham and surrounding towns, for which five cash prizes are offered.

Not a dull moment. Don't miss it. Come.

Real Estate.

Edward T. Harrington and Co., through their agent W. H. Rand, have sold the Shattuck estate, 246 Waltham street, West Newton, to George R. Eager. The estate is one of the finest in West Newton, containing over ten acres of land well stocked with fruit and shade trees, a large house and commodious stable in first class repair. The estate is purchased for occupancy and will remain an object of beauty to the many who avail themselves of the privilege of frequenting this, one of the most beautiful and popular thoroughfares in Newton.

The Extended Use of Schoolhouses

The closing lecture of the Newton Education Association series was given by Mr. Walter S. Parker, Supervisor of Boston schools, last week Monday at 4 o'clock p. m. in the Chaffin school hall, Newtonville. A goodly number of persons were present; most were teachers a few were parents. The speaker confined himself chiefly to four principal uses to which schoolhouses can be put without inconvenience to the schools, and with great advance to certain children and adults. His subject was illustrated by examples of successful experiments in New York and Boston.

In both cities, vacation schools have been carried on for a number of years. They meet the demand of large numbers of children who would otherwise spend their time in idleness if not in mischief. Here they receive instruction in various manual and industrial occupations, including joinery, basketry, iron-working, sewing, cooking, school gardening and the like, all under skilled teachers.

Evening schools long since passed the permissive period of their existence, the laws both of New York and Massachusetts require that they be maintained at public expense, and within our state, attendance on them for certain persons is made a condition for their being employed in certain pursuits. There is no limit of age for attendants, and almost no limit to the studies pursued, in a Boston evening school a student may fit for college, and even pursue studies far in advance of college requirements. Courses of study are provided, for a wide range of pursuits of a practical character, among others the lecturer named the training of salesmen and saleswomen.

A third use to which both the cities above named have for years provided their public school halls, is courses of popular lectures, free to the people. More than a million of the citizens of New York attended these courses the past season. In Boston similar courses have had large audiences, ten to twelve hundred in some cases, with an average, for the season, of over six hundred. The aggregate attendance for all being about one hundred thousand. The lectures are of a popular character, but calculated to instruct as well as to entertain. Recently Boston has established in different parts of the city educational centres, where young and old find entertainment intellectual and other, and obtain instruction in a wide range of pursuits, much of it individual. Of these educational centres there are ten, some or all with facilities for study, a provision welcomed by boys and girls whose homes are too restricted to afford the necessary seclusion and quiet.

A SUNDAY ACCIDENT

Michael Marks, a machinist from South Boston, while attempting to alight on the wrong side from the running board of an open, west bound car in Newtonville square Sunday afternoon, was struck by a car going in the opposite direction. He was severely cut up about the head and his left shoulder was badly strained. The police ambulance carried him to the Newton hospital. One of the persons who assisted the injured man caused additional excitement by fainting after the affair was over.

At the Churches.

A meeting of the Stebbins Alliance was held last Tuesday afternoon at the Newton Centre Unitarian church. Several important matters were considered by the members.

At Central church, Newtonville, last Friday evening a missionary meeting was held and a letter was read from Mr. Roberts giving an account of the work being done at Kalgan, China.

The annual meeting of the Young People's League was held last Sunday evening in the New Church parlors, Newtonville. Reports were read and officers elected for the coming year.

The Bible Class of the Woman's League connected with the New Church, Newtonville, met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. H. Carter on Highland avenue. Mrs. H. P. Bellows was chairman and the topic considered was "Jeremiah's Activity during the reigns of Jehoiakim and Zedekiah."

Rev. O. S. Davis gave an interesting address on "The Signs and Symbols of Our Church" at the young people's meeting at Central church last Sunday evening.

An entertainment was held by the Farther Lights Society at the Immanuel Baptist church last evening. The proceeds will go for the missionary fund.

The First church has raised the total amount necessary to pay for the new house of worship now nearing completion. A circular was sent out recently to the members of the parish stating that $5000 was needed to bring the total subscription up to $107,500 which is the amount the building committee is authorized to expend. The pledges received makes the total slightly in excess of that figure.

The Ladies Sewing Circle of the First Universalist church, Newtonville, cleared over $75 at their Easter sale.

The Suffolk West Conference of Congregational churches has voted to hold the September conference at the new First church, Newton Centre which will be completed in the summer.

At Grace church next Sunday night there will be a special service for the people. The speaker will be Rev. P. W. Sprague of Charlestown.

Mr. H. R. Pratt has resigned as organist at Grace church and Mr. Dudley W. Fitch will take his place.

At the First church, Newton Centre beginning last Sunday Rev. Edward M. Noyes has prepared and will deliver a series of four addresses upon "The Essentials of Christian Life." These talks will take the place of the Christian Endeavor meetings and are given at the request of the society and there will be an opportunity for question and answer.

The Charity Square completed the season by holding an all day meeting at Central church, Newtonville, last Wednesday. Lunch was served at noon and the ladies served for various charitable objects.

The Ladies' Sewing Circle connected with the First Universalist church, Newtonville, will hold a special business meeting at the home of Mrs. W. F. Kimball on Harvard street this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A combined meeting of the Ladies Benevolent Society and the Ladies Home Missionary Auxiliary was held Wednesday at the Auburndale Congregational church. The annual thank offering was taken and Mrs. May, a worker in the Italian Mission, Boston, gave an interesting account of the work being done in that city. A social hour and a sale of cake and jellies followed.

The offering at Eliot church next Sunday will be for the church and Sunday school.

The annual meeting of the Immanuel Baptist church will be held in the vestry this evening at 7:30. The annual reports will be read and officers elected for the coming year.

It is an interesting fact that several of the gentlemen connected with Grace church, Newtonville, have held office for long terms. Mr. George S. Bullens, the present warden, has been a member of the parish corporation for over 40 years. Dr. George W. Shinn has been rector nearly 30 years. Mr. Charles N. Sladen has sung in the choir for more than 17 years and Mr. William Banks has been sexton for 13 years.

Letter to W. S. Slocum,

Newtonville,

Dear Sir: As your business is to get people into and out of trouble, suppose you consider their paint; it makes 'em almost as much trouble as money, except of course matrimony. They buy poor paint a good deal; they don't mean to; they don't know any better; they buy without thinking. Bad paint isn't good. It looks good enough for a year; then begins to get rusty; but changes so slowly, one doesn't notice it.

Looking isn't all. The business of paint is to keep a house dry inside, the wood and iron of it; keep it from rotting and rusting. Takes good paint to do it.

Good and bad paint are sold at one price or about that. One can't go by the price at all; as with lawyers, the price has nothing to do with goodness or badness; and costs are worse; yet; the painter and sheriff come in for their share.

But the probability is that a man, who paints Devco, will come out on top.

Yours truly,
F. W. Devco & Co.
For sale by J. M. Briggs and Son, Newton; W. E. Tomlinson, West Newton and McWain and Son, Newton Centre.

Police Paragraphs.

The annual "civil service" examination for police service will be held at City Hall on Monday.

The reporters of Boston papers are considerably exercised by the rule prohibiting the use of the guardroom by them.

Banana Crop Every Fifteen Days.

"There is evidently an erroneous idea abroad concerning the harvesting of the banana crop," said a man who has been for seven years on a plantation in Honduras.

"The statement that four or five crops of bananas are harvested a year is entirely incorrect. A crop is harvested on an average of every fifteen days throughout the year. Each thrifty banana plant has many suckers or stalks growing from a single root at the same time. One or more bunches of the ripening fruit are cut from a single stalk, while the other stalks growing from the same root are left untouched, and in fifteen days another of the stalks is shorn of its fruit. This process continues incessantly during the year. In July and August it is necessary to cut off the ripening bunches every ten days, while in December and January about once a month is sufficient, the average throughout the year being practically fifteen days."—Mexican Herald.

Who Were They?

To one great fact do all the most ancient epochs of history bear witness; one and all they prove the existence in a yet more remote past of an already advanced civilization such as could only have been gradually attained after long and arduous groping. Who were the inaugurators of this civilization? Who were the earliest inhabitants of the earth? To what biological conditions were they subject? What were the physical and climatic conditions of the globe when they lived? By what flora and fauna were they surrounded? But science pushes her inquiry yet further. She desires to know the origin of the human race—when, how and why men first appeared upon the earth, for, from whatever point of view he is considered, man must of necessity have had a beginning.—"Manners and Monuments of Prehistoric Peoples."

Climbing a Coconut Tree.

Coconuts when ripe fall to the ground and when necessary are plucked by men who climb up. It sometimes makes one's blood run cold to see them run up the trees like monkeys. Two ways are practiced for mounting the trunk. In the case of a small tree, or at an odd moment, the man walks up the trunk, keeping his feet flat against it and throwing his weight back from it as much as possible, retaining his position at the same time by the tension of his arms. The other and safer plan is to pass a loop of cord around the feet, which are thus kept close together, and grasp the trunk of the tree, the arms in the meantime assisting the climber, who moves upward in a series of jumps.

Tree Kills Tree.

A Victoria clergyman had an orange and a pine tree in his garden. One spring it was noticed that the orange tree was drooping, and on digging down he found that the roots of the pine, which stood at some distance, had twisted around the taproot of the orange tree and were strangling it to death. The offending roots were untwisted and cut away, and the drooping plant revived. The tree eventually died. Then on digging down at a greater depth the clergyman found the pine had attacked the orange root lower down and accomplished its murderous end.

A Hint to the Engaged.

There is a superstition which says that engaged couples who are photographed together never get married. Superstition is gradually dying down, so that few would be kept back by an old woman's saying. There is, however, one thing which should keep engaged couples from being photographed together, and that is the thought that if either or both should marry some one else the fever tokens there are of previous love affairs the greater is the chance of happiness in the final choice.

Catching Pigeons in Queensstown.

The ragged children of Queensstown catch pigeons in a curious way. Seated in a row on the edge of the pavement, they each have a string stretching into the road, at the end of which is a noose surrounding some tempting breadcrumbs. Homeless pigeons pounce on the meal and are as quickly jerked to the pavement by the cheering youths.—London Graphic.

A Caution.

Reginald—I love you, Madeline. For you I would give up family, position, wealth. Madeline—Hold, Reginald! Giving up family is all right; I shall be spared a mother-in-law. Give up your position if you can get a better one, but please hold on to your wealth. We may need it.

The Wrong Market.

Mrs. Newlywed—Have you any nice slumps this morning? Butcher—Slumps? What are they? Mrs. Newlywed—Indeed, I don't know, but my husband is always talking about a slump in the market, and I thought I should like to try some.—Philadelphia Record.

Why He Didn't Pay.

"I have but a sick hat with that man five times in the last year, and he has never paid me one of them."

"That so? I didn't know he was in the habit of breaking his word."

"Oh, he isn't; he won the bets."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Becoming.

"That dress is becoming, my dear."

She looked at him coldly for a moment and then replied:

"Yes. It is becoming threadbare."

TO NURSING MOTHERS.

Are you worn out?
Tired and completely run down?
You have no vitality, no energy.
You are nervous, weak, fretful and cry easily.

For just such cases as yours Vin-Tone has been prepared.
It overcomes that tired, weak feeling and puts new energy into body and mind.

Do not be skeptical and refuse to believe what eminent physicians pronounce to be a fact.

Doctors who have made a deep study of this subject, have, after much patience, experimenting and expense, succeeded in compounding Vin-Tone. And having been convinced of its wonderful strengthening power, they now send it out into the world to do its work among poor weary human beings.

We are glad to be able to print the good news that a remedy has at last been discovered which takes right hold of any worn-out system and builds a foundation to health and happiness.

To the nursing mother this will come like a God-send.

One bottle will convince you.

Sold on a positive guarantee.

tion regarding the discontinuance of the Brookline Village cars from Nonantum square and the substitution of a transfer system at Oak Square.We cannot commend the petty and provincial attitude taken by our correspondent. In his view, the trifling inconvenience, required of the small number of Brookline passengers from Newton, is far more important than the relief or partial relief to the very serious congestion in Nonantum square.The GRAPHIC has been, is now,
and shall be in the future, a constant advocate of the elimination of the present dangerous conditions of Nonantum Square. To be perfectly frank, we do not believe the matter will ever be permanently settled until the Elevated Company erects a commodious car house in the immediate vicinity, and so remove the standing cars which now block the square.In the meantime, however, any step which will reduce the number of standing cars in this square thereby making it possible to handle
the incoming and outgoing cars more rapidly, will have our hearty support.It is possible that our correspondent is not aware, that on occasions during the busy parts of the day, cars are blocked as far east as Park street,
with fretting and fuming passengers waiting for an opportunity to draw into the square. He is possibly not aware that during the morning and evening hours from 10 to 15 cars can be counted in the square at a time.
He cares nothing evidently, that thousands of people use this busy section of the city at all hours of the day, and that possibly their safety and convenience are fully as important as that of the Brookline wayfar-ers. And he loses sight of the fact that the transfer at Oak Square adds
a new route to Boston, by way of North Brighton and Cambridge which may be a convenience to many of our people.The citizens of Newton can observe Arbor Day, which comes tomorrow,
in no better way than by a systematic and thorough cleaning of the trees and shrubs on private grounds
from the nests of the brown tail moth. This city, fortunately does not require many new trees, and our energies should therefore be expended in caring for what we already have in abundance.

Our Animal Friends.

Rev. Francis H. Rowley of the First Baptist church of Boston addressed
the West Newton Women's Educational Club, Friday afternoon. April twenty-second, taking for his subject
"Our Animal Friends." The speaker described the growth of human sentiment in relation to dumb animals from the time when Descartes claimed that the lower animals are devoid of consciousness and feeling; that they have no real life in any proper sense;
an influence which has powerfully affected the conduct of men toward animals for generations since. It was not until the latter part of the eighteenth century that we have any ac-knowledgeed champion of animal rights. At that time Jeremy Bentham, in England, with all the clearness of his judicial mind, with all the forces of his trained intellect, defended their protection from man's brutality by the state. Lord Erskine in 1811 pleads for justice in behalf of the lower animals. Again in 1822 another man is raised up for this work, Richard Martin, Humanity Martin they called him, an Irish gentleman, forces through Parliament the first legislation in the interests of animals of which we have any record.
It is the famous Cattle Bill of 1822.
Out of this grew the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and out of this the more than 140 humane societies in England
today. In 1866 the work in our own land was begun by Henry Bergh who brought to this undertaking a mind of fine culture an experience in foreign lands, a fortune, indomitable energy, and full ripened powers. We can hardly think today of the opposition and ridicule that he met on every hand. Men laughed at him as a fauatic. They called him a visionary, a crank, a sentimentalist, a new Moses, and publicly and privately sneered at his endeavors. In 1866
when he organized the New York society there was not a single law
upon the statute books of any state
in this Union to prevent the cruelty or torture to the dumb animals below us. Against the courts, against fashionable society of a city, against the press, and the vast majority of the people, he fought his way, backed up by a few such men as Peter Cooper, Horace Greely, and George Peabody, and A. T. Stewart, until to his name today the whole nation bows in reverence and wherever men rejoice in mercy and justice the memory of Henry Bergh is cherished as a heritage of the race. In 1868 came the Massachusetts society and the Pennsylvania Association, then in 1869 the Illinois State Humane Society, and now there is scarcely a state in the Union in which some protection is not given to animals by legislation or organization. Mr. Rowley stated the grounds upon which its claims for recognition and its progress have been based, the positive rights of animals
as creatures with us of the same God to live out their life subject to the just and lawful rights of men, that a man has no right to subject any living thing that may be in his power to a single moment of needless suffering, that law that he is bound to protect and defend creatures is based on the sacredness and oneness of life.
What we want is not a vague sympathy for dumb animals, but kindness, justice, based upon a clear understanding of their actual rights. The necessity of legislative control and oversight of scientific experimentation on living animals was very strongly urged to prevent indiscriminate and useless cruelty.

Political Notes.

Newton delegates were much in evidence at the 12th district Democratic convention, last Tuesday afternoon in Wesleyan Hall, Boston, when delegates were selected to the National Convention at St. Louis.There was a scrap on from the very first between the Olney and Hearst forces. The candidacy of Geo. Fred Williams of Dedham for election as a Hearst delegate was the bone of contention and his alliance with W.
H. Mague of Newton just before the convention added fuel to a very hot fire. Mr. Mague had worked hard to defeat the Hearst men in the Newton caucuses, and was a candidate for delegate to St. Louis. His candidacy evidently did not meet the wishes of the powers that be as the Olney slate was made up of James H. Vahey of Watertown and James E. Cotter of Hyde Park. Mr. Mague thereupon became lukewarm in his support of Olney, and while not committing himself for Hearst, entered a combination with Williams which came very near success.Information of the new deal was sent to Mr. Vahey just prior to the convention, and he hurried to the hall and made a red hot speech against Mr. Mague. The ballot resulted in the election of the Olney delegates, Vahey receiving 36 votes, Cotter 34,
and Williams and Mague, 27 each.
The Williams faction will contest the election at St. Louis.

The special service for the people will be held in Grace church on Sunday night. The speaker will be the Rev. D. C. Garrett of Chestnut Hill.
Seats are free to all.The Ministers' Union held its meeting last Tuesday at the Swedenborgian church, Newtonville. Dr. Shinn presided. A resolution was passed approving out of door services in summer. The paper by Mr. Goddard was on "How Life appears from the standpoint of a Swedenborgian." Considerable interest was shown in this admirable paper."What has the Church to do with the World?" The Rev. Mr. Garrett will speak on this topic in Grace church on Sunday night. The music to be sung includes Clarks Anthem
"Free from evil" and Shelley's music for "Abide with me." All who desire to come to this gathering are welcome, especially people who do not go anywhere regularly to church.At Channing church next Sunday morning the pastor will preach on the subject "Who is my Neighbor." The Communion will follow the morning service.At St. Bernard's church, West Newton, this week, 40 hours devotion has been observed.Notwithstanding the storm the reception to Rev. Albert L. Squier and Mrs. Squier held at the Methodist church, Newtonville, last Wednesday evening was a very successful affair.
The vestry was arranged with rugs, banquet lamps, potted plants and ferns giving a very pretty parlor effect and Mr. and Mrs. Squier assisted by Mrs. A. H. Soden, president of the Ladies Aid Society and Mr. Soden received informally from 8 to 10. The members of the official board were the ushers and the young ladies served refreshments. Miss Cora Carter was in charge of the lemonade table and Miss Helen Wetherell of the fruit punch table. Guests were present from the Newtons, Watertown, Waltham and Boston.A successful sociable in charge of the gentlemen of the parish was held at Central church, Newtonville, last Tuesday evening. The program consisted of graduation day at a country school with Rev. O. S. Davis
as the teacher and Mr. W. C. Boyden as the school committee man.
Songs were also rendered by the Technology glee club and refreshments were served by the gentlemen.

Tying a Horse to a Hole.

It has been discovered that the desert Indians, who have never been accredited with superabundant wits, have for many years employed a method of tying their horses to holes in the ground that is clever, unique and effective. The operation of tying a horse to a hole seems an impracticable and impossible one, for there is something decidedly intangible and unsubstantial about the hole. The operation is performed in this way: Kneeling on the hot sands, the Indians dig with their hands until they have made a hole about two feet deep. They then tie an immense knot in the end of the halter rope, lower it into the bottom of the hole, fill the hole with sand and then jump and stamp upon it until the earth
over the knot is about as hard as sandstone. -London Magazine.

Cats and Cattle.

In certain parts of southern California it is absolutely necessary to have cats to successfully raise cattle. The cows feed on a red clover which makes a superior quality of beef. This clover grew very sparsely until it was discovered that one farmer who had raised a large number of baby cats always had fine clover fields. Investigation proved that the cats killed the field mice who killed the wild bees
who fertilized the clover seeds by carrying the pollen from flower to flower,
thus causing the seeds to sprout thickly every year. Now all the farmers have many cats.

Practical Economy.

A man whose supercilious condition is chronic and who borrows with the airy grace of a beau in an old comedy
recently approached an acquaintance,
all smiles and geniality."You're just the fellow I wanted to see," he said. "Could you lend me $5
for a minute?""I could," said the acquaintance dryly, "but let me tell you how to save that $5. Wait a minute and you won't need it."

CAMP KINED FOR BOYS

After about 10 years experience in summer camps for boys, F. Dana Sears of Hyde Park, Mass., will reopen July 1st, his camp on Long Lake, Harrison, Me., three miles from North Brighton, in the midst of New England's most charming scenery. Mt. Washington is plainly visible from the camp, as is Mt.
Pleasant, which is 12 miles distant.
The camp grounds cover 15 acres,
is situated on high ground, in a grove of pines; thus having good drainage and a pleasant outlook. The adjacent country is dotted with lakes and mountains, presenting every variety of scenery and a pleasant field for excursions. This region is 3000 feet above sea level and is commended for its healthful climate.
Only boys of the best moral character and good habits, between 10 and 18 years, will be received. A christian college man, to every seven boys, will aim to furnish out door life in the purest way and among the strongest and noblest boy companions. The camp can be reached in two ways
from Portland, Me.: via the Maine Central R. R. to Sebago Lake station, thence by steamer across Sebago and Long Lake, a delightful excursion of 30 miles; or from Portland, take the Maine Central and Bridgton and Saco
R. R., to Harrison, Me. Mr. Sears
is a graduate of Dartmouth college, and a professor of mathematics in Stetson University, Deland, Fla. G.
H. Sensner, also a Dartmouth graduate, and present headmaster of Enerson Institute, the famous boys' school of Washington, D. C., and of many years camp experience, will be assistant manager. Any boy, really interested, can secure an illustrated booklet (see cut in another column) of F. D. Sears, 59 Lincoln street, Boston, Mass. Best of references furnished. 4t

SAWIN-SCO FIELD

A marriage of considerable prominence, last Tuesday evening, was the union of Miss Grace Louise Scofield of Hunnewell Hill and George A. Sawin of Cambridge. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Scofield of 692 Washington street, Brighton, and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Sawin, a graduate of Harvard, class of '01, and one of the star backs of the crimson variety football eleven in his college days. He is now connected with the General Electric Company of Lynn.

The Rev. William H. Davis pastor of the Elliot Congregational church in Newton performed the ceremony. The bride in a creation of white tulle her veil of tulle being caught up by a spray of sweet peas was escorted by her father. She was attended by Miss Alice M. Webber of Brighton as maid of honor wearing a gown of white mousseline de soie.

The best man was Herbert Sawin a brother of the groom, and the four ushers were Frank P. Scofield, Harry C. Scofield, brothers of the bride, H. Alfred Hansen of Newton and Edward E. Savory of Newtonville.

There was a brilliant reception after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Sawin will pass their honeymoon touring the South, after which they will live in Lynn.

The bridal trip was delayed a trifle, as the groom, in the confusion attending leaving the house amid a shower of confetti, forgot to take the key of the bridal trinket, necessitating a visit to the Scofield house the next morning.

NEWTONVILLE MAN HONORED

Richard H. Pierce of Newtonville has been appointed chief mechanical engineer of the board of awards of the St. Louis exposition. The post is one of high honor and carries with it recognition of signal ability.

During the three years that the Columbian exposition was in course of erection and while the fair was in progress, he was chief of the electrical engineers, having 1000 workmen under him. It is understood that the post of chief mechanical engineer at the St. Louis fair confers the responsibility of assigning the awards among the engineering exhibits as well as the charge of the enormous power plant of the fair.

Mr. Pierce was born in Hopkinton in 1860. He graduated from Yale in the class of '82 and from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in '85, the first class in electrical engineering to graduate from the institute.

After graduation he accepted a position with the Edison Company of Chicago. He remained 17 years in the west, joining the firm of Pierce, Richards and Neiler of Chicago before coming east. The company has an office at 110 State street.

Mr. Pierce has gone to St. Louis to inquire about his duties. He will return in two weeks to arrange his business affairs here and then return to stay during the six months of the fair.

His home is at 462 Walnut street, Newtonville. He is a golf enthusiast, a member of the Brae Burn Golf Club and of the Newton Club.

A talented naval officer and a very prominent engineer were considered for the appointment along with Mr. Pierce.

P. O. NOTES.

A greatly improved mail service went into effect through the main post office of the city, in Newton Centre last week Wednesday. Under the new arrangement mail cars will leave the South Terminal station via the circuit at 6:25, 9:12 a. m., 2:43 and 8:23 p. m., and via the main line at 10:50 a. m., and 4:27 p. m., and this will consolidate several mails at the Newton Centre postoffice. The office will receive three additional mails from mail cars and dispatch one additional one in like manner. The change will improve the service all over the city.

BENEATH THE GILDED DOME.

The legislature had better get right after the bond investment companies that have moved into Massachusetts within the past few years with their fraudulent practices and evil designs which bid fair to be of greater pest than the gypsy moth ever dreamed of being in his most visionary moments, or the endowment orders of Mrs. Howe's bank ever fancied.

It is a rare day in any month when some financial scheme is not hoisted upon the public by get-rich-quick promoters, and the authorities can not indulge in any Rip Van Winkle naps if they intend to keep up with the rapid schemers who are always at it and tire not neither do they sleep. The combined recommendations of the savings banks, the insurance and corporation commissioners ought to be enough for the general court. That body can not be too rapid in its action. If the trading stamp is constitutional, certainly the bond investment can be overhauled, and if it is not possible to go into some stores and buy a paper of pins without having a gold-mounted lamp or a library table sent to the house prepaid, it certainly ought to be possible to compel the bond concerns who supply bonds of no value, to give the state a bond of some value in order that they may get a standing as well as a foothold in the commonwealth. It is a pretty hard job to legislate for the ignorant and the unwary, and between that class and the financial bloodsuckers, all the way down the line, the legislature must be pretty busy. Yet it wont do any harm for that honorable body to be a little busy during its six month's residence in the building which it occupies half of the year free of rent. The attention of the great and general court is respectfully called, even at this late day, to the bond investment companies that put out advertisements in which they tell the public that subscribers to those schemes will immediately become rich in spite of themselves. One of these concerns winds up its advertisement in last Sunday's paper with the following: "I would like the opportunity of taking this matter over with people who have money to invest, and who feel that they have the right to see and be thoroughly and completely convinced. I am in a position to make a most interesting proposition to anyone who is sufficiently impressed to act quickly in the matter."

The last sentence of the above is full of suggestion and the people who desire to get-rich-quick would be wise to avoid making a note of the address of all such concerns.

The legislative cold shoulder has become fixed in its attitude toward the executive chamber with a degree of fixedness that could hardly have been excelled if Colonel Gaston had been successful last fall in his ambition to get possession of the key to the executive door. The last view of the legislative scapula was the adverse report of the ways and means committees on the inheritance tax which was reported last Friday, thus constituting that day the black Friday of the governor's suggestions for the raising of the new revenues. What on earth the house will do when it comes to the paying of bills is getting to be an interesting question. By turning to the constitution we find in article seven of chapter I that "all money bills shall originate in the house or representatives." It was eminently proper therefore for the governor to suggest certain methods by which the legislature could raise funds to pay the additional bills which it so jauntily assumed last year to the amount of more than $1,000,000. The governor is not obliged to pay the bills or raise the money to pay them, for the constitution expressly provides that, "the general court shall forever have power and authority, etc." The governor said in his message that he did not intend to allow the state tax to exceed that of last year. If the legislature did not choose to get the money by possible ways then his excellency would see to it that no more money should be spent by the state than was spent last year. What did the governor mean by that? Any man who can not understand what the governor meant has simply to wait and see.

One of the prosperous western Massachusetts farmers, who is a member of the legislature, tells about watching the farming on Boston common. "Why," said he, "if I farmed it like that I should be on the poor farm in two years. Those men work so slow that they can't tell how to quit at night. One of them takes about a quart of dirt upon a shovel and goes about a rod and drops it, then he has to look and see if it is on the shovel. Two men have an old horse cultivating the ground, the horse moves so slow that when he strikes a snag the men have to consult together to determine whether the cultivator is still moving and meanwhile the shadow of the horse chills the ground."

CAMP KINEO FOR BOYS.
(See notice in another column.)

Why, these men on the common don't do any more work than the Boston policemen. There is more work done on one of our deserted farms than there is on the Boston common."

The same member in commenting upon the recent order of the Boston board of police, in which the commissioners gave notice that if saloon keepers gave liquor to policemen their licenses would have to be sacrificed said, "now, if I find a man who is at work for me, sucking eggs I don't go through my barns breaking up the nests, I tell the man that I guess he had better find another job. Judge Emmons ought to be more careful how he uses the saloon keepers, if it were not for them he wouldn't have anything to lecture about Sunday nights. By the way I see that he says he wont let women go into the saloons and drink any more. If he really wants to stop women drinking he had better to give his attention to a certain liquor shop not a thousand miles from the front door of the Adams House. More liquor is sold to women between Monday morning and Saturday night at that shop than all the saloons in Boston sell to women in a hundred years."

FUNERAL OF EDWARD L. CLARK

On Saturday April 23, at 3:30 p. m. at the crematory chapel, Forest Hills, were held the funeral services for Edward Lord Clark, second son of Chas. P. and Helen Lancaster Clark, of Buffalo, New York, but recently of Newton Centre.

The young man was twenty years of age and died at the Stillman infirmary, having undergone an operation for appendicitis. He was in the freshman class at the Lawrence Scientific School, having entered last October, after one year in the Newton high school, where he won many friends among the teachers and pupils. He was a young man of sturdy character, lovable in disposition, and exceedingly loyal in friendship. The sincere grief of the many friends at the services, the chancel filled with beautiful flowers, gave evidence that he possessed these qualities to a marked degree. The services were conducted by Rev. E. M. Noyes, the pastor and warm friend of the deceased, having only a few months before received him into the church at Newton Centre, and enrolled him as "A soldier in the service of his Master." Mr. Noyes' words were eloquent with feeling as he told how bravely the young man faced death, and how nobly he responded to the Master's call.

The pallbearers were Philip Leonard and Harry LeMoine, Harvard '07, Carlos Pierce, Dartmouth '07, Walter Keyes, Fred Keyes, Benjamin Mason, Charles Rawley, W. L. Barnard and C. D. Meserve.

The sympathy of many friends is with Mr. and Mrs. Clark and family in their bereavement.

UNITARIAN CLUB.

At the recent business meeting of the Unitarian Club these officers were elected to serve the coming year: President, Oliver M. Fisher; vice presidents, George H. Ellis, G. Fred Simpson; secretary, Bruce R. Ware; treasurer, Robert D. Holt; executive committee, Fred W. Stone, Edward Moll, George Hutchinson, Mitchell Wing, E. A. Gordon; entertainment committee, A. W. B. Huff, John A. Evans, Harris E. Johnson; music committee, Henry T. Wade, Junius W. Hill, Abraham Byfield; membership committee, John Leavitt, Fred H. Tucker, H. C. Hawks, Freedom Hutchinson, L. H. Howe; reception committee, A. R. Bailey, Fletcher B. Coffin, Ralph C. Emery, C. E. Hatfield and Robert E. Mandell.

DEATH OF MRS. AMY B. ZEAL

Mrs. Amy Brinsley Zeal, wife of Mr. Alexander Zeal, died on Wednesday the 20th instant at her residence 19 Elm Place, Newtonville, after a severe sickness of about four months duration. The funeral was on Sunday from the Episcopal church, Newtonville, where the Rector Rev. Richard

T. Loring conducted the impressive choral burial service of that church. Friends of the family were gathered from far and near and the beautiful little church was comfortably filled when the opening words of the service announcing "I am the resurrection and the life" were borne up the sacred aisle from the vestibule where the priest met the cortege.

The laying away of loved ones is always a sorrowful task to the immediate family and friends but when youth and beauty, wifehood and motherhood are cut down in the morning of their life by the grim reaper, the chord that makes the whole world akin is touched and the neighborhood pours out its sympathy and mourns with the family, as was evidenced by the assemblage in the church and by the banks of flowers made up in the many designs of floral art, garlands, pillows, bouquets and wreaths, all breathing of the affection and esteem in which Mrs. Zeal was held in her large circle of acquaintance.

The funeral service of the Episcopal church is just as solemnly soul-purifying today as it always has been, but when the last notes of "Abide with Me" which was sung as a solo by one of the surpliced choir had died away the solemn grandeur of this service was markedly in evidence.

The pallbearers were Mr. James A. Ramage of Newtonville, Mr. Chas. G. Winter of Webster, Mass., Mr. Hugh Cheyne, Jr., of Cambridge and Mr. M. W. Middlebrook of Worcester.

Mrs. Zeal is survived by her husband, Mr. Alexander Zeal, of the Singer Manufacturing Co., of Boston, a son of seven years, attending the Newtonville Grammar school and a boy who was born last Christmas day.

Doctors Do Taste Drugs.
"Do doctors know how how their own medicine tastes?" was a question put to a group of physicians. "To be sure," said one, "but we have hard work to convince our patients that we do. If you only know how this beastly stuff tastes, doctor, you wouldn't ask me to take it—that is what they say. And they are hard headed people, too, who say that, people who are by no means raving in delirium. It's hard ever to convince them that a doctor has a tasting acquaintance with his medicine."
"How did you find out about it?" is one of their trump questions. "You have never been laid up with all the diseases in the dictionary. How did you learn what the different remedies taste like? It never occurs to the average patient that tasting drugs is a part of the medical student's education and that no man is qualified to practice until he has learned the flavor of the medicines he expects to prescribe."—New York Times.

Ancient Beards.
The ancient Jews considered it the greatest insult that could be offered to a man to pluck his beard. It was a notion of the Mohammedans that, though Noah reached his thousandth birthday, no hair of his blessed beard fell off or became white; but the Mohammedans had no more authority for that than for their belief that the devil has but one solitary long hair for a beard.

It was, as some say, in order to distinguish themselves from the ancient Israelites that the followers of Mohammed cropped the beard; but Mohammed, as we know, sanctioned the dyeing of the beard and preferred a cane color because that was the traditional hue of Abraham's beard. More than that, have we not the common Mohammedan oath, "By the beard of the prophet," as well as the supplication, "By your beard, or the life of your beard?"

Ruskin's Impulsive Generosity.
One day, walking near Radley, his attention was caught by a group of little girls playing in the road, and he went and talked to them. One of them specially attracted his attention. He asked her why she was playing in the dust. Had she no garden at home? Did she love flowers? What was her name? And she replied modestly, with wonder in her eyes. On reaching home he gave orders to his solicitor to look out for and buy a cottage with a garden in Radley and have a deed of gift made out in the little girl's name, which was done accordingly, and she, full of wonder, with her astonished parents, entered at once into possession of it.—From "Ruskin in Oxford."

Wedding Tours.
"The custom of taking wedding tours is a remnant of the ancient times when men got their wives by capture," said a professor to a class in Roman history recently. "As soon as a man captured the woman he wanted to marry," continued the professor, "the young couple ran away to avoid the wrath of the bride's relatives. Men don't get their wives by capture now, but the custom of taking wedding tours still survives, a reminder of the ancient times." The professor was led to make these remarks while discussing the legend of the capture of the Sabine women.

How Cosacks Catch Fish.
The Cosacks have a singular method of catching the funny tribe in winter. They cut a long trench across a river when frozen and run a net from one bank to the other; then, riding several miles up the stream, they form a line across the frozen surface and gallop their horses down toward the nets. The fish, hearing the noise and clatter of hoofs, become frightened, dart with a rush downstream and are thus entangled in the net.

The Cause, Not the Effect.
Little Lucy Brown, while running in the yard one day, suddenly tripped and fell. Her mother, being attracted by the child's screams, rushed out, crying: "Why, Lucy, what's the matter? Was it an accident?"
"N'm," replied Lucy, between her sobs, "it was a brick."—Little Chronicle.

Rivers in Korea.
On the western coast of Korea the tides of the Yellow sea are higher than anywhere in the world outside the bay of Fundy, and while the rivers of eastern Korea are clear streams, that run swiftly from the mountains, those on the western side are great brown, muddy rivers, up which the thirty foot ocean tides surge many miles.

Unlucky.
The burglar noiselessly opened the jewel case and examined the contents. "Ah," he said to himself, "madam ought to have known better than to invest anything in opals. They are unlucky." And he transferred them to his pocket and quietly climbed out of the window again.

A Cruel Pun.
A certain young man told his girl the other night that if she didn't marry him he'd get a rope and hang himself right in front of her home.
"Oh, please don't do it, Harry," she said: "you know father doesn't want you hanging around here."

An Encore.

AN OLD RESIDENT DEAD

Mr. Francis C. Kelley, for 38 years a resident of Auburndale died at his home on Central street last Tuesday morning, after a long period of failing health. Mr. Kelley was born in Merrimack, Mass., 74 years ago, and for some years was engaged in the carriage business in that town. Later and for many years he had charge of the finest work done by the Hallett and Davis Piano Co. He removed to Auburndale in 1866 and immediately identified himself with the Congregational church of which he has since been a valued and devoted member. He was fond of natural history, of a thoughtful frame of mind and a student of biblical works.

He leaves a widow and two sons, Rev. Edward P. Kelley pastor of the Congregational church at Pigeon Cove, and Arthur W. Kelley who is connected with the Christian Endeavor movement.

The funeral was held from his late residence, 9 Central street, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. C. M. McKnight officiating. Rev. Calvin Cutler delivered the eulogy and "Rock of Ages" and "There is a Fountain filled with Blood" was sung by a quartet. The interment was at Newton Cemetery.
